Ag Teachers In Spotlight At National Conference

ANDY ANDREWS

DENVER, Colo. — Several area agricultural teachers and supporters were honored last week at the annual National Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association (NVATA) conference here.

In addition, Greenwood High School agricultural science instructor Dr. MeeCee Baker was voted president-elect of the 8,000-member national association.

Baker, Port Royal, who has served with the Greenwood High School district in Millerstown since 1987, said she will work to increase overall NVATA membership and to help educate members about some of the legislative places taking shape in Washington, D.C.

During her three-year term as vice president of Region VI, there has been a substantial increase in professional membership among agriculture education instructors. Baker will assume the duties of president of the assocation at the end of next year's annual conference, scheduled for Cincinnati, Ohio.

Growers Reluctant To Sell As Auction Season Opens

PARADISE (Lancaster Co.) — "I think farmers need a raise," declared Paradise Auction Manager Eric Probst as the bell rang on Monday at the start of the annual county tobacco auction season.

However, the top price paid for tobacco on opening day Monday was unchanged from last year at $1.25 per pound. The warehouse itself purchased about 8,000 pounds for a high of $1.30 per pound. Average price was $1.25 per pound.

On Monday, many sellers were reluctant to part with their number one cash crop, deciding instead to wait for potentially better prices in the days and weeks ahead.

About 175 sellers and eight buyers watched as Mitch "Snake" Ashby, from North Carolina, called off prices. Two skids at the start of the sale topped $1.30, but only the high of $1.25 registered from other buyers.

There were about 424,000 pounds of Maryland 609 on the floor at the sale Monday, and 61,328 pounds were sold. The same day last year was a Paradise Tobacco Auction record with a total of 636,000 pounds on the floor.

This year boasted a great growing season, with early rains and

Lebanon Farm-City Program Catalyst For Mutual Respect

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — A strong message of mutual respect and new understanding was issued Tuesday night by city and farm participants in the Lebanon County Farm-City job exchange program.

North Annville-area Holstein breeder and dairy farmer Alan Hostetter and Lebanon insurance agent Bob Phillips participated in this year's Lebanon County Farm-City job exchange program earlier in the year, as did Bonnie Wenger of Wen Crest Farms near Scheafferstown and Jan Boyer who runs her own advertising business in town.

Each got up before more than 500 people who attended the annual Lebanon County Farm-City Banquet to tell of their job exchange adventures.

The program is designed so that each participant spends a day working at his exchange partner's job.

Over the years, through the Lebanon Farm-City job exchange program, many have had the opportunity to learn a little more

Cambria District Presents Farmer, Service Awards

LORETTA GOLDEN
Cambria Co. Correspondent

EBENSBURG (Cambria Co.) — The annual legislative luncheon of the Cambria County Conservation District was held on December 1, at the Penn Gables Restaurant, Route 22 west of Ebensburg.

Clair J. Dumm, district manager welcomed all those in attendance, which included representatives of federal, state, and other cooperating conservation agencies in addition to various state and local officials.

The primary function of the conservation district is being responsible to conduct and coordinate programs to protect and conserve our natural resources. This responsibility was the primary focus of the address given by guest speaker Dr. Bernard Hoffner.

Dr. Hoffner served as past president of the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts and was recently appointed to the PA Science and Technology Team by Governor Tom Ridge. Hoffner commended the local conservation district on its excellent reputation.

Honored at the luncheon was W. R. (Dick) Rossman, of Ebensburg for his outstanding service to the conservation district. Rossman had been a district director from 1972-95, and was chairman for 16 of those years. Rossman holds a bachelor's degree in forestry from Penn State University and is

Delmarva Broiler

DECEMBER 6, 1995

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds varied, but was generally no better than moderate. Offerings were fully sufficient to handle the seasonally reduced inquiry. Live supplies were mostly moderate; weights ranged light to heavy. Processing schedules were very heavy. Less than truckloat asking prices were unchanged at 53 to 64 cents. Trade sentiment was about steady. In the parts complex, bone-in breasts remained tight. Boneless skinless breasts were in generally good balance. Leg quarters were fully adequate. Wings were available at some plants, short at others.

DECEMBER 6, 1995

Trucklot buying interest was seasonal and was generally no better than moderate. Bone-in breasts remained tight. Boneless skinless breasts were adequate and clearing well. Leg quarters were fully adequate. Wings were well cleared at some plants, fully adequate at others. Retail and distributive movement was mostly light to fair at best; floor stocks were fully adequate. The market tone was steady to cautiously firm on breast items, steady on the balance.

E. PA & NJ Poultry

DECEMBER 4, 1995

Final majority prices were unchanged compared to a week ago. The market tone was generally steady. Offerings from production areas had decreased and were generally limited to no better than in balance for this week's slaughter needs. Demand was moderate to mostly good as holiday season kept finished sales fairly active.

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
DECEMBER 6, 1995

Wheat bids moved higher for second consecutive day in reaction to continued fund buying and positive export outlook for wheat.

Corn and soybean bids moved slightly higher from spillover support from wheat pits and recent improvement in export bean, meal and corn demand. Wheat 2 to 6 cents higher. Corn 1 to 3 cents higher. Sorghum 2 to 4 cents higher. Soybeans 2 to 4 cents higher. Carryover strength from Tuesday's active fund buying in wheat pits offered additional support to wheat bids. Dry, dry weather conditions in winter wheat growing areas continued to concern traders. The possibility for export demand to improve with Russia showing up on the books as well as Egypt and Turkey, forced wheat bids to climb higher. Corn and bean bids were stronger again today, pulled upward by stronger wheat trade. Morocco's generous purchase of corn was positive to bids. Soybean meal has kept bean bids stronger with export sales giving beans an upward push. Dry weather remains in parts of Brazil and about 50,000 tonnes of South American soymeal was reported to be sold to China. Light fund buying was a boosting factor in beans.

The Old Farmer's Almanac This Week With

ST. LUCY, DEC. 13.

BREAKFAST IN BED

The Scandinavians may have something to teach us about how to begin the Christmas holidays By tradition, on St Lucia (Dec 13) the girls of the household dress in white gowns with red sashes and the boys in white cone-shaped hats decorated with stars The eldest daughter wears a crown of green leaves and lighted candles, carefully balanced on her head Then she, representing St Lucia (for "light"), leads the procession to the parents' bedroom, where the children serve a breakfast of sweet saffron buns, gingersnaps, and steaming hot coffee. Later, "Lucia buns" may be delivered to neighbors, spreading the glow for the Winter Solstice

Hide not your light under a bushel.

TIP OF THE WEEK

VISIONS OF SUGARPLUMS

1 pound each, chopped:
dates, raisins, figs, unsalted pistachios, currants, and blanched almonds.
1/2 pound each, chopped or shredded: walnuts, pecans, coconut, and crystallized ginger grated rind and juice of. 1 orange and 1 lemon
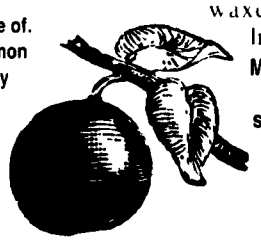
2 tablespoons sherry
4 tablespoons brandy
granulated sugar, to coat

Thoroughly combine chopped fruits and nuts and grated rinds Add liquid ingredients and mix well Form into balls and roll in sugar Store, chilled, for a week in waxed-paper-lined tins

Makes about 6 dozen sugarplums.



The Old Farmer's WEATHER PROVERBS

When the Moon lies on her back, she sucks the wet into her lap.

No Saturday without Sun, no girl without love.

OPINION

Been There, Done That, Let's Move On!

The year was 6500 B.C.: born in a cave — what you saw was all you needed to know from birth to death. The ratio of new information to known information was 1/100,000. By the year 1950 we knew what our parents knew. The ratio had advanced to 1/100. Recall and memorization were adequate methods for learning new information. In the year 1965, the popular saying of young people was, "Don't trust anyone over 30," and the ratio of new information to known information broke even at 1/1. By the year 2000 the ratio of new information to known information will be 100/1. At this point the human brain can no longer process the new information as fast as it receives it. We are drowning in knowledge.

We can no longer teach effectively using the same methods we did in the 1950s and '60s. The schools that have effectively prepared us or our parents will no longer effectively prepare our children to be "productive, contributing members of society."

Agricultural technology is certainly not exempt; it will advance more rapidly in the next five years than it did in the previous 50 years. Competencies necessary for job performance will change at an equally rapid pace. The rate at which agricultural technology is changing is such that by the time a student is trained for a skill-specific occupation, there is a good likelihood the skill or the occupation will be obsolete. Research shows that a person will change jobs at a rate of once every five to seven years. Keeping all these factors in mind, we realize that if we continue using the skill specific only approach, every five to seven years the average worker may have to go through a retraining process.

Research also shows that by the year 2000, an estimated 15,000,000 manufacturing jobs will require more advanced technical skills, and an equal number of service jobs will become obsolete. Fifty percent of developing jobs will require skills greater than those provided by existing educational programs. Sixty percent of today's students will work in jobs that don't currently exist.

To address these challenges, education/vocational education will need to design educational programs which will produce thinkers and problem solvers rather than assembly line robots. Common sense should tell us that students who can function in a variety of job situations won't require extensive retraining.

As we design programs, it will be important that we understand these challenges. To address these challenges, we will need to design secondary, post-secondary and adult programs that offer flexibility for training in multiple occupational areas offering a broad-minded spectrum of opportunity. We will need to incorporate, in a deliberate and organized way, adult educational opportunities into the overall educational picture. Adult educational programs should provide: advanced level job placement; job maintenance; updating.

Agricultural education is also faced with a challenge of dwindling personnel, resources and commitment as is true with much of the agriculture industry. To effectively address this challenge, we need to get serious about developing collaborative efforts for pooling resources from any or all educational and agricultural entities. A collaborative effort of networking as partners can provide dynamic opportunities for training the agricultural work force of the 21st century.

History teaches us, "To know the past is to forge the future." Understand the present, envision the future and move on.

To Look At Corn Contest Results

When you look at the data from the National Corn Growers Association yield contest, many things may be learned from the results and the information provided by the growers.

In 1994 a total of 3,172 corn growers from 24 states participated. Here are a few questions people are asking about corn production and answers from contest results:

• Is there one best corn variety to plant? In 1994 a total of 448 different hybrids were entered in the contest. The 417 winners planted 140 different varieties. This supports the idea that there are many good hybrids available to growers. Growers who select the best hybrids from those available in their area have a good chance of producing an excellent yield.

• Do farmers practice crop rotation? Growing the same crop year after year is not good management. In the 1994 program, 53 percent of the entries were planted following soybeans and only 25 percent were planted following corn.

To Look At Corn Fertilization

Looking at results from the National Corn Growers Association yield contest, we can look at two questions regarding nitrogen fertilization:

1. Do farmers overfertilize corn? Most research has shown that corn needs between 1.1 and 1.5 pounds of nitrogen to produce a bushel of corn. In 1994, the average yield of all farmers entered in the contest was 192 bushels. They applied an average of 180 pounds of nitrogen or about 0.94 pounds of nitrogen per bushel of corn. The winners in the program had an average yield of 203 bushels per acre with an average application of 198 pounds of nitrogen per acre or about 0.98 pounds per bushel. This information would support the conclusion that farmers do not overfertilize, not even to win contests!

2. Do growers sidedress nitrogen? Only 9 percent of the winning growers applied nitrogen in the fall. Fifty-nine percent applied some fertilizer before planting and 67 percent applied at least part of their nitrogen at sidedress time, the most environmentally beneficial time to apply nitrogen. Fifty-eight percent of the growers had a soil test taken before planting the crop.

To Properly Handle Livestock

Understanding cattle psychology and providing well-designed facilities will cut stress for producers and their cattle, according to Dr. Temple Grandin, Colorado State University.

Cattle have long memories. Animals that have been handled roughly will be more stressed and difficult to handle in the future.

However, animals handled gently and accustomed to the handling procedures will have very little stress when handled. Because of their long memories, cattle remember painful restraint methods such as nose tongs. Handling will become easier if you use a halter to hold the head and keep electric prod usage to an absolute minimum. If you use tail twisting to move a cow up the chute, let go of the tail when she moves to reward her.

Cattle will learn quickly to move when their tails are touched. The basic principle is to prevent cattle from becoming excited. They may become excited in just a few seconds, but it will take 20 to 30 minutes for the heart rate to return to normal in severely agitated cattle.

According to Grandin, the level of cattle stress depends on several things: the amount of contact with people, quality of handling, and genetics. Grandin recommends culling the few individuals with a bad temperament.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "Reward success, respect individuality and recognize problems as opportunities."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE BIG PICTURE

THE BIG PICTURE
December 10, 1995

Background Scripture:
Isaiah 51:1-8
Devotional Reading:
Acts 27:14-26.

Do you ever feel like going back to bed and pulling the covers over your head after you've read the morning paper? Disasters, violence, corruption, and prejudice are what the editors of our local newspaper put on the front page. If anyone anywhere is doing anything that is worthwhile, it is likely to be buried somewhere near the obituaries. Or is your newspaper different from mine?

If you don't read the newspaper, perhaps you watch the news on television or one of those talk shows where everyone washes their dirty laundry in public. Maybe you were one of those who for the better part of a year were glued to the O.J. Simpson trial. Regardless of which category fits you the result may be pretty much the same: a sense of helplessness, frustration and fear.

There are different ways we can choose to regard all the daily bad news. Alternative one is to reason that none of the bad news has anything to do with you and ignore it. The second option is at the other end of the scale: to feel you personally ought to be doing something about each and every problem the world is facing.

"BIG" OF US

The third choice is to be concerned and respond where and when you can, but leave the outcome in God's hands — which is mighty "big" of us considering that it always has been in His hands. That is one of the enduring values of the Bible — it presents us with the big picture against which all our little pictures have to be viewed. When we begin to despair about a situation in our lives or world, we need to look back, as Isaiah says, and "Hearken to me, you who pursue deliverance, you who seek the Lord; look to the rock from which you were hewn, and to the quarry from which you were digged" (51:1).

The stories our Bible tells are reminders to us that, in the long run, God's will and purpose prevail even though it seems a long time coming. "Look to Abraham, your father," Isaiah says, "and to Sarah who bore you, for when he was but one I called him and I blessed him and made him many" (v.2).

The story of Abraham is the saga of God's faithful providence and Abraham's trust in God, even when the fulfillment of the promise seemed a vain hope.

I pray daily for peace in the former Yugoslavia, in Ireland, in Sri Lanka and elsewhere because I am truly concerned. If and when I get a personal opportunity to do something positive to back up my prayers, I do so. For the rest, I leave it in God's hand and trust that His will and purpose will prevail. I do the same with the problems of our own nation: racial divisiveness, political turmoil, unemployment, social security, medicare, rampant materialism, and so forth. When I have prayed and worked the best I can, the rest is in God's hands.

IN GOD'S HANDS

It is good to be reminded of the big picture: "for the heavens will vanish like smoke, the earth will wear out like a garment, and they who dwell in it will die like gnats..." Why? Because God assures me: "but my salvation will be forever, and my deliverance will never be ended" (51:6). That promise is the one thing that I can trust, the one assurance by which I can live.

I won't say that what others say or do doesn't ever disturb me. But I am learning to live a life that is not anchored to the approval and encouragement of others. I can understand Isaiah's admonition: "fear not the reproach of men, and be not dismayed at their revilings. For the moth will eat them up like a garment, and the worm will eat them like wool; but my deliverance will be forever, and my salvation to all generations" (51:7, 8).

Tomorrow morning when I read my newspaper, you may be sure that, regardless of what the headlines scream, I will keep my mind focused on the big picture.

FARM FORUM

Editor:

Today the Regional Infrastructure for Sustaining Agriculture (RISA) concluded a two-day meeting at the Black Rock Retreat Center. Unfortunately no one from the press was there. This was a dynamic group of people from the Southeastern part of PA with a concern for agriculture. The objective was to increase our understanding of, and define our common vision for the food system of Southeastern Pennsylvania.

This group had different aspects of agriculture represented by not only farmers, but faculty from several colleges, a land developer, food handlers, the Extension Service, the Brandywine Conservancy, League of Women Voters, Rodale Institute and a variety of interests in agriculture.

We spent two days working on what we would like to see in the region in 2010. We see the need to work together. We have to be aware the region is beyond our farm or local township. Cities need to be made liveable. Food must be affordable to the poor of the country and at the same time the farmer must be able to make a profit. The profit would make it so that the farmer could pass on the farm to the next generation and that generation would see a reason to farm. Real estate taxes would not be the major support of the local schools.

Our first exercise was to look at the change in agriculture since 1930. It was obvious that change is very much a part of this period and that the world is becoming a smaller space. Boundaries do affect our markets, but NAFTA is affecting prices.

Ideally in 2010, we will be living together in harmony with room for the houses and farmers profitable because the local people are able to buy local produce. We will meet again and work on ways to get beyond the ideal and see how we can get the needed changes to take place. Hopefully the politicians can be aware of the importance of changing the tax system in a way that the school districts can raise needed revenue and the farmer and retired home owners won't have to pay an unfair share of this funding.

Stop Farm Welfare. It's time we stand up for ourselves. We heard the other night that farmers from several counties were going to Harrisburg to lobby for a one dollar a hundred increase for five months. A one dollar increase for five months is only temporary; it's not enough. What we need is to demand our dairies increase the price to the consumer 10 cents a gallon each month for five months and return it all to the farmer and then increase 10 cents a gallon each year to comply with cost of living increase; it is our product, our money they are working with. Sure the consumer will complain for awhile but they will buy it the same as gas which has gone up a dollar a gallon in the last 25 years and they still buy it; sometimes they buy more. This is true about most products we buy today, except farm products. Most workers are allowed a cost of living increase but not farmers. The government wants to keep taking from us and force us to accept their programs in order to live; this is another form of welfare; and they have more control over us than any other industry in this country.

We feel that if the price of milk is up for us where we could make a living we wouldn't have to have government programs. It's not just dairy, there is also the meat farmer.

We don't know what it cost them to raise their product, but we do know that when we sell a bull calf, sometimes we don't get enough to pay for breeding.

Fifteen years ago the farmer got 49 cents of the retail dollar. Today the farmer only gets 22 cents. What we have outlined above will help offset this difference.

Americans need food to live and yet they pay less for it than any other product.

Let's get together and see what we can do.

Editor's Note: This open letter to the President is reprinted at the request of the writer.

Dear President Clinton:

Hello! I am a dairy farmer in northeastern Pennsylvania.

My family is having trouble trying to make ends meet. We are milking Ayrshire cattle, and are a small part of this very large food chain. However, we are citizens of this great country.

I am 41 years old and have been in the agriculture business all my life. I've been married for 21 years and have two daughters. Our hearts are in the land and in producing the food for the United States, and the world. We also take pride in the fact that we are a part of the greatest nation in the world.

However, we are faced with a deck that is stacked against us. Our dairy industry insures all Ameri-

These buyers will get a percentage of the tobacco according to the amount they bought over 3-5 year average at auction. Tobacco will be divided out as such.

Remember, there is only 100% of the tobacco offered. What will the buyer do to get more tobacco?
1 - raise the price at auction, or
2 - buy on the farm

If the buyer buys on the farm he will tell the farmer that there's no commission to warehouse and that his price will be the same as at the auction. But, what will the on-farm buyer pay for low grade? If the buyer docks you on a 800 lb. skid - it could pay the commission for your whole crop selling at auction.

We like all buyers to buy at auction - we need your tobacco. We need a full warehouse first sale
Please color grade
• Put bright tobacco in one grade
• Put tips in one grade
• Put ground leaves in one grade
Watch your moisture-strip dry and keep green out!

Excellent Opportunity For Steady Income In Swine Production

Hostetter Management

Hostetter Management Company is a swine production management group with finishing contracts available within 100 miles of Harrisburg through Wenger Feeds. We are looking for farmers interested in exploring the option of constructing and operating 2100 head finishing facilities to grow feeder pigs for market. The feeder pigs are readily available through our existing 1400 head sow units.

Why consider a swine operation??
- Steady cash flow
- 5 year renewable contracts
- Opportunity for long term growth
- Nutrient management for manure control

Hostetter Management can provide information for construction of the facility and coordinate financing. We will instruct you in the management of the barn and offer steady cash flow throughout the 4 month growing period to run the operation. No need for you to finance the growing!

If you are a farmer interested in supplementing your income, we urge you to contact us as soon as possible. Let us put our 40 years combined experience to work getting you started in this expanding market.

The Perfect Place To Discuss Your Banking.

When farmers like you have financial needs, you don't have to come to us, we'll come to you. After all, running a successful farm doesn't leave much time for running to the bank. It's this kind of personal attention that farmers in Lancaster County and surrounding areas have been getting from Bank of Lancaster County for over 125 years.

So if you need working capital, a way to finance machinery, land, livestock, buildings, or a loan tailored to specific needs, look to the bank that's committed to your industry and to our area. At Bank of Lancaster County, decisions are made locally. And for you that means fast turnaround and flexible terms.

Why not give Bob Badger or Stan Michonski of our Agricultural Loan Division a call at (717) 397-7941? We're looking forward to talking to you about banking on your terms...on your farm.

Nutrena Dairy Focus Program Introduces...

Nutrient Economics

Nutrients - not ingredients - are the key to your herd's health and performance. By basing your feed decisions on this simple fact, you can cut the cost and increase the effectiveness of your total mixed ration (TMR). That's the principle behind Nutrient Economics. And the Nutrena Dairy Focus Program puts Nutrient Economics to work for you.

Dairy Focus Benefits:

- ❒ Maximum use of home grown forages and grain crops.
- ❒ Feeding strategies designed to meet herd health goals and production goals.
- ❒ Each Dairy Focus program is uniquely designed for individual operations.
- ❒ Strict quality control standards.

'Farmer' Preservation Is Answer To Save Farmland

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Thursday night at the Farm and Home Center was slated as a time to learn and share thoughts and ideas about guarding prime farmland.

After the three-hour meeting, Jim Shirk, agriculture services manager for the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry, said, "This meeting was not about farmland preservation but about farmer preservation."

His comment echoed the far-

This meeting was not about farmland preservation but about farmer preservation.'

mers' attitude that farmland is protected as long as farmers can profitably make a living on the land.

Presentations by representatives from business and farming communities, the planning commission, the tourist industry, and a panel of elected officials fielding questions from the audience centered on working together to keep the county as a leading national agricultural center and not to follow the demise of Los Angeles, which was at one time the leading ag producing country in the nation and has now fallen to 92nd place.

During the same period of time, from 1944 until the present, Lancaster County has managed to maintain its standing of being the 15th to 13th ag producing county, but leaders warned that the agricultural area is in grave danger of following Los Angeles unless steps are taken now.

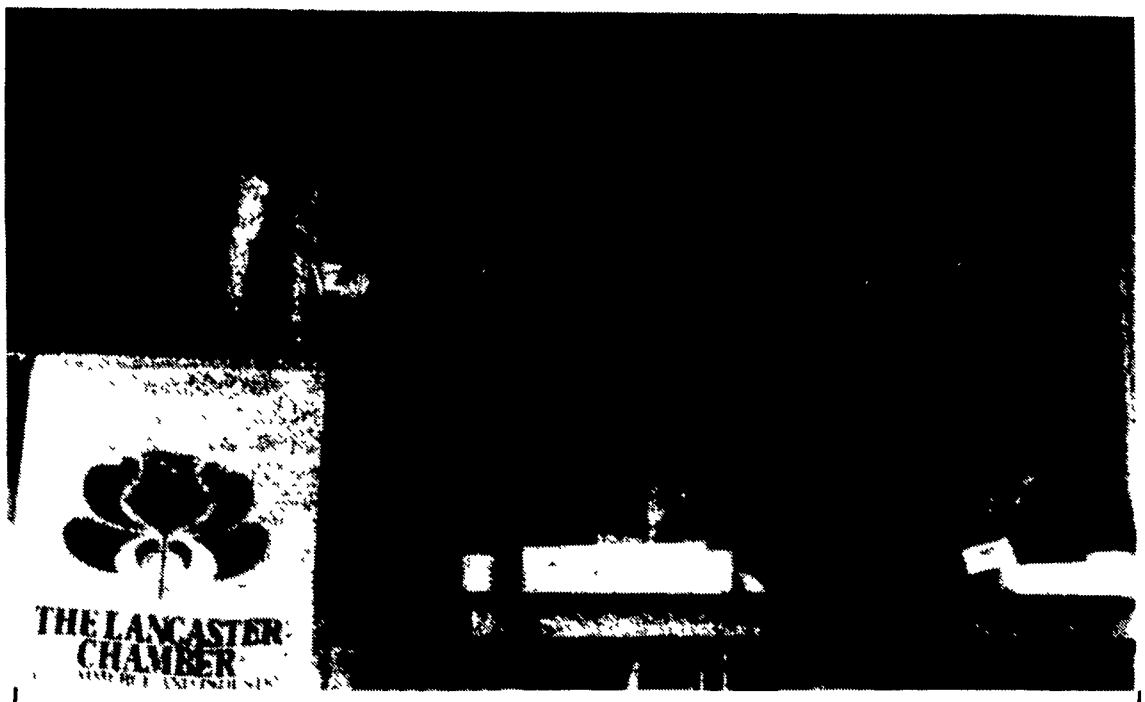
Ron Bailey of the Lancaster County Planning Commission said that while many defy change they should realize that the county is the result of change. Although the area is considered one of the prime farmland spots, it was at one time forest.

"Change isn't the problem, it's how we are changing," Bailey said. "We are coverting the most productive land in the world into lawn."

With aerial photographs of the area, Bailey illustrated how the county has sprawled over a 60 to 70 square mile area to hold about the same amount of people that 7½ -miles of the city holds. Bailey said the problem is that most homes are built on large lots.

In addition, there is the problem with automobiles. He said that eight vacant parking spaces for every car in the county are needed at all times or it is perceived that there is not enough parking.

Harry Flick of the Pennsylvania Dutch Convention and Visitors Bureau reported that tourists come to the area primarily to see the rural farmland. If it is swallowed up in development, the county will lose the $349 million and the many jobs the tourist industry creates.



Farmer Mike Brubaker addresses concerns from his perspective while Ron Bailey, center, of the Lancaster County Planning Commission, and Harry Flick, of the Pennsylvania Dutch Convention and Visitors Bureau, listen.

In a fiery speech, Darvin Boyd of Corestates Bank supported the need to preserve farmland for its social, economical, and culture importance.

"The problem is not growth, but how it is accomplished. The real land grabber is one house on 1½ -acres of land," Boyd said.

He spoke of the need for farmers to have the freedom to expand cottage industries, livestock operations, and whatever needs to be done to keep the farm viable. "Some ordinances are too restrictive," he said.

Boyd sees manufacturing, ag industry, and marketing as impacting each other favorably and necessary.

"Business growth is necessary and need not be construed as the enemy," he said.

Mike Brubaker, a farmer from East Donegal Township, told how the margin for profitability is much tighter for farmers than before. He encouraged farmers to develop positive relationships with neighbors in order to educate them and keep a farmer-friendly environment.

During the latter part of the meeting, questions from an audience of 150 were answered by a panel made up of Sen. Noah Wenger, 36th Legislative district; Rep. John Barley, 100th legislative district; Terry Kauffman, county commissioner, and Nelson Rohrer,

. . . the problem is that most homes are built on large lots.

Manheim Township board of supervisors.

Harold Musser, a Mount Joy farmer, voiced his frustration with zoning regulations in having to compile a stormwater runoff plan, land development plan, earth disturbance plan, manure managment plan, and attaining county approval for any possible ventures in expanding the family farm.

Musser sees the farmer as having no voting power when compared to the majority of the community. He believes his tax dollars go to bring more tourists to the area who like it so much they decide to move to the county, thereby learned that there are many benefits for agriculture instructors with membership in NVATA.

"There are three components to the agricultural educational aspects of the membership program," said Baker. "One is the classroom aspect, providing workshops and materials for the ag teacher. Second is the FFA component. Third is the materials for supervised agriculture experience, which is very important to ag education."

A highlight of the membership program is that, as technology changes rapidly, instructional materials and coursework will help ag teachers stay abreast of those changes.

Also, workshops will cover dealing with several hot issues in agricultural education, including the impact of animal welfare issues and show ring ethics. There are about 11 mailings per year to members about upcoming workshops and activities.

Baker said that now, about half of the certified ag instructors in Pennsylvania are members of NVATA, for a total of 101. Goals set three years ago by the NVATA include having 12,000 members by the year 2000. There were 800 new members at the beginning of the membership year on June 30 this year. Cost per membership is $155.

In Greenwood, which has a lot of support from the school board, according to Baker, 82 students were enrolled in ag instructional programs for grades 9-12. She is assisted by Wayne Zeigler, instructional aide.

Baker was graduated from Penn State with a degree in ag education in 1982. She taught in the Solanco school district in Lancaster County and then completed her master's degree at the Ur iversity of Delaware in 1987. She began teaching at Greenwood in 1987 and completed her doctorate in ag education at Penn State last year.

Baker will work to strengthen the work of the NVATA through the state and six regional associations.

At the conference, Bob Lauffer, ag instructor at Garden Spot High School, was appointed alternate vice president for Region VI, including the states from Maine to Virginia and West Virginia.

Also, Roland J. Duperron, Jr., ag science instructor at Northern Potter High School in Ulysses, was honored with the Ideas Unlimited Award for Region VI. This program recognizes teachers for developing and sharing their innovative ideas.

Duperron told Lancaster Farming that the idea for "rent a plant" began in 1993, which involved "renting" potted plants for teachers and businesses in the area. Each plant rental was 50 cents and higher per week. In 1994, the program started a "rent to own" plant program, involving large, hanging baskets. The program continues in 1996 and involves about 12 students from the 85 enrolled in the school's ag science program.

The purpose of the program, said Duperron, was to involve ag science students in the "learn by doing" methods of growing the plants as part of the startup horticulture program and learning the aspects of a business.

Duperron said that the enterprise was operated as a business by students, involving sales planning, contracts, billing, and scheduling. "We even provided business perks and breakfast meetings for the students," he said.

Last year, at the school, several Headwaters FFA members started a "caged fish" aquaculture system. Several raised about 300 trout and marketed them for stocking and consumption.

Duperron has been teaching at Northern Potter for 32 years.

Carroll Shry of Woodsboro, Md., was one of six individuals who won an Outstanding Service Citation last week at the conference.

Shry teaches agriculture education in Frederick County, Md. He served as past NVATA president and region VI vice president, in addition to president of the Maryland Agriculture Teachers Association.

Shry has authored a horticulture textbook called "Introductory Horticulture" and is writing an accompanying lab manual. The NVATA awards the Outstanding Service Citation to individuals who have contributed to the advancement of agricultural education on a regional or national level.

Dr. Samuel Curtis was presented with Honorary Life Member recognition at the conference. Curtis was recognized for his outstanding leadership and contributions to ag education on a state, regional, and national level.

Curtis served as a professor and eventually was named department head of the agricultural education department at Penn State. He has served as a distinguished visiting professor at Ohio State University.

The Outstanding Cooperation Award was presented to Nancy and Bill Campbell, owners of Hoss' Steak and Sea House.

Bill and Nancy Campbell attend and purchase project animals at dozens of local fairs each year. Nancy Campbell, serving as co-chairperson of the Pennsylvania FFA Association board of trustees, has helped to orchestrate Hoss's Fore FFA Golf Tournament, which has become the Foundation's most successful fund-raising event, raising more than $20,000 last year.

The award honors Hoss' commitment to the support of today's youth and the agricultural leaders of tomorrow.

Carroll Shry of Woodsboro, Md., was one of six individuals who won an Outstanding Service Citation last week at the NVATA conference in Denver, Colo.

From left, Nancy and Bill Campbell, owners of Hoss' Steak and Sea House, are congratulated by Merle Richter, NVATA president, as the Outstanding Cooperation Award winners of Region VI.

Region VI Ideas Unlimited Award winner was Roland Duperron, Northern Potter High School, left. He is congratulated by Merle Richter, NVATA president.

Performance Economics

DAVE SLUSSER
General Manager

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Do you want to track BST on a per-cow basis, and a group basis?

Do you want to know what it cost you to produce 100 pounds of milk on a monthly basis?

Do you want to know the individual cow's profitability?

Do you want a 12-month rolling net income for your herd and per cow?

The Pa. DHIA Performance Economics Program will do this and much more and it is confidential, simple and FREE.

Pa. DHIA Performance Economics is the first of its kind in the nation. It was developed jointly by Pa. DHIA, Dr. Steve Ford, farm management specialist at Penn State, and George Wilcox, senior extension agent, Erie County.

The program consists of a five-page instruction sheet, a one-page worksheet, a sample farm to follow, and a replica of the Pa. DHIA technician's laptop computer feed screen. You need to get Herd Summary I to get the full benefit of the program.

Pa. DHIA has requested time on Dairy Day activities to present this program to you. We are also requesting our county DHIA committees to schedule county meetings on Performance Economics.

Dr. Steve Ford or Dave Slusser will conduct these meetings.

If you cannot wait for a meeting, contact Judy Walker at Pa. DHIA. Our address is Orchard Road, University Park, PA 16802, or call 1-800-DHI-TEST and Judy will send the program out to Pa. DHIA members free.

Pa. DHIA has embarked on a multi-step plan to help our members fight back in these troubled times. The first step was MUN (Milk Urea Nitrogen) analysis to control feed costs. The second step is Performance Economics.

Our goal in performance economics is to get 10 percent of our membership on the program. If we get that many or more, we plan to redesign a portion of Herd Summary I to give you an 8, 10 or 12 month cash flow projection. Stay tuned!

Dairy Farmers Can 'Niche Market' Products to World

JOANNE F. MORVAY
Adams Co. Correspondent

CENTENNIAL (Adams Co.) — Niche marketing of specific products such as premium ice cream or blended cheeses appears to be the best way for American dairy farmers to break into the world arena, said Russell C. Redding, Pennsylvania's deputy secretary of agriculture.

Redding, a former Adams County dairy farmer, discussed dairy export opportunities and the 1995 Farm Bill with members of the Adams County Holstein Association at its recent banquet.

Redding said he expects the upcoming Farm Bill will "really throw the dairy industry to the free market."

If that happens, dairy farmers are going to have to create an export market for their product with very little help from the federal government — and they'll be doing it at a time when dairy farmers and processors from other nations are getting aid from their own governments to expand into the American market.

Redding said a New Zealand company recently expanded into Pennsylvania, purchasing a processing facility here with plans to move its product through the port of Philadelphia.

While the market appears saturated to American farmers, it appeals to New Zealand and other countries because it's a cash market and there are proven consumers of dairy products here.

The United States has an average surplus of five billion pounds of milk annually, Redding pointed out. To sustain profitability and survive without government subsidy, American dairy farmers are going to have to find a market for that milk, he said.

The world market is the easiest alternative, though it is not without risks.

Redding said opportunities for exporting bulk commodities seem limited because of stiff competition from New Zealand and Europe.

But some American companies are finding international success by selling one type of dairy product. Premium ice cream has found a home in Japan, where consumers appreciate the high quality and taste of the American product, he said.

The market for blended cheeses and yogurt also offers much opportunity, Redding said.

"But part of the challenge is getting (American) farmers to focus on the export market," he said.

Many processing lines are not set up to package products for overseas shipping and foreign markets, Redding said. The cost to retool the lines can be considerable and there is no guarantee of success.

But states that have aggressively pursued these markets — California and jurisdictions in the Midwest and the Southwest — are finding it is worth the effort.

"The greatest opportunity has been and continues to be in Mexico — even with the financial problems there and the devaluation of the peso," Redding said.

Pacific Rim countries such as Japan and South American countries like Brazil, Argentina and Colombia also prefer U.S. dairy products.

State agriculture officials remain very interested in creating an export market for Pennsylvania dairy products, Redding said.

And while some might think such an effort will only benefit Pennsylvania's dairy industry, Redding offered a sobering statistic that illustrated how important expanding into the world market could be.

Pennsylvania dairy represents about 40 percent of the state's economy.

"What happens to the dairy industry really affects what happens as a whole to this commonwealth," Redding said.

Cooperative Leaders To Hold Director Institute

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania Cooperative Directors can learn more about their roles as cooperative leaders at the twelfth Director Institute being held at the Nittany Lion Inn at The Pennsylvania State University, January 17-19, 1996.

The Institute is designed to provide support for both new and experienced directors, offering education about communication, strategies, performance evaluation, financial information, and a variety of other issues facing cooperative leaders.

Speakers include University personnel, cooperative staff, and business leaders. In addition to the formal sessions, there is the opportunity to interact with other directors and managers, sharing concerns and challenges.

Hal Doran, Interim Institute Director, said, "Cooperatives face both rapid change and economic pressure, and the Institute gives directors the foundation they need to provide clear direction. We want to provide information that will allow cooperative directors to be positive, strong leaders." Over 259 directors have graduated from the Institute in its 12-year history, along with participation by 70 cooperative management people from throughout the Northeast.

Secretary of Agriculture Charles C. Brosius, who will be a keynote speaker, encouraged directors to attend, saying, "Cooperative directors in the '90s face critical decisions about the future of their cooperatives. They must constantly reassess their mission, and evaluate the services they provide to their member-owners. This Institute will help board members gain the insight they need to fulfill their obligations."

Before his appointment as secretary of Agriculture by Governor Tom Ridge on March 1, 1995, Brosius served as vice-chairman of the Board of Agway, Inc. He was also a Director of Telmark. Inc. and a Director of The Agway General Agency and The Agway Insurance Company.

Brosius owns and operates with his wife Jane and three sons a commercial mushroom farm in Chester County.

For more information about the Institute, please call Kate Smith or Lora Zimmerman at 814-863-0644 or Hal Doran at 814-466-7294.

Brown Named Director

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.)—Robert Brown has accepted the county extension director position for Penn State Cooperative Extension, Somerset County, effective Nov. 1.

Brown has been conducting agricultural programs in Somerset County for the past 22 years.

Agricultural programs have focused on dairy production and management for both adults and youth. Brown has provided strong leadership to the 4-H dairy program and young farmer programs. In addition, Brown has conducted many other educational programs in other areas of agriculture.

Most recently, Brown has been working with other agents to conduct Dairy MAP programs that teach business management skills to farmers. He will continue to conduct agricultural programs in addition to his new assignment as county extension director.

As county extension director, Brown will provide administrative and programmatic leadership to the staff of Somerset County. He has accepted this position upon the retirement of Marie L. Kieffer, former county extension director and family living agent.

No-Till Vegetable Transplanting Shows Promise

Satellite Teleconference Looks At Critical Aspects Of No-Till

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Principles of no-till not only work well with corn, soybeans, and alfalfa with proper planning and management, but also with vegetable crops.

Nearly any crop that can be transplanted can benefit from no-till technology as long as the grower understands and applies the basics of no-till management, according to experts during the Mid-Atlantic Tillage Teleconference on Wednesday evening.

Broadcast throughout the region, the teleconference, originating from Penn State, was connected by satellite to many extension and other downlink sites in Pennsylvania and surrounding states. This year, the teleconference replaced the annual conference attended in person by speakers and company representatives at annual sites either in Pennsylvania or Maryland.

Accoring to Joel Myers, state agronomist with the Pennsylvania Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS), work with no-till vegetable transplanting began about five years ago. At that time, "We recognized some of the problems that we were having with soil erosion control in vegetable production," said Myers.

Field research began three years ago with a single-row planter. In 1994, a grant was provided to obtain three double-row no-till planters.

The planters will "do a good job of getting these plants into the ground and maintaining cover," said Myers.

The planters are available in the Lackawanna County area, the Bloomsburg, Columbia County area, and in Lancaster and York counties through the NRCS. Hoffman indicated that "probably the newest innovation in no-till crop production is moving no-till into the vegetable crops," especially into the greenwrap tomato production areas of northeastern Pennsylvania.

Steve Groff, tomato grower in Holtwood, Lancaster County, said, "I was really impressed in my first use of this planter, how well it was able to cut through the residue and be able to do the job."

Groff indicated that his farm is contoured and didn't encounter any problems using the transplanter. It is important, he advised, that there is enough weights on the press wheels to provide an excellent job of penetrating the cover crop.

Myers said that when using no-till for vegetables, it is important to achieve the right kind of weed control.

Another portion of the teleconference examined the importance of planning when using no-till forage and pasture renovation.

Dr. Harlan White, Virginia Polytechnical Institute, and Dr. Lynn Hoffman, Penn State extension tillage specialist, explained to growers how no-till seeding is the preferred way to make new forage and pasture seedings.

Key factors, according to White, are:

- Fertility. Soil pH and fertility through soil testing must be correct for seedings to be successful.
- Killed sod. All competitive sod and weeds must be taken care in advance by the appropriate herbicide.
- Depth of seeding. This is vital. The biggest problem Hoffman encounters is that the seed is placed in the ground too deep and germination doesn't occur. Hoffman indicated that seed depth is critical for successful forage establishment. "Do whatever it takes to get good soil-to-seed contact," said Hoffman.
- Inspection of seeding. The grower must get down off the tractor and inspect the seedbed to make sure the seed is at the correct depth and the soil contact is firm.
- Planning is vital. Better management is needed in most no-till operations.

Hoffman also conducted a presentation on making sure the right kind of maintenance on no-till equipment is done at the right time. He emphasized the importance of not waiting until March or April to do the necessary equipment inspections and repair when the equipment needs to be in the field, planting. Growers should make use of winter months to perform the maintenance.

Dr. Bill Curran, Penn State weed expert, spoke about some of the new herbicides available for no-till systems. Curran noted that Roundup Ready soybeans will be available on a limited basis in 1996.

During the live portion of the teleconference, Hoffman and guests answered questions from the audience through a toll-free telephone number. Hoffman and Penn State Extension speakers fielded calls on the pasture renovation segment from Washington County, Md. and Washington County, Pa. They answered questions regarding new herbicides from Lebanon County, Montgomery County, the state of Maryland, and Lehigh County. Questions on the no-till vegetable equipment were handled from Lehigh County, Dauphin County, and Washington County. Additional questions were answered on a variety of conference topics from Tioga and Northampton counties.

Select Sires Names Marketing Coordinator

PLAIN CITY, Ohio—Chris Sayers has been named marketing coordinator for Select Sires Inc., Plain City, Ohio.

In her new role, Sayers will publish all of Select's domestic dairy sire directories and produce other promotional pieces on Select's newly proven dairy bulls after each sire summary.

Futhermore, Sayers will coordinate the domestic tour program and supervise student interns who help conduct the tours through the Select Sires' facilities. In addition, Sayers will facilitate international semen orders and assist with the development of semen bid orders for international distributors.

Sayers is no stranger to the Select Sires family. Before joining Select's headquarters staff, she served as director of promotional programs for COBA/Select Sires Inc., one of Select's 11 member co-ops.

While at COBA, Sayers was editor of the bi-monthly newsletter which was sent to all the co-op's patrons and designed the monthly staff newsletter which was distributed to all COBA employees. Sayers also coordinated all dairy and beef advertising efforts, wrote press releases and prepared visual aids for use at membership meetings.

A former Select Sires student intern, Sayers began her A.I. career while attending The Ohio State University. Upon graduation in 1988, she joined COBA as member and public relations coordinator. Sayers continued her education while working full-time and received her master of science degree in agriculture from OSU in 1990. She was promoted to director of promotional programs in July of that year.

Sayers resides in Marysville, Ohio with her husband, Mark, and their infant son, John. She is an active member of The Ohio Holstein Association, having served as secretary and an elected delegate to the National Holstein Convention. Sayers has been a trustee for the Ohio Council of Cooperatives and served on the Council's Public Relations Committee. She is also a member of the Ohio Agriculture Communicators Association.

Select Sires is a family of 11 farmer-owned and controlled cooperatives, serving the largest number of co-op members in the U.S. The federation's basic objective is to supply livestock breeders with America's best genetics.

Cooperative's Status Given At Annual Meeting

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Several hundred farms gathered December 7 and 8 for the 31st Agway annual meeting and Council meeting at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center, Hershey. They heard their cooperative's new leader describe three important things he's learned, and actions he's taken to improve the business, after visiting hundreds of farms and Agway facilities and listening to suggestions from farmer members and employees during his first year in the top job.

Donald P. Cardarelli, Agway CEO and president since early 1995, said the cooperative is now more clearly focusing on its commitment to serve farmers with speed and flexibility. He reported Agway has improved performance of its basic ag and retail operations by managing these businesses closer to the customer. Agway also plans to take better advantage of its farm heritage, an asset that is valued by customers, he said. And Agway will continue to build alliances and partnerships that create growth opportunities, such as the new feed ingredients joint venture with Farmland Industries.

Cardarelli called 1995 a "bittersweet" year financially. Four major Agway businesses operated profitably in the fiscal year that ended June 30, he said. Agway's lease financing company, Telmark, operates in 24 states and is highly successful. Agway Insurance Company, operating in eight Northeastern states and Kentucky, posted its fourth consecutive profitable year, he reported.

"Agway Energy Products turned in a respectable profit and added customers despite the third warmest winter on record," he said. "AEP has a strong market presence. And our Country Products Group, a diversified collection of independently operated specialty and value-added businesses spanning the country, is profitable."

While Curtice Burns Foods was sold to Pro-Fac Cooperative during the year, Cardarelli explained the failure to also complete the sale of H. P. Hood in fiscal 1995 triggered a significant year-end write down to reflect Hood's market value. That, added to staff reduction costs at both Hood and Agway, contributed to a loss of $15.9 million on consolidated sales of $2.1 billion.

"By making these difficult but necessary changes, we will have a smaller, more efficient workforce and lower operating costs in future years," Cardarelli told the cooperative's members.

"Serving farmers is our primary mission," he said. "We have made bold changes in how we run these businesses. By putting our agronomy, feed and farm store operations together as one business, we are now better focused on serving farmers in geographic markets that make sense.

"I am very excited about the future of our cooperative," Cardarelli concluded. "We have made many difficult decisions needed to move us ahead. We have put in place a structure to allow us to respond quickly to customer needs, and we are changing in ways that will add value to your membership in Agway."

Ralph H. Heffner of Pine Grove, and Robert L. Marshman of Oxford, NY, chair and vice chair of the Agway board of directors, presided at the annual meeting and the Agway Council meeting that followed. This is the last of a series of three meetings scheduled. New York Agway members and committee leaders met November 29-30 in Syracuse, NY and New England members met December 4-5 in Springfield, MA. The Agway Council includes farm leaders of 95 advisory committees representing various geographical areas in the Northeast.

Charles C. Brosius, Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture and former Agway board vice chairman, was the featured guest speaker. He discussed expected farm policy changes resulting from the balanced budget efforts in Washington and the implications for Northeast agriculture.

Barbara Shinn of Jobstown spoke to the meeting representing young farmers. She and her husband, Paul, own and operate 575 acre Toyland Farms. Prior to the meeting, the Shinns joined 60 other young farmers and farm couples for a tour of the Agway Farm Research Center in Tully, NY. They discussed farming trends with Agway managers and research directors as guests of Agway. More than 1,000 young farmers have participated in Agway's young farmer program since 1979.

Five farmers have been elected to three-year terms on the 17-member Agway board of directors. They include Keith H. Carlisle, Greenwood, DE; D. Gilbert Couser, Pine Bush, NY; Andrew J. Gilbert, Potsdam, NY; Thomas E. Smith, Greenville, and William W. Young, Clifton Springs, NY. Carlisle replaced Brosius, a West Grove, PA mushroom grower, who resigned from the board when he was named PA Secretary of Agriculture in early 1995.

Three directors retired from the Agway board. Stephen P. James of Middlebury, VT, John H. Ross of Lowville, NY and John H. Talmage of Riverhead, NY had served a combined total of 58 years.

Agway is a farm supply cooperative owned by 87,000 farmers in 12 Northeastern states. Its 4,580 full time and 1,700 part time employees and franchised dealers provide rural and suburban customers with production supplies for farm and home, energy products, leasing and insurance programs, and natural state food packaging and marketing services. Agway facilities are located in hundreds of communities throughout the Northeastern states. It also operates specialized food packaging and seed facilities in several other states. Agway maintains headquarters and offices at several locations in Syracuse, NY.

Cumberland DHIA Honors Outstanding Member Achievements

BETH MILLER
Cumberland Co.

HUNTSDALE (Cumberland Co.) — Curtis and Ann Day of Shippensburg came away from the 76th annual Cumberland County DHIA Banquet with nearly every award.

For starters, their cows captured the 1995 awards for the county's all-time high in protein, in milk and in butterfat.

The Days' Tri-Day Astro Jet X-Eve posted the protein high with 1,085 pounds.

Their Miss Beautician Pearl, which was the county all-time high milk producer, recorded 40,433 pounds of milk.

That same animal logged the county all-time high in butterfat with 1,485 pounds.

The banquet at the Penn Township Fire Hall in Huntsdale also saw the Days win the county DHIA's first-place Herd Management Award.

Second place Herd Management Award went to M. Thomas Sheaffer. Paul M. Snyder captured the third place Herd Management Award.

Brymesser Farms took home the fourth place Herd Management Award and the fifth place award went to Fred B. McGillvray.

McGillvray also had the 2-year-old cow that posted the high in milk production.

The 2-year-old that logged the year's high in protein was in the herd of Mains Acres. Steve and Mary Reese had the 2-year-old that recorded high in fat.

The Days were back in the winner's circle again when their entire herd was named the top herd in protein for 1994-95.

Jet-Rae Farm of Shippensburg, owned by Ray Thrush, made the Somatic Cell Count Honor Roll not only for the county DHIA, but for the state DHIA as well.

Thrush, who has 76 cows in his herd, recorded a somatic cell count of 65,000 to place at the top of the county's honor roll and in third place statewide.

Also, local members were told how the DHIA began in October to test for milk urea nitrogen as another tool for gauging a herd's performance.

Milk urea nitrogen, or MUN, measures the efficiency by which nitrogen is used by an animal. Nitrogen is an important component for rumen microorganisms.

If MUN levels are too low or too high problems may exist in the ration that can harm an animal's performance, affect environmental pollution and cut economic efficiency.

MUN testing can help DHIA members adjust their ration to gain top production efficiency from their herds.

Other events at the Cumberland County banquet, which had the theme, "Celebrating 76 Years of Testing," included a presentation by the county's 1995 dairy princess, Lori Brownewell, and remarks by state director Neal McCulloch.

McCulloch is the chair of the county's DHIA local. Lonnie Wickard is the vice-chair and Michael Brymesser is the secretary.

The other directors of the Cumberland local are Harold Myers, Lee Hoover Jr., and Gerald Davidson.

retired from the Pennsylvania Electric Company as a manager of forestry.

As a real champion of resource conservation, Rossman is a past president of the state association, and a national member of the Forestry Conservation District. He currently serves on the school advisory board for the Department of Agriculture at PSU and deals with issues concerning land, water, and related resources.

"He is a driving force for Conservation Districts," remarked Robb Piper, assistant manager of local conservation when presenting the special service award to Rossman.

Clair J. Dumm, district manager for the Cambria County Conservation District; W. R. (Dick) Rossman, special service award winner, and Robb Piper, assistant district manager of the Conservation District.

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company has been presenting the "Outstanding Conservation Farmer Award" for more than 40 years. Representing Goodyear was David Corwin, regional director for the mid-Atlantic region. Corwin commended Cambria County as being "one of the best in the state in promoting the conservation program."

This year's outstanding conservation farmer is Gerald Leiden. Leiden's 284-acre farm is located in the St. Lawrence area of Cambria County where Leiden's grandfather began farming in 1867. Over the years, the Leidens have been implementing soil and water conservation practices on their farm. They have been laying out contour strips since the 1930s. Other practices include reduced tillage, spring development, and intensive grazing. The intensive grazing system was begun in 1986 with 12, one-acre paddocks. Today, Leiden has over 47 acres of paddocks, through which he runs more than 200 beef cattle.

On the cropland, Leiden grows corn, wheat, hay, and potatoes. The Leiden family has also implemented a nutrient management plan which takes into account the nutrient value of the manure being produced on the farm, while spreading it to crop needs in an environmentally sound manner. The Leidens also implement a conservation plan to prevent soil erosion.

Dave Corwin, Goodyear representative presenting the "Outstanding Conservation Farmer Award" to Gerald Leiden and his wife, Bernadette, of St. Lawrence.

The Leiden Family includes Gerald and his wife Bernadette, sons, Chris and Thad, and daughters, Stephanie and Melissa.

In accepting the award, Leiden was quick to point out that the award was not just for him but for the entire family and he remarked, "This makes me very proud of my family."

Every acre on your farm is an individual challenge. Filled with its own set of obstacles. But you can be confident every one of those acres can produce for you. So

MAKE EVERY ACRE COUNT.

And watch your fields deliver come harvest.

about the day-to-day worlds of others within a farm-city community, and most have said they enjoyed the experience and gained a new or heightened respect for others.

This year was no different, except that (perhaps this year especially) the city participants seemed especially awed by the amount of business work and business attitude with which their farmer-partners operate their farms.

In most years past, in describing their experiences, it seemed that city participants put more emphasis upon the long hours and intense physical labor and dedication that characterized the work of farming partners in the job-exchange program.

This year the highlight of expressions of mutual respect between the farm and city participants seemed to be that they really face the same types of business workload challenges and demands — financial awareness, paperwork, planning, searching for efficiencies, continuing education, sharpening business skills and relationship skills, and being still being involved in their families and communities.

While the farm participants commented on the city workers hours or service to their businesses, the city participants commented on the fact that the entire farm family works in the family farm business, and that it is still a seven-day, 24-hour job to operate a farm.

In his discussion of his experience, Phillips gave a humorous accounting.

He said that as a youth and a member of the Boy Scouts, he had the opporotunity to go to a farm and milk a cow by hand.

As an adult on the Dale Hostetter and Sons Farm in Bellegrove, with a herd of about 100 registered Holsteins, Phillips said, "All the imagery I had, and the recollections I had, gave way to the reality.

"The Hostetter family opened their barn door to me and gave me all the chores I guess they thought I could handle," Phillips said.

He shoveled manure.

Phillips talked about the large meals provided him and the work that burned it off.

He also commented on the decorations in the Hostetter household, telling the audience about these pictures of cows hanging on the walls and all with an apparent "Greta Garbo" complex, on profile, facing to the right.

Phillips continued, talking about the equipment, the ride he got in the tractor while spreading manure, modern milking techniques, the medical care and environmental attention that the cows receive, the attention to dietary and nutritional needs of the cattle for peak health and performance, the telephone calls, the paper and office work, the labor, the organization, family support, and the fact that work is everyday.

"There is quite a different amount of commitment (on the farm) than folks in the city are used to working with," he said.

Both men seemed to easily find words of mutual respect and admiration for each other.

Hostetter told of his city-work experience with Bob and visiting Phillips' insurance office, describing the many person-to-person relationships that are part of the job, the computerization, the paperwork, the efficiencies and efforts to provide a competitive service that attracts and keeps customers.

Hostetter said it was also very obvious that Phillips truly cared about the people he served, recalling that Phillips made a distinction between the difference of being an insurance "salesman" and an insurance "agent."

According to Hostetter, Phillips said he does not push people to buy anything they don't want or need. Hostetter said Phillips described his role as one who is to talk with customers about what they want and to answer questions and facilitate their claims as quickly as possible.

On the women's side of the exchange program, Jan Boyer told of her visit with Bonnie Wenger. She said that Steve and Bonnie Wenger and Steve's father Glen run their farm "much like anyone would run a business."

She said she was impressed with the efficiencies in feeding and caring for the turkeys, the dairy cattle, the fact that they daily track feed costs and futures, their custom field work business, and that they diversified.

Boyer talked about helping to "dump" (place by age groups into rearing areas) turkeys in the barn. She said that in less than two hours the work crew had placed 27,000 turkeys.

She also mentioned visiting a neighboring farm where calves were being raised, and riding the farm's combine and, tractor.

Perhaps the most striking statement was Boyer's observation that many small businesses involve a husband and wife team effort and that most farms are that way.

Boyer said the impression may be that farm women get to stay home instead of working, but that she learned that farm women are very much, "working mothers," who probably have it tougher than working mothers outside of farming, because, "It's tough to get a babysitter at five in the morning, or around midnight when calves are being born."

Of Wenger, Boyer said, "I admire her ability to juggle all the responsibilities and to do it well."

Boyer also commented on how Steve and Bonnie went to Germany for two weeks to share knowledge of farming and efficiency. She said that it spoke of the Wenger's devotion to their family and business.

On top of that, Boyer said, "Farmers do a lot of volunteering. Bonnie is involved with the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, FFA and Ag in the Classroom."

For her observations, Bonnie said she never realized how much work went into creating advertising for newspapers, magazines and television.

And she said that she noticed the two actually shared some things in common when she arrived at Boyer's house to report for work to find a copy of Lancaster Farming at the door.

Wenger said the phone calls, the ideas, the homework needed in knowing her clients' businesses and all the followup work made her realize, "All in all, we face the same challenges."

The Lebanon Farm-City Program has been recognized by the state in previous years for its tours and mail events, in addition to a job exchange program and banquet.

Under the leadership of the late-season dry weather — excellent for curing. Many growers expected the price to top $1.40, perhaps even as high as $1.50 per pound. (For comparison, the top price of tobacco at the auction was $1.61 in 1990.)

Last year, on opening day, 350,000 pounds of tobacco were sold for an average price of $1.15 per pound.

This year, one buyer from Mount Joy who wanted to remain anonymous was intent on getting a $10,000 check — looking for $1.50 per pound for his cash crop — or not selling at all. "It's a real fine crop this year," he said.

On Wednesday at the start of the auction, 425,000 pounds were on the floor and 64,385 pounds were sold for a top price of $1.27 per pound, offered by the warehouse. Top price for other buyers paid was $1.25 per pound. Average price was $1.24 per pound. Some lower grade tobacco sold for about $1.10-$1.15 per pound.

The county's number one cash crop had a value of $18.13 million in 1994, encompassing 8,250 acres with a yield of 16.82 million pounds, according to the 1994-1995 Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service summary.

The season continues every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday until the week before Christmas. After New Year's Day, the sale resumes until about mid-February.

There were about 424,000 pounds of Maryland 609 tobacco on the floor at the sale Monday, and 61,328 pounds were sold. The same day last year was a Paradise Tobacco Auction record with a total of 636,000 pounds on the floor.

Lebanon Farm-City Program Catalyst For Mutual Respect

Lebanon Area Chamber of Commerce and its Farm-City Committee members, the variety within the overall program was scaled back last year to a job exchange program and a banquet at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds.

The banquet however, was much expanded when it was moved into the large convention building at the fairgrounds, owned by the Lebanon Exposition Corporation.

Designed as an oversized, high-ceilinged barn, the exposition center provided a large space and additional floor space in adjacent rooms so that the committee was able to incorporate aspects of the former mall display.

The center of the large hall was filled with round white tables covered in red-and-white checkered table clothes. Along with white chairs and Poinsettias centerpieces, some of the decoration reflected the pending Christmas holiday.

Midway along each wall was a stage and microphones. Between stages were displays of agricultural equipment, etc.

Commodity promotion groups were well represented and provided some of the hors d'oeuvres during the first hour preceeding the banquet.

Four different local musical entertainers took turns performing during the first hour, alternating between the four different stages.

Kristin Border, 1994 Miss Pennsylvania and last year's Farm-City special guest served as master of ceremonies for the event this year. Originally from Glen Rock in York County, since last year she took a job in Lebanon as an account executive for a local advertising agency and now lives in Mechanicsburg.

The 1995 Miss Pennsylvania, Linette Mertz, daughter of John and Raelyn Mertz who are partners in Mertz Brothers Dairy Farm in Kutztown, was this year's special guest and provided entertainment by singing a selection of country songs.

Of the entertainment, U.S. Rep. George Gekas had been scheduled to serve as one of the musical performers, but schedule conflicts prevented him from attending.

Also during the banquet, a sheep-to-shawl demonstration was setup in one of the corners of the hall, and the resulting shawl was auctioned toward the end of the evening and sold to a county commissioner.

The catered sit-down buffet meal featured Bell & Evans' award-winning Lebanon County roast chicken along with filling, vegetables, etc.

Kenneth Winebark, of Myerstown, former county dairy agent, gave the invocation and benediction.

Twelve high-value door prizes were presented this year and some were unusual.

(As a program planning improvement from last year, instead of repeating offering a number of lesser-value door prizes which extended the banquet into the night, the amount of time spent on distributing door-prizes was shortened to improve the enjoyment of the program participants, as well as providing door prizes which would pique more public interest.)

Each door prize was a combination of gifts, with all receiving five pounds of Kutztown bologna.

For example, the first prize was a five-course dinner for eight at Country Fare Restaurant, five pounds of Kutztown bologna, and a golf umbrella donated by a funeral home.

Among some gifts such as a toy wagon, peddle tractor, coin set, gift basket, travel vouchers, artwork and homemade quilts was a surprise donated by Wen Crest Farms.

Wen Crest Farms was featured in Lancaster Farming in past years when it expanded from its one-farm operation of dairy cattle and turkey production to purchasing a second farm and building some of the biggest contract turkey production houses.

Rita Myer won the prize and when it was presented, out from a side room came two men supporting two long poles on their shoulders. From the poles, decorated with red bows, was suspended a wooden turkey crate complete with a live, white domestic turkey from the Wen Crest farm.

The winner was told she could exchange it for a frozen or fresh dressed bird.

Of the two quilts presented, one was from the owners of Wenger's Farm Machinery in Myerstown. Glenn Wenger explained that the quilt was originally purchased by Carl and Margaret Wenger at the 1995 Brethren Disaster Relief Auction held at the fairgrounds.

He took the opportunity to inform the group that a May 2 fund raising banquet is scheduled to be held at the fairgrounds in memory of a deceased grandchild of Carl and Margaret and that the proceeds from the banquet are to be donated to the Brethren Disaster Relief program.

Another quilt distributed as a door prize was handcrafted by members of the Lebanon Quilting Guild. It was a red and white three-fractured star pattern with a heart-design stiched in white blocks. It also had a commemoration of the Farm-City Banquet stitched on the back.

It was announced that next year, the Quilters Guild is to design and create a quilt specifically to commemorate the concepts of the Farm-City program, with aspects of farm and city incorporated into the design.

Dairy Quiz Bowl Challenges Youth To Learn

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—The results of the 1995 North American International Livestock Exposition (NAILE) 4-H Dairy Quiz Bowl are now etched in livestock history. Out of 21 states competing, top honors went to the Ohio State 4-H Club.

Top three overall team placings and the honorable mention are as follows:

•Honorable Mention—Minnesota; Team Members: Jim Arthur; Janelle Jensen; Katie Simon; Nathan Simon. Coaches: Brian Broulik; Bernie Jensen.

The Dairy Quiz Bowl is comprised of four member teams who compete against each other. Senior 4-H club teams are awarded points for correctly answering questions concerning the dairy industry, dairy production, dairy health care, and agronomy.

There are three phases to the competition. The first phase involves each contestant taking a 50 question test which is worth 100 points. This test determines how the teams rank. From these results the teams are seeded in brackets accordingly.

The second phase entails team questions. Each team answers five questions, each valued at 10 points.

The last phase consists of the toss up round, where the first team to signal with the correct answer to the question within five seconds receives the points. If any three members on a team answer three questions in a row, that team has the opportunity to receive a bonus question.

After all three phases are completed, the team with the most compiled points wins the competition.

Dr. George Heersche Jr., Extension Dairy Specialist at the University of Kentucky and a 4-H Dairy Quiz Bowl founder, said, "The Dairy Bowl stimulates them (4-H members) to learn more about the dairy industry." He believes this competition provides 4-H Club members a chance to travel to events such as NAILE, and to meet new people. Heersche also noted that club members "learn how to handle pressure and win and lose graciously."

increasing the farmers' problems.

Barley said that he recognizes the need for farmers to have a more simplified system. Farmers don't mind complying with regulations, but if they go through all the preliminary planning they should be guaranteed the plans can receive approval and officials should not use what Wenger refers to as stall tactics.

"The pendulum has swung too far to the side of the regulator. It's time to swing back to the middle but not at the expense of good planning," Barley said.

Rohrer said that it is important for farmers to realize that builders and other industry people complain of too much regulation also.

Cathy Ascroft from New Holland expressed dismay that elected officials supported new roads such as a Route 23 bypass and farmland preservation.

"How can new roads help farmers whose land will be taken for roads?" she asked.

. . . parking spaces for every car in the county are needed at all times or it is perceived that there is not enough parking.

Wenger, Barley, and Kauffman see new roads as a necessity for farmers who are at risk transporting farm machinery on heavily traveled roads. They believe that studies are needed to find ways to solve the traffic problem by using as little farmland as necessary.

Rohrer said that he believes the county must consider using public transportation now because even if new roads are built, traffic will continue to increase.

Dan Garrett, a Warwick supervisor, expressed his concern that officials can with a stroke of the pen reduce a farmer's equity when they change residential areas into agricultural zones. He also challenged the effectiveness of land preservation programs by pointing out the shortage of money available and the backlog in approving applicants for the program.

Panel participants explained the dilemma officials face in establishing property rights and regulatory legislation and of the need to find a way for all to share in the cost of

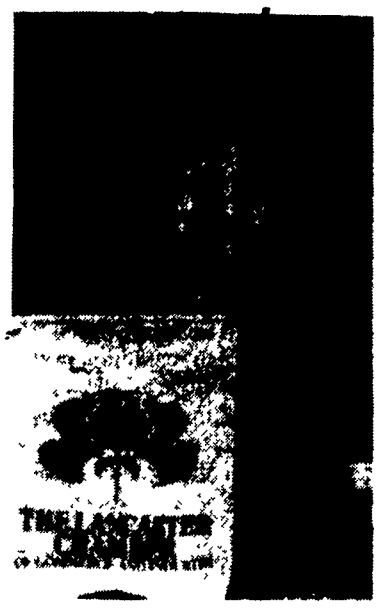
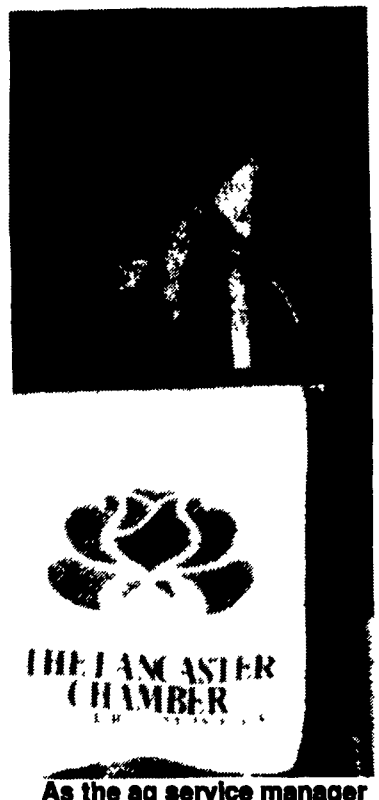
About 150 people attend the meeting, which was advertised as "Lancaster County — the Next Los Angeles?"



Darvin Boyd of Corestates Bank maintains a positive outlook for farming despite the obstacles. He said, "Anything worthwhile is a challenge."

Musser- . . . believes his tax dollars go to bring more tourists to the area who like it so much they decide to move to the county, thereby increasing the farmers' problems.



As the ag service manager for the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Jim Shirk brought together people offering different perspectives on Lancaster agriculture.

ATTENTION

609 TOBACCO FARMERS

In 1979 Bobby Oldham and E.J. Parker came to Lancaster Co. They brought 609 tobacco seed to Lancaster Co. tobacco farmers. In 1980 they returned as E.J. Parker Tobacco Co. and started buying 609 tobacco. Bobby and E.J. wanted Lancaster Co. farmers to have a tobacco crop they could market yearly instead of waiting years for buyers to come around.

Parker Tobacco made a lot of friends among the farmers. Bobby Oldham, H.M. Bowen, and Ron Bowen bought tobacco at receiving stations in the Lancaster/Quarryville area. We enjoyed working on a personal basis with each farmer.

In 1985, the farmers decided they wanted an auction. Parker Tobacco became Bobby Oldham Tobacco and we supported the auction. In 1986 we told all our customers we were going to support the auction. We placed ads in the Lancaster Farmer and visited our customers asking that they support the auction also.

For 10 years we have bought 95% of our tobacco at the auction. Our share of tobacco has slowly gone down over the last 10 years. We feel we are being treated unfairly.

We need more 609 tobacco than we are receiving at auction, so we would like to ask our customers to come see us at our receiving station in Quarryville. We are located behind Ross' Feed and Grain at 27 N. Church St.

We will pay top prices for your good 609 tobacco. Please stop by and visit Bobby, H.M., and Ron or call (717) 786-6135 and we will come see you. We look forward to seeing our friends and customers.

cans a wholesome food supply, and we do our part to make sure that it is, but the way we get paid for our hard work is way behind the times.

Way back in 1915 and after World War I there was trouble in the industry; then the Department of Agriculture stepped in to protect the inhabitants of America. To protect everyone's health and safety and to provide an abundance of good food.

The way they did this was to give the cooperatives the authority to speak in the best interest of the producers of milk, and to handle the milk in such a way as the country needed. They did this by deeming them the power of voting for the producers of milk.

Granted, back then no one had telephones or even a car so the co-ops helped the producers and at the same time helped the inhabitants in supplying them with an abundant supply of wholesome food. As time went on the co-ops got bigger and stronger and always provided money to their producers but also discovered many by-products of milk and also marketed them to make money for the dairies.

The problem we have today is not with the government but with what the co-ops are letting the government believe. I personally feel that we have lost our say as co-op members. The way we get paid suits them and the handlers and the processors and the retailers fine, as long as we keep providing them with the raw products.

We have federal orders — each one is supposed to handle milk for the people in each marketing area and to always provide an adequate supply of wholesome products by paying the producers a good market price for all the products that they sell. Today we have four classes of milk in our federal order. Class #1 is the fluid class, class #2 includes cream and some cheese, class #3 is for ice cream and cottage cheese, and class #3A for powder to sell world-wide.

In order to change anything in our order you have to have a majority vote by only the producers of the milk involved. In 1989 we in Order 2 had two classes of milk: #1 fluid, #2 all other products. Each one was paid a different amount and always paid but, with an average the more numbers you have to average the lower the score if you don't increase the starting price.

The producers now discovered that we have too many classes of milk which lowered our over-all milk price but now we can't change it, and we are losing too many farms.

Please understand that 25 large co-ops handle 80 percent of all the milk in this country today and they tell us that all the producers are satisfied with their price. I am asking from my heart to please do a survey for yourself and truly, see the plight of the farmers, we don't ask for much and we can do a lot with little, but not if it costs us more money to produce it than we are getting back and are losing our farms, our land and our spirits.

Please, the money is already being made on the milk sold today without any price supports, but the co-ops are taking more than their share. I feel getting more efficient is good but the reason they are keeping the price down to us is so we the few farmers that are left will make up for the lost producers. But we are working on losing our equity and our health and our spirit because we cannot keep up this pace for much longer.

If you could help us amend the agricultural marketing laws to suit us we will always produce enough milk for you forever.

Also if you have large herds of cattle in any given area you quickly mess up your environment. We in the mountains of Pennsylvania have a unique ecosystem and always try not to mess up our land. We handle our waste well and return the nutrients back to the soil so it will help make more milk in the future.

Thank you for taking the time to read this, Mr. President, and may God bless you and your family.

The dairy farmers of this country owe Congressman Gerald Solomon (R-NY) a great deal of gratitude for the vitally important role he has played in fending off total and immediate deregulation of the dairy industry.

Through his leadership efforts during the recent debates of the Budget Reconciliation Conference Committee, Congressman Solomon was instrumental in preserving—for now—the Federal Milk Marketing Order System, which is crucial to dairy farming. Without the Federal Order System, chaotic milk marketing conditions would have emerged that ultimately would have harmed farmers financially to the tune of more than $1.5 billion annually.

While current rumblings in Washington indicate that the federal dairy policy debate is far from over, Congressman Solomon must be commended for being a strong and loyal friend to dairy farmers and be encouraged to continue his diligent efforts in representing our best efforts.

As president and chairman of Dairylea Cooperative Inc., a milk marketing cooperative with more than 2,500 farmer-members in the Northeast, I say thank you to congressman Solomon and wish him continued success in Washington.

Added Simple Sugars May Increase DM Intake, Reduce N Waste

LISA HOLDEN
PSU Extension
Dairy Specialist

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The use of liquid supplements which are often molasses-based and high in sugar content seem to be increasing in many dairy operations.

Technological advances in the liquid feed industry in recent years have increased the variety in the product lines being marketed to go beyond just a molasses and urea mixture to include products containing fat, ruminally and undegraded protein, as well as various vitamins and minerals and other ingredients.

Processing advances now make it possible to blend many different ingredients together into a variety of products designed to increase dairy feeding options.

While research data on specific new products may be somewhat sparse, there is a fairly good base of research on the effects of molasses and more specifically sugar in dairy rations.

Microbial protein yields have been shown to be directly related to the supply of fermentable carbohydrate in the rumen.

Starch degradation from cereal grains can vary with processing, but sugar (from molasses in liquid supplements) is readily fermented in the rumen.

In some studies, feeding additional sugar (either in the form of cane molasses or as sucrose) increased feed intake, organic matter digestion, and microbial protein production.

In a recent study in the Journal of Dairy Science, feeding sugar did not improve milk production, but did seem to transiently increase dry matter intake during the first few weeks of lactation.

Using molasses to improve palatability and intake of feeds has been done for many years, and increasing dry matter intake often results in increased milk yields.

In addition to liquid feeds, some non-traditional feed sources such as bakery wastes and candy wastes will provide sugar to the ration. However, excessive amounts of sugar in the rumen may lead to rapid fermentation and a lowering of pH which will be detrimental to rumen function and digestion of nutrients.

Using bakery and candy wastes as sources of sugar will likely also provide fat to the ration, which can increase energy density and may be beneficial as long as total fat levels are in an appropriate range.

Rations which contain high levels of good quality haylage or pasture are highest in ruminally degraded protein and are most likely to benefit from the addition of sugar.

Adding a source of sugar to the ration may result in more of the ruminally degraded protein being utilized resulting in less nitrogen wastage, increased microbial protein production and potentially increased milk yields.

Old and long-awaited dreams of a better home are often started only to be halted, never to be completed, simply due to a visit from the tax assessor. In our area this very moment, there is a grandmother and a grandfather, both very honest, very kind, very hard-working individuals and both now living on a fixed retirement income. Today their dream house stands only partially built, solely because of this thing called fair property taxing.

About 18 years ago, with their last child near graduation, they felt they might finally be able to move out of the old run-down farm house and into a new one, but the more they planned and figured, the farther out of reach their new home became. That is until they hit upon the idea of building the house at the rate of a small affordable amount each month. On a month to month basis they felt sure they could complete the house prior to their retirement and throughout the next three years of 1977, 1978, and 1979 they built what they could with their spare time and money. So thrifty were and are these two that they had even used a substantial amount of salvaged shipping 2 by 4's, salvaged boards, and economy or seconds 2 by 4's for the interior petitions. In 1979, while feeling rather proud of what they had accomplished thus far, the tax assessor paid them another of his numerous visits. With the house roughly one-third completed, please note the roughly one-third completed, the tax assessor gave these two honest, hard working, and ingenious individuals a real rewarding slap in the face by arrogantly stating, "Of course you realize that you have exceeded your legal allotted construction period. By law you must now be taxed at 80 percent of the estimated totally completed value of this house." Naturally this just flabbergasted these two industrious individuals to no end. How could any supposedly fair and equal taxing law be so totally unfair and just downright dishonest in the eyes of both man and God?

Once again this thing they call fair taxing, once again this property taxing system raised another of its many ugly heads. Apparently the noncompassionate, noncaring and impatient school district just couldn't wait a few more years to place their hands deeper into the pockets of these two individuals. Due to the impatience of the county, the impatience of the school district and the additional property taxes, these two individuals no longer had the extra money each month to purchase any additional construction materials. What would have been spent for matieals, now has to be set aside just to pay the additional property taxes. For the last 14 years or more the dream house has remained as it was on the day of the tax assessor's visit. The exterior looks almost finished, but step inside and you see only open studded partitions. Not one square inch of finished surface exists within the four walls of this would-be dream house. No matter where you choose to stand within this house, upon looking upward, you will see only the underside of the exterior roof. Stand in any room and look left, look right, look forward, and look to the rear, you can see each and every outside wall and corner of the house. The ugly and unfair property taxing system stopped this house stone cold dead.

No taxing system should punish and thwart the ingenuity, skill and progress of honest hard working individuals!

No taxing system should be an annual punishment by taxation for any improvements made to one's property, whether for comfort or convenience!

An expert carpenter would be hard pressed to find enough house here to classify as one-third completed and definitely not 80 percent. The unfairness, the curelty, the insensitivity, the destructiveness, the regressiveness, the downright rotten use of this thing they call fair property taxing has absolutely no legitimate or moral reason for being used in this day and age. If the true story of these two grandparents isn't enough to demonstrate the urgency of dumping this inhumame taxing system, our society has really and truly become a nation controlled by the wealthy and totally self-serving elite.

Come on, let's all get wiser, more compassionate, more considerate, and less demanding of what others have struggled to earn and build. Let us all finally arrive at the only true, fair, honest and just means of raising revenues for the education of our children. Let us all agree to completely dump any and all unequal pain taxing of properties of any type, business or private, and strictly and solely use a tax that causes equal taxing pain at all levels of income.

Neither the sales tax nor the property tax is a tax of fairness or of equal pain. The wealthy individual, absolutely does not feel any taxing pain from either the property tax or the sales tax. The low or fixed income individual, absolutely receives severe taxing pain from both. The only equally fair and equally painful taxing system is the taxing of all income with allowance made for low income and/or disabilities.

American Farmland Trust Denounces Farm Policy Proposals

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Denouncing most House and Senate farm policy proposals on the environment as a betrayal of farmers who are good land stewards, American Farmland Trust recently urged the White House to do away with windfall farm subsidies in favor of the conservation incentive programs now sought by most farmers and the public.

At the USDA Farm Forum, AFT President Ralph Grossi said the proposals would fail to bring about needed commodity program reform and a more market- and conservation-oriented approach to agriculture. Instead, he said they would roll back a decade of agricultural conservation policy, penalizing those who have voluntarily met compliance measures while rewarding those who have not.

Grossi, a third-generation northern California rancher and president of the national farmland conservation group since 1985, said that unless the proposals are significantly altered, his organization would call on President Clinton to veto them.

"Most of the major farm bill proposals do exactly the opposite of what they should," Grossi stated. "They continue payments to a minority of farmers without any proof of need, insulating them from market forces. Others gut environmental protection funding and policies that increasingly are the only justification for governmental support of agriculture."

Specifically, he said the proposals would weaken conservation compliance measures supported and adopted by most farmers, terminate farmland protection programs, end wetland protection, and slash the Conservation Reserve Program.

"No self-respecting farmer or farm organization who takes pride in land stewardship should support this anti-conservation legislation," said Grossi. "No politician who professes to want positive change should support this return to the bad old days of no-strings government handouts and environmental negligence.

"We call on the Clinton administration to veto this legislation unless Congress takes a fundamentally different approach that does not victimize farmers who take their stewardship responsibilities seriously and taxpayers who will pay the bill."

Ag Department Names Regional Office Director

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—On behalf of Gov. Tom Ridge, Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius recently announced the appointment of Carolyn Rutter of Dover, York County, as director of the department's regional office in Summerdale, Cumberland County.

"I'm pleased that Mrs. Rutter has agreed to serve as an advocate for agricutlure," Brosius said. "She will join a team that works to safeguard Pennsylvania's abundant food supply and meet the Governor's goal of promoting agriculture's profitability and visibility."

Rutter has been the co-owner of Rutter's Livestock Farm in Dover for over 30 years. She managed a 1,000-sow swine operation, and served as the farm's financial manager. She also acted as purchasing agent for the farm's grain, feed ingredients and livestock supplies.

Rutter attended Gettysburg College and completed the Pennsylvania Laboratory Directors and Cooperative Directors program at Penn State University.

In 1990, Rutter received the Outstanding Service to Agriculture Award from the York County Farmers Association.

Rutter has been a board director of the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council since 1993. She is a member of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the National Federation of Independent Businesses and the Dover Township Industrial Development Committee.

The department's regional office serves farmers and consumers in Adams, Cumberland, Dauphin, Franklin, Lancaster, Lebanon, Perry and York counties.

'Farmer' Preservation

farmland preservation.

Gerald Erb, a production farmer, expressed concern for the ramifications of enlisting in land preservation. He questions whether there will be independent ownership when his son becomes manager of the family farm.

Barley said that farming will not be the same as in past generations. He expressed the need that those who set policy resolve not set bureacratic and cumbersome regulations.

Kauffman said that he sees a void in the farming community becoming part of the legislative process. He challenged farmers to become involved in lobbying and in municipal leadership.

"If we lose ag in this community, we will lose our culture and work ethic. Make a commitment to get involved," Kauffman said.

Rohrer said that citizens are constantly asking the government to do more. "Whenever the government is asked to do something, it is going to cost money, but generally citizens don't realize the price involved."

Rohrer said, "Give a man incentive to produce and he will. Free enterprise is the way to go. The government cannot do anything cheaply."

AJCA Announces Scholarship Winners

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio—Seven Jersey youth have been named recipients of 10 scholarships administered by the American Jersey Cattle Association (AJCA).

Three Jack C. Nisbet Scholarships are awarded to participants in the National Jersey Youth Achievement contest.

The recipients were Karin Chittenden, Schodack Landing, N.Y., Dustin Bohl, Sardinia, Ohio, and Jennifer Baughman, Newark, Ohio.

Chittenden is the daughter of Paul and Melanie Chittenden. She is a senior studying general agriculture at Cornell University, Ithaca, NY.

Bohl is the son of Donald and Kay Bohl. He is a freshman studying dairy science at The Ohio State University, Columbus.

Baughman is the daughter of Thomas and Constance Baughman. She is a senior studying animal science at Wilmington College, Wilmington, Ohio. Baughman also received a V.L. Peterson Scholarship.

Three V.L. Peterson Scholarships are awarded to youth who have completed at least one year of college. Dana Garzelli, Petaluma, Calif., Owen Bewley, West Chester, and Jennifer Baughman, Newark, Ohio received the 1995 Peterson scholarships.

Garzelli is the daughter of Richard and Kathy Garzelli. She is a junior studying agribusiness at California Polytechnic State University in San Luis Obispo.

Bewley is the son of Richard and Jo Bewley. He is a senior studying dairy science with a minor in international agriculture at Pennsylvania State University, State College.

Bewley also received the ABS/Morris B. Ewing scholarship. The Ewing scholarship is awarded based on essays written by the applicants. Bewley's essay was based on the topic, "How can Jersey breeders work with the genetic industry (AI organizations, universities, etc.) to help further the Jersey breed in the dairy industry."

The Paul Jackson Memorial Scholarship is also awarded to youth who have completed at least one year of college. The 1995 winner was Christel Hoffman, Cuero, Texas. Hoffman is the daughter of Dot and Jerry Hoffman. She is a junior studying agribusiness at Texas A&M University-Kingsville.

Two William A. Russell Scholarships are awarded to youth who have enrolled in or been accepted to a college or university. The 1995 winners of the Russell Scholarships are Dustin Bohl, Sardinia, Ohio and Corey McConn, Burgettstown.

McConn is the son of the late Debbie Rankin McConn. He is a freshman at Washington and Jefferson College, Washington.

Jersey scholarships are available to youth who own at least one registered Jersey and who are accepted or enrolled in college. Selection is based on financial need and scholastic achievement, as well as Jersey and related activities.

The deadline for applying for a 1996 scholarship is July 1. Applications are available by calling Sara Gaetz at the American Jersey Cattle Association (614) 861-3636 or write to: American Jersey Cattle Association, 6486 East Main Street, Reynoldsburg, Ohio 43068-2362.

PSU Dairy Club To Host First Junior All-Breeds Dairy Convention

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Dairy Science Club has announced that it is inviting all junior-age members of all the major dairy breed associations to attend a first-ever Pa. Junior All-Breeds Convention.

The Penn State Dairy Science Club is serving as host of the event and has scheduled it for Feb. 16-18 at the Days Inn in State College.

The goals of the convention are to bring dairy youth together in the spirit of fellowship and education, regardless of the breed affiliation.

Several hands-on workshops are being developed and social time is planned.

A tentative schedule for the weekend includes registration, a pizza and swimming pool party and organized social events for Friday, Feb. 16.

During the day Saturday, hands-on workshops at Penn State facilities, lunch, a mock junior dairyman's contest, and a tour of campus sights are planned.

For Saturday evening, a mock sale is to be held, followed by dinner and a dance/social with disc jockey Kirk Sattazahn.

A Sunday morning brunch featuring speaker John Rodgers is also tentatively scheduled, according to a club news release.

A registration and ticket order form are to follow in subsequent issues of Lancaster Farming.

For hotel reservations, call (800) 258-3297.

Researchers Work To Fight BVD

WOOSTER, Ohio—Imagine yourself as a dairy farmer. Your cattle are sick, and you aren't sure why. One has diarrhea. One aborted her calf. Most are producing less milk. You're losing money. You need help.

Enter Kenny Brock. The Ohio State University scientist is developing a new program to prevent and control bovine viral diarrhea virus, or BVD, one of the most common pathogens of cattle in the world.

The program focues on improved diagnostic methods and management practices. But education is a large part, too.

Brock is working closely with farmers and veterinarians to tell them more about BVD and how to control it. He is based on the Wooster campus of the university's Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center.

BVD spreads easily, is difficult to detect and may change in the field, making vaccines less effective. Symptoms include diarrhea, abortion, infertility, decreased milk production, respiratory problems and more—all of which cause production losses. It sometimes causes death. It doesn't affect humans.

"It's a very versatile virus," said Brock, who is an associate professor with OARDC's Food Animal Health Research Program. "It's been nearly 50 years since the disease was isolated, and we still haven't solved the problem. That really speaks to the severity of the disease and the uniqueness of the virus."

The improved diagnostic methods include a new bulk milk test Brock and his colleagues developed. Using a milk sample, the test can screen a herd for infection.

If the test is positive, individual animals are tested to detect chronic "carriers"—usually only 1 percent to 2 percent of the animals in a herd. These animals are eliminated, the first step in improved management.

The next step, Brock says, is to keep a closed herd. Animals that enter or re-enter the herd should be isolated and tested for BVD, as well as other pathogens.

Newborn calves must be monitored, too, Brock says. BVD can cross the placenta and infect the fetus.

The program results are encouraging. In preliminary testing, BVD infections have been eliminated from 15 Ohio herds in one to two years.

"We've tried it in a lot of herds, and it does work," Brock said.

Using these results, Brock has established general prevention and control recommendations. Now he is working to make sure they reach Ohio farmers. He's doing this through OARDC's partner, Ohio State University Extension. Extension veterinarians convey the information to other veterinarians and farmers.

"We need to prevent recurring infections. We need to convince farmers of the significance of this disease before they get into it."

Lancaster DHIA Reports Record Growth, Sound Financial Position

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

SMOKETOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Leaders and officials of the Lancaster Dairy Herd Improvement Association (LDHIA) on Tuesday reported a record growth in membership and a sound financial position.

The organization has 1,193 member herds representing monthly testing of more than 64,000 cows. It held its annual banquet and meeting at the Good and Plenty Restaurant in Smoketown.

In addition to reviewing the past year's performance, honoring outstanding achievements by members, and receiving board director election results, those attending approved a revised set of bylaws.

The bylaw changes mainly were comprised of word changes to reflect current industry terms, but there were substantive alterations, such as the addition of a "past president" office, extending the terms of office slightly to three consecutive three-year terms, and creating a 15-member board of directors represented by three directors from each of five districts based on equal membership representation.

Another change to the bylaws was made in an attempt to limit the amount of legal costs associated with those accused of breaking rules of conduct in testing. For some DHIAs, hundreds of thousands of dollars have be spent in litigation, increasing service costs.

In order to prevent that, the LDHIA has declared in Article IV, Section 3 of its revised bylaws, "Violations of bylaws, rules, regulations or policies leading to expulsion and/or censure or cancellation of records shall be determined in accordance with the Due Process Policy adopted by the Board of Directors."

According to Joe Graybeal, board president, copies of the LDHIA Due Process Policy are available for members at the LDHIA office.

The overall report for LDHIA was good for members given the uncertainty that has accompanied restructuring within the entire dairy cattle testing and record-keeping industry.

During this change within the DHIA industry, the Lancaster organization diverged itself of the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association in 1993, instead of joining forces as have most other county cooperative associations in Pennsylvania.

(Garden Spot Red Rose DHIA in Lancaster County continues as a Pa.DHIA affiliate.)

In going on its own, the Lancaster DHIA used out-of-state lab and testing services to reduce costs and increase services and speed of service.

The split from using services of the State College-headquartered Pa.DHIA required approval by National DHIA, which has helped to guide the different mergers and divergences occuring within the industry.

The mergers and divergences appear to have been caused by the onset of computerized technologies, the abilities of large dairies to invest in the latest technologies, and market pressure.

Market pressure has forced dairy cattle breeders and dairy product producers to continuously seek decreases in operating costs and increases in product quality.

While the value of testing services varies according to the individual dairy business, generally its importance has increased overall as dairy managers seek better information about cow performance.

At the same time there has been increasing pressure to discover more efficient, less costly means to obtain needed services.

While the Pa.DHIA cooperative initially suffered from the divergence of LDHIA, it recently reported a positive turnaround in its financial situation and that its outlook is strong.

On Tuesday, Lancaster DHIA reported that it is in sound financial position and that members enjoy low costs.

In giving his treasurer's report, Dave Garber said that 1995 has been a transition year for the cooperative because it accomplished getting its own independent laboratory into full operation.

He said that as far as balancing the association's budget, substantial one-time and non-annual laboratory startup costs presented a challenge.

However, the association ended the year with a net margin of almost $30,000. The income from the lab — in operation only a portion of the year — contributed most to that margin, Garber said.

Part of the startup costs for the year included a one-time $25,800 fee paid to the National DHIA as part of its requirements to become a national affiliate. National affiliates have direct representation on the National board of directors.

Most of that — $20,000 — is to return with interest to the Lancaster DHIA affiliate, over a four-year pay-back starting 1997, Garber said.

Other non-annual costs include the purchase of laboratory equipment, which eventually needs replaced as wear and tear and technological/economic advantages become apparent.

Garber said he anticipates that the LDHIA should experience an even better economic year in 1996 because of lower overhead costs.

Though specifics of the LDHIA's record membership growth were detailed later in the program, in his address, Joe Graybeal said, "The goal (of the cooperative) is not to become larger, but to deliver quality service at a reasonable cost."

He said that if membership from outside the immediate service area of the cooperative continues to grow, it must be because those people agree with the cooperative. He said that it is not the intention of the board of directors to subsidize the service costs of out-of-area members merely to increase the size of the membership of Lancaster DHIA.

Out-of-area members of LDHIA pay extra for the additional cost of providing services over longer distances.

Graybeal said this as a reminder to members that growing in size is not necessarily growth in strength or health.

On other matters, Graybeal said that in the past few years he has traveled around the country attending DHIA discussions. He said that four topics are to be addressed in more detail at the January 1996 National DHIA Leaders Conference.

One of the topics deals with the incorporation of testing and recording technology by individual dairy operations and what that may mean to the cattle industry as far as availability of production data and the accuracy of information.

Another topic includes issues such as how to address the record standards of cow profile reports, the effects of different needs and uses of records on the availability of data, and accuracy of data.

In order to get away from the litigation associated with the role of policing record keepers, and in order to allow more inovation in testing methods, the entire industry has begun adopting a policy of making the end-user of data responsible for determining the accuracy of specific records received.

Graybeal said many of the issues are highly technical and would consume too much time to detail during the meeting.

However, he said that as National DHIA finalizes the program, more information will be published.

Graybeal said that the purebred cattle associations and National DHIA have been developing close working relationships to deal with the issues and to see what can be done to satisfy the needs of the all involved with testing and recording data.

In his address to membership, Jay Mylin, LDHIA general manager, reviewed the achievements of the cooperative during the past year.

He said that the past year's 73-herd net membership gain, representing 5,000 additional cows tested by LDHIA, was realized growth beyond expectations.

According to Mylin, about half of that growth came from adjoining counties — Chester, Lebanon and Dauphin.

He said that a total of 142 herds were added during the year, and four technicians were responsible for starting 96 of those herds. Recognized for starting herds were Keith Martin with 31 herds, Ken Martin with 24, Harold Probst with 21, and George Book with 20.

In other recognitions, technicians who received quality service awards were Harold and Joan Probst, Joe Lindecamp, Dwight Rohrer, Becky Hershey, William Heistand, and George and Nancy Book.

In member production and quality records:

- Warren Schmuck, Peach Bottom, had the highest-averaging Ayrshire herd for milk production with an average 17,104 pounds milk and 590 pounds protein.
- Don B. Trimble of Peach Bottom had the highest averaging Brown Swiss herd for LDHIA with 20,365 pounds of milk, 885 pounds of fat, and 726 pounds of protein.
- Axel Linde and Millie Widman, Oxford, had the highest-averaging Guernsey herd with an average of 17,266 pounds milk.
- Delmar Wenger, Lancaster, had the highest Jersey herd with an average of 16,958 pounds of milk and 653 pounds protein.
- Eugene and Susan Hess, of Marietta, had the highest averaging Holstein herd for milk and protein production with 26,955 pounds of milk and 837 pounds of protein.
- Gary and Jenny Bowman of Nottingham received the award for having the lowest somatic cell count herd average with a count of 97,000.

In other activity, Jay Mylin was honored with a special plaque commemorating his 25 years of

Vet School Holds Ceremony For Solar Dairy Barn

KENNETT SQUARE (Chester Co.) — The University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine held a special ceremony to commemorate the construction of a 200-head solar dairy barn for teaching and research at New Bolton Center in Chester County recently.

The festivities were held at Alumni Hall, New Bolton Center instead of the dairy site.

Dean Alan Kelly invited numerous people interested in the dairy industry to participate by sbumitting in writing their predictions for the future of dairy farming. The predictions were sealed in a milk can and stored in the wall of the new dairy behind a Plexiglas partition.

In the year 2020, the milk can will be retrieved and opened to see if any of the predictions were truly penned by 20/20 visionaries.

In attendance and submitting predictions were Charles Brosius, Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture; Richard Newpher, executive director, Washington office of the American Farm Bureau Federation; Arthur D. Hershey, state representative; Joseph Pitts, state representative; Clarence D. Bell, state senator; Roger A. Madigan, state senator; and William Nichol, executive director of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association.

Originally named The Allam Dairy Facility after Emeritus Dean Dr. Mark W. Allam, Class of '32, the dairy will now be called The Marshak Dairy Facility.

"It is only fitting that this dairy be named after Robert Marshak," said Allam. "Bob Marshak, early in his career as a practitioner and later here at the school, was interested in research of diseases of cattle. He was instrumental in establishing the school's leadership position in basic and clinical research of animal diseases. As the purpose of this new facility will be dairy cattle research, naming it after Dr. Marshak is only proper."

Allam was interim dean of the School of Veterinary Medicine from 1952-1953. In 1953 he was appointed dean and remained in that capacity until 1973. Marshak served as the ninth dean of the school from 1973 to 1987.

The Marshak Dairy Facility solar dairy barn will serve as a living laboratory for the School of Veterinary Medicine. This type of barn, usually built in the northern states and Canada, has proved to be a big boon to the dairy industry. A solar barn is energy efficient, naturally bright, and easy to keep dry — all essential conditions for productive cows.

The new dairy facility was made possible by a grant from the commonwealth of Pennsylvania and through the generosity of several companies and other organizations.

MMI Says Plan Saves Money

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Cooperatives participating in National Milk Producers Federation's annual Dairy Summit are trying "to enhance farmer income" while at the same time "lead the development of a federal dairy policy" transitioning away from government control to increased reliance on the marketplace, noted Ohio dairy farmer Herman Brubaker, board president of Milk Marketing Inc. (MMI).

Brubaker of West Alexandria, Ohio, led MMI's delegation to the Dairy Summit, held Nov. 27-30 in Nashville, Tenn.

He said co-op leaders at the summit adopted a compromise dairy package to recommend to Congress and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"Milk Marketing Inc. fully endorses the compromise dairy package," noted Don Shriver, MMI's executive vice president and CEO. "This compromise package has been crafted to bring all regions of the U.S. dairy industry together on one plan that can move us into the new marketing environment we face."

Schriver said the past few months "have been very confrontational" regarding U.S. dairy policy. "This plan gives us the edge we need and allows the federal government the budget savings it needs," he said.

"It is a win for everyone," added Bill Perry, MMI's manager of governmental and member affairs. "But time is short and we must move quickly if we hope to be successful."

The compromise plan recommends: partial national pooling of Class I milk prices for two years; consolidating within two years the federal milk market orders through USDA administrative process; repealing all budget assessments, and discontinuing price supports for butter and nonfat dry milk, while continuing the price support for cheese.

Headquartered in Strongsville, Ohio, MMI is the third largest dairy cooperative in the U.S., owned by 9,000 dairy farm families in Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, New York, West Virginia, Massachusetts, Vermont and Delaware. Last September, MMI members received a $2.2 million payout based on the co-op's performance during the 1994-95 fiscal year.

AJCA Reports On All-American Activities

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — BW Champs F203, owned by Brentwood Farms, Orland, Calif., was named senior and grand champion of the 1995 All American Jersey Show, held Nov. 6 in conjunction with the North American International Livestock Exposition in Louisville, Ky.

"Champs" stood first in the 5-year-old cow class of 20 entries. She is Excellent-90 percent with a record of 3-7 3X 305 21,160 4.4 percent 927 3.7 percent 780.

Duncan Eilene of HLF took reserve senior and reserve grand champion honors and also took home first place udder for her 5-year-old cow class. "Eilene" is a daughter of Highland Magic Duncan, PTI +219, and is owned by Shannon Anderson of HLF Jerseys, New Philadelphia, Ohio.

Barbers Dolanda, owned by Keith Hubbell, Brownsville, Ind., was chosen as the intermediate champion.

This was the first time for this award, selected from the following classes: senior yearling in milk, junior 2-year-olds, senior 2-year-olds and junior 3-year-olds.

This daughter of WF/L&M Duncan Barber-ET, PTI +333, was also named premier performance cow. This award recognizes cows based on their total performance. The award is weighted 50 percent on placing, 25 percent on genetic merit and 25 percent on production. "Dolanda" had a perfect score, winning her class, and having the highest genetic merit and production score. "Dolanda" has one record of 1-10 305 16,323 5.3 percent 862 3.9 percent 631.

The reserve intermediate champion honors went to the first place junior 3-year-old, Bolle Acres Lester TB Sarah. "Sarah" is a daughter of Highland Duncan Lester, PTI +301, and owned by Bolle-Acres Jersey Farm, Geneva, Ind.

Junior champion honors went to GR BW DC H834 owned by Brentwood Farms. "DC" placed first in the bred heifer class against 32 entries. The reserve junior champion was Bovi-Lact Jude Jewel-ET owned by Rock Ella Jerseys, Hornby, Ontario, Canada. "Jewel" placed second in the bred heifer class.

The Nasco International Type & Production Award (formerly M. B. Nichols award) was won by Hases Babes Lad Charo. She received the award for her record of 4-03 305 29,076M, 1,385F, and 1,059P. This award is based on the highest 305-day record for animals standing within the top 20 percent of their class. "Charo" is a daughter of Top Brass Babes Lad-ET, PTI +212, and is owned by Brian Sayles, Paris, Ontario, Canada.

The premier breeder and premier exhibitor banners were both presented to Bachelor Farms, Angola, Ind.

The honor of the premier sire award was given to Soldierboy Boomer Sooner of CJF, bred by Biltmore Farms, Fletcher, N.C. and now owned by Select Sires, Plain City, Ohio.

Indiana captured first place in the state herd contest, topping the field of 10 entries. Chuck Luchsinger, Syracuse, N.Y., judged the 306-animal show. David Jones, Yale, Okla., was the consultant during the show.

In the youth competitions, Shannon N. Anderson, New Philadelphia, Ohio was awarded the top honor for the second consecutive year at the All American Junior Jersey Show.

Her animal, Duncan Eilene of HLF, placed first in the 5 years and over cow class and went on to capture the senior and grand champion banners. This is "Eilene's" second time in the All American Junior Show's winner's circle, as she captured the award for Anderson last year. "Eilene" is a Highland Magic Duncan, PTI +219, daughter and her dam is MV Master Etta.

Rexs Patrick Kim, owned by Allison Keightley Smith, was awarded the reserve senior and reserve grand champion honors. "Kim" is a daughter of Mandys Patrick Rex, who placed second in the 5 years and over cow class.

Winners in the two showmanship divisions were Dusty Schirm, Louisville, Ohio, in the 9-14 year old division and Tony Mosser, Geneva, Ind., in the 15-19 year old division. Schirm received the Windy Knoll Trophy for junior showmanship, and Mosser was awarded the Mr. & Mrs. Max Gordon Trophy for senior showmanship.

Brian Garrison, Tiffin, Ohio, judged the 210-animal show. Lowell Stevens, Urbana, Ohio was the consultant during the show.

Jersey Sale

In other action, the 38th All American Jersey Sale averaged $5,594.55 on 55 lots, making it the third highest average in the history of the sale.

This is the highest sale average since 1981 when 48 animals averaged $6,410.42.

Topping this year's sale was Barbs Trader Doc, consigned by William and Barbara Mason, Buhl, Idaho. He was purchased by Jerseyland Sires, Hilmar, Calif. for $51,500. "Doc" was one of three bulls offered.

He is a son of Avon Road Trader-ET out of an Excellent-90 percent daughter of Mason Boomer Sooner Berretta, PTI +399. The dam has a record in progress, at 273 days, of 23,650M 3.7 percent 884F 3.7 percent 885P. "Doc" has a Parent Average (PA) of +1,532M, +61F, +60P, +206P$, +235CY$, +2.6 Type, and +350 PTI.

The high-selling female was the first choice female out of Duncan Belle by Molly Brook Brass Major, PTI +321, consigned by GI Prat Genetics Corp., Sao Paulo, Brazil. The choice was purchased by Rock Ella Jerseys, Hornby, Ontario, Canada for $31,000.

The heifer, due December 1995, will have a PA of +818M, +51F, +35P, +125P$, +146CY$, +2.9 Type, and +258 PTI. She is backed by three generations of Excellent dams, including her Excellent-92 percent Highland Magic Duncan dam. Rock Ella Jerseys purchased Golden Belle-ET, a half-sister to this heifer, to top the 1994 All-American Sale.

The second high-selling female was Mason Barretta Jenetta, consigned by David Mason, of Buhl. "Jenetta" was purchased by Hilltop Jersey Farm, Chandler, Texas for $17,000. "Jenetta" is a daughter of Mason Boomer Sooner Berretta and officially appraised Excellent-91 percent. She has a two lactation Mature Average (ME) of 24,844M, 1,035F and 1,024P.

Silent Auction

For the fourth consecutive year, a silent auction was held in conjunction with the All American activities. Buyers interested in bidding signed up with Jersey Marketing Service for buyer numbers. After checking pictures and production information on the display for the Silent Auction, written bids were accepted from Nov. 3 until Nov. 6 for the embryos being offered.

Eighteen embryo lots averaged $3,094 with the top lot bringing $7,000. Hedgebrook and AK Enterprises, Winchester, Va., bid $7,000 to purchase the consignment of Kurt and Carol Alberti, Wendell, Idaho. The buyer will select first choice female sired by Comfort Royal Alf-ET, PTI +347, by Excellent-90 percent AU Duncan Sooner Twilight. "Twilight" is a Soldierboy Boomer Sooner of CJF daughter with a record of 3-8 301 24,160 4.6 percent 1,121 4.1 percent 986. The resulting heifer will have a Parent Average (PA) of +1,773M, +83F, +73P, +252P$, +294CY$, +1.9 Type, and +437 PTI.

Peter Vail, Kinderhook, N.Y., paid the second highest price when he bid $4,600 to buy the consignment of Phil Fancelli, Hilmar, Calif. Vail will select first choice female sired by Kaimua Goliath, by Very Good-83 percent Sunset Canyon Skyanne-ET. The sire is a New Zealand sire with no U.S. genetics in his pedigree. The dam is a Rocky Hill Sky Line daughter with a mature equivalent of 28,077M 1,170F and 1,013P on one lactation.

The third highest bid was made by Baxland Breeders, Victoria, Australia on the right to flush Molly Brook Lester Famous-Twin. The right to flush was consigned by Pine-Crest Farms, Pine Grove, Pa. The buyer will get five embryos by the sire of their choice. "Famous" is a daughter of Highland Duncan Lester, PTI +301, and is backed by two generations of Excellent dams. "Famous" herself is officially appraised Excellent-90 percent and ranks fourth on the July 1995 PTI list.

Pot O'Gold

The All American Pot O'Gold Jersey Sale offers heifers for junior bidding only, and juniors are allowed to purchase one animal each year.

This year's sale averaged $2,786 on 15 lots, with a top bid of $5,000.

Matthew Riggs, Danville, Ind., was the final bidder on the top-selling heifer, Rock Maple Art Maria Xystros-ET. Consigned by Suzanne Buell, Eastford, Conn., she sold for $5,000. She is a daughter of Avon Road Trader-ET, PTI +284, has a Parent Average (PA) of +1,692M, +64F, +51P, +204P$, +208CY$, +2.4 Type, and +310 PTI. She is a daughter of Avon Road Trader-ET, PTI +284, with a Soldierboy Boomer Sooner of CJF dam who is Excellent-91 percent. The dam has a two-

Farmers Use Technology To Limit, Utilize Waste

AMES, Iowa — According to a report just released, as environmental regulation of waste disposal tightens, scores of technologies are being developed and refined to limit agricultural waste and to convert it into marketable products.

The report was released by the Council for Agricultural Science and Technology (CAST), a leading consortium of more than 30 professional scientific societies.

Dr. Larry Boersma, professor of soil science at Oregon State University, and Ishwar P. Murarka of the Palo Alto Electric Power Research Institute cochaired the 22-person task force report, "Waste Management and Utilization in Food Production and Processing." The authors state that virtually all waste products in agriculture have the potential to be useful as crop nutrients, pet foods, or feed ingredients.

Because fertilizer is a primary expense in crop production, efforts are ongoing to develop better tests of fertilizer need. "Precision farming" uses satellite technology to determine fertilizer application rates. A relatively simple approach being used by many farmers interested in saving on the fertilizer bill is to leave crop residue — which helps recycle nutrients back to the soil — on the field.

In the near future, crop residue also will be used for fuel on-farm or within a few miles of it. And evolving technologies and economic conditions well may lead to increased and more effective use of crop residue as animal feed.

Almost all solid by-products of poultry processing plants are being converted into animal by-product meals. Anaerobically fermented feathers offer a new process for feather waste treatment that may provide a valuable new protein for monogastric animals.

One use of a number of poultry wastes is land application. Poultry manure could supply a considerable portion of the nation's fertilizer requirements for a variety of crops. Another alternative use of poultry manure is in the production of biogas.

Pork production annually generates 30 percent of methane emissions from U.S. livestock and poultry. And about 150,000 tons of hog carcasses must be disposed of annually in the United States.

Hog carcasses are being rendered into meat and bone meal, animal fat, and plastics. Raw hog waste combined with corn and fermented is being used as a component of animal rations.

Beef cattle and calves on U.S. farms produce approximately 97 million tons of manure per year. But although concentrating animals in feedlots — instead of letting them roam — has economic advantages, it increases the potential for water and air pollution.

Methods being used to control air pollution from cattle feedlots include watering unpaved roads, watering feedlot surfaces with mobile tankers or solid set sprinklers, and controlling stocking rate in relation to rainfall and evaporation.

Manure collected from cattle feedlots contains nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium, three primary fertilizer inputs. By using sprinkler irrigation instead of furrow irrigation, some farmers are controlling runoff while using manure to help fertilize fields.

Minimizing waste is especially important in the dairy industry because great quantities of water are used in production. Farmers are finding that the best opportunities for decreasing daily water usage arise during preparation and manual flushing of concrete surfaces.

Automatic shut-off valves on water-supply hoses in milking parlor, milk house, and barnyard have proved the most effective means of helping control waste.

Milking center waste can be used in many ways — for example, as animal feed. The liquid from plants is being used in irrigation, some solids are being used as bedding, and waste is being by-processed to capture energy for heating the milk house or for sanitizing hot water.

Several processing practices in the seafood industry require great amounts of water. The potential exists to capture and concentrate this liquid and to use it as a natural flavoring agent. Fish fertilizer is becoming economically and environmentally desirable to crop growers. Additionally, waste generated from crustaceans such as crabs is being used in aquaculture feeds because it contains a red pigment desirable in some aquatic species.

Most waste loss in the fruit and vegetable industries occurs as a result of insect damage, mechanical problems during harvest, and poor growing conditions. Promising opportunities to limit waste therefore involve plant genetics. Ripening processes also can be controlled in this manner. Some genetic engineers are making plant skins tougher to minimize bruising during harvest.

Processors of oils routinely dispose of soapstock in a variety of ways. Some use it to produce fatty acid. Some sell it raw on the open market, and others spray it on meal as a fat additive.

In the last two decades, food processing firms have decreased their outputs of pollutants. At the same time, a new emphasis has been placed on converting wastes to marketable by-products.

There is a considerable quantity of waste with the potential to enhance world food supplies. Recycling of food by-products is more likely when traditionally used materials are scarce or expensive. Improved waste recycling is possible through continued technological development.

lactation Mature Equivalent (ME) average of 25,528M, 1,039F, and 816P.

Auburnvue Berretta Carmel, the second high seller, was purchased by Travis Ferreira, LeMoore, Calif., for $4,400. "Carmel" was consigned by Auburnvue Jerseys. Greensboro, Ala. She has a PA of +1,232M, +25F, +52P, +158P$, +190CY$, +2.1 Type, and +284 PTI. A daughter of Mason Boomer Sooner Berretta, PTI +399, the dam is Auburnvue Sky Line Carmine, with a projected ME of 18,180M, 746F, and 658P at 1 year 10 months.

John Nash, Ephrata, Wash., purchased the third-high-selling animal when he bid $3,700 for Molly Brook Berretta Money, consigned by Molly Brook Farms, West Danville, Vt. "Money" has a PA of +1,097M, +39F, +48P, +152P$, +182CY$, +2.6 Type, and +295 PTI. Like "Carmel," she is sired by Mason Boomer Sooner Berretta. Her dam is Molly Brook Duncan Monique, Excellent-90 percent with a three-lactation ME average of 20,509M, 1,010F, and 753P.

Jersey Jug

In other business, Bachelors B Sooner Jessie was named the National Jersey Jug Futurity champion. She is owned by Max and Steve Bachelor and family, of Angola, Ind. The Bachelors received $2,055 and numerous trophies and banners.

The winner is sired by Soldierboy Boomer Sooner of CJF, PTI +252. Her dam is Bovi-Lact Justins A Jess 23X, Excellent-90 percent. "Jessie" has a one-lactation Mature Equivalent (ME) average of 16,043M, 718F, and 629P. She was bred by Max and Steve Bachelor and Family.

The second place cow was Sooner Elise of SSF, Excellent-90 percent. She is a daughter of Soldierboy Boomer Sooner of CJF and her dam is Washington Elise of SSF. She is owned by George and Karen Hanford, Marcellus, N.Y., and was bred by Susan Luchsinger, Syracuse, N.Y.

Third place was awarded to Maple Lawn Lester Loni, owned by Jeff D. Schweigert, Tremont, Ill. "Loni" is sired by Highland Duncan Lester, PTI +301. Her dam is Maple Lawn Justin Joni, Excellent-92 percent. "Loni" has completed one lactation, which had an ME of 24,162M, 903F, and 837P. She was bred by John C. Schweigert, Tremont, Ill.

The Jersey Jug Futurity began in 1954 when 24 females were nominated for the show. In 1956, the Jug was given a wider scope when it moved from Delaware, Ohio, to the Ohio State Fair. Then in 1959, the Jersey Jug became a national event when it came under the sponsorship of the American Jersey Cattle Association.

Animals are nominated as calves with hopes that in three years they will be a winner. The total nomination fee is $56 during the three-year process and the exhibitor is guaranteed that money in premiums if the animal is shown in the Jersey Jug. This year there was $9,770 to be divided between the 34 final entries.

John Batchelder, Quarryville, Pa., served as the judge and Don Josi, Tillamook, Oregon, was the associate judge for the day.

Fall Is Time To Catchup On Reproduction Work

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The extended hot, humid weather of the last several months has had an adverse effect on the reproductive performance of many dairy herds.

As a result, extended calving intervals are projected for many cows, and the situation will become worse if these cows do not conceive during the next month, a specialist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences recently said.

"Since the weather has improved recently, herd managers should consider developing an aggressive heat detection and artificial insemination program to detect most of these cows in heat during the next three or four weeks," said Dr. Michael O'Connor, professor of dairy and animal science. "This concerted effort toward heat detection and timely insemination is often referred to as an 'AI blitz.' "

All resources are directed to heat detection during this time, so the program should be implemented before the harvest season gets into full gear.

"Such a program includes more frequent, but routine, dedicated heat detection periods when cattle are likely to express heat," O'Connor said. "A list should be prepared daily of those cows due for insemination and those due to return to estrus after the last insemination. This enables more heats to be anticipated."

Heat detection aids and prostaglandin products can be used during this period to enhance the program's efficiency.

"Several programs using prostaglandin products have been developed to control estrus and ovulation in groups of lactating cows so that heat detection and insemination can be limited to a certain number of days," O'Connor said. "More cows are in heat simultaneously, so heat detection becomes more efficient and accurate.

"Such a program can be very useful and cost effective when properly applied to an AI blitz program."

The program should allow for the introduction of those cows that become eligible for first insemination after calving as well as those cows that do not conceive on the initial insemination.

If this summer's weather has hampered your herd's reproductive performance, consider utilizing an aggressive heat detection program early this fall. "Act now to catch up on getting cows pregnant," O'Connor said. "But keep in mind that this management strategy is not a substitute for routine heat detection during the rest of the year."

"Heat Detection in Dairy Cattle," a video available from Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, details factors affecting estrous behavior, timing of insemination and management practices that optimize heat detection efficiency. The video is available for $35 from Ag Information Services, 119 Ag Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802.

Earl and Sandy Geib and sons Joel and Brian prepare for Christmas year-round so that they can give generously to others and have time to spend with each other during the holiday season.

Christmas Is For Giving Says Geib Family

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — The ping, ping of coins dropping into a jar isn't a sound that indicates 4-year-old Joel and 9-year-old Brian Geib's piggy banks are growing. Instead, it means a needy family will receive more presents for Christmas.

"Christmas is for giving," Earl and Sandy Geib tell their sons.

Whenever any of the Geib family members receives loose change throughout the year, he or she drops it into a coin jar earmarked to buy Christmas gifts for a needy family.

"Before we were married, Earl always sponsored a family through the Christian Appalachian Project and it's a tradition we enjoy continuing," Sandy said.

"We save all our change throughout the year, then haul it to the bank and cash it in," Earl said of the family's novel way of finding the money to spend on others.

Each year the Geibs choose a family whose children's ages are similiar to Joel's and Brian's ages. That way the brothers enjoy selecting both toy and clothing gifts for the children. Earl and Sandy choose gifts for the adult family members. The gifts are packaged in a large box and mailed before Thanksgiving to the Kentucky project.

The program doesn't allow last names to be revealed, but letters, pictures, and first names are forwarded through the agency.

"It's a neat feeling to read their letters and see how they appreciate that we care about them," Earl said.

While many families might believe that the money is needed to buy gifts for their own children, Earl saw the extreme poverty of the Appalachian area first-hand when he participated in a work project in the area, and believes it is a privilege to be able to share with others.

Giving doesn't end with the Appalachian project for the Geibs.

"We are so blessed. We try to do as much as we can for others," Sandy said.

Through their church, Chiques Church of the Brethren, the Geibs participate in providing complete Christmas dinners to needy families. This year, the goal was to provide meals to 250 families, but the church has already surpassed the 300 mark with commitment pledges. The meals will be delivered to families identified through church outreaches into Lancaster, Philadelphia, and New York.

"The excitement of giving to others is contagious. People go along to help deliver the meals and a truckful of clothing," Earl said.

"Christmas is so commercialized. We like to keep that personal touch," Earl said.

The couple are advisors for the junior youth group and teach Sunday school classes. The Geibs also use their enthusiasm for giving to encourage their students to give. Earl challenged his ninth grade Sunday School class to collect more food for the canned food drive than the previous year. Earl is excited to see how the students sacrifice for the drive. One student alone used his allowance money to buy 150 cans.

Their class also provides care packages to a needy country each year. This year, the care packages were sent to Bosnia.

Although the Geibs' lives are filled with helping others, the couple has a standing annual commitment to each other. Every year in December, they leave their children with grandparents and spend a weekend in a local resort. After a nice dinner, they spend the whole next day shopping.

"It's a neat time for us," Earl said. "Many farmers don't have time to take a lot of time off, but this is one time that we make sure we get away. This time is just for us. The phone isn't ringing — no interruptions."

(Turn to Page B3)

One of the novel ways the Geibs find money to buy gifts for the needy is dropping all loose change in a jar throughout the year. The money is then used to buy gifts for a needy family through the Christian Appalachian Project. Instead of spending the loose change left over from grocery shopping, Joel and Brian deposit it in the jar to help other children.

Sandy and her sons box up cookies to give to the mailman, garbage collectors, and others who provide services for the family.

HOMESTEAD NOTES

Christmas Is For Giving

Of the day-long shopping trip, Earl said, "She loves it and I've got to admit that I even enjoy it. But she doesn't ask me to go shopping with her any other time for the whole year."

Even during the shopping trip, the Geibs think of ways to benefit others. They always take their gifts to the United Cerebral Palsy gift wrapping stand in Park City to be wrapped.

The couple also participates in the Angel Tree Program, which provides gifts for families of prisoners.

Sandy is a prolific cookie baker. Her mother, Amelia Erb, goes to each of her three daughters' homes and spends the whole day baking cookies. Sandy packs up many of the 10 to 12 varieties and gives them to the mailman, garbage man, and other people with whom their lives interact.

The Geibs send about 110 Christmas greeting cards annually. Not all of the cards are sent through the mail. As a fundraiser, their church youth group charges 15 cents a card to sort and deliver cards to members of the church during a Christmas tea and cookie party.

Christmas wouldn't be complete without caroling. In fact, the Geibs accompany three or four different caroling groups every year.

Both Sandy and Earl said that they come from close-knit families and find it imperative to celebrate Christmas with their extended families during two different celebrations.

Before opening the gifts, they always read the Bible story in Luke 2. Every year a different family member reads it.

The Geibs live on the 50-acre farm in Manheim where Earl grew up.

"We are fortunate to have an unique family operation here," Earl said of the family farm. His father, Clarence, and brother, Barry, each have homes bordering the farmland. All three have full-time jobs off the farm and then share the farm chores on the family farm and an additional 50-acre farm they rent. Earl is a layer flock service technician for Wenger's Feed Mill.

In addition to steers, the children's 4-H projects are raised on the home farm and a sow and finishing unit on the other farm. The brothers and their dad raise corn, soybeans, and small grains on the land.

"It takes three to make it happen," Earl said of combining full-time jobs with farming.

"Whoever is available does the work. We don't keep track of our hours to make sure that each one puts in the same amount of hours. That isn't an issue with us."

Earl attributes the family's ability to work so well together to his father.

"Dad always trained us to work hard, but he never asked us to do anything that he wouldn't do. He led by example. On a hot day, he'd be up there stacking hay bales before he'd asked us to help."

Earl has been on the Manheim Community Farm Show board of directors for 19 years, seven years in his current position as president. Sandy is the secretary.

The Geibs' commitment to the Farm Show is "for all the children of the community," Earl said. "We pride ourselves that Manheim is truly a farm show. There is no midway. It is family oriented with all profits going to the community."

The soft-spoken Sandy confided, "I was always quiet and shy until I met Earl."

Earl volunteered his wife's services for such things as secretary of the Farm Show. It was an adjustment for her to switch from being a behind-the-scenes person to a more upfront person that she acquired by marrying Earl, who is known and involved in numerous church and community activities.

Earl jokes that he knew Sandy could handle being his wife when, on their second date, he promised to take her out for dinner. On the way, he stopped off to see how the FFA softball team, which he was coaching, was doing in a tournament. It was after 10 p.m. until they left the game.

"I was the only one dressed up in heels and a corsage at the game," Sandy recalled. "By the time we left the game, the restaurant was closed and I never did get to eat dinner."

That was only the beginning of life with Earl, which means their door is opened to anyone no matter what the time.

It is not unusual for kids to drop by their home at all hours of the day and night.

"Kids go through a lot at this age and we want to be there for them," Earl said of their commitment as junior high youth advisers.

Sandy and Earl also serve as deacons at their church and are Family Life representatives.

The Geibs' generosity appears to be passing on to the next generation. At the Manheim Community Farm Show Livestock Sale in October, Brian donated the profits of the first pig he ever sold to the Manheim FFA's greenhouse building project. Although Brian is too young to be a member of FFA, he already has his sights on joining it.

And, he knows from his parents' example that every day is a time for giving.

Consuming Thoughts

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.

Are you having a holiday gathering and planning on serving your favorite traditional "eggnog" recipe?

If this recipe or other recipes in your file use raw or lightly-cooked eggs you will want to update these recipes to avoid the risk of foodborne illness. That's because we now know that refrigerated grade A eggs with clean, uncracked shells — those usually assumed to be safe — can be contaminated with Salmonella enteritidis bacteria.

Scientists strongly suspect that bacteria can be transmitted from infected laying hens directly into the interior of the eggs before the shells are formed.

Many government agencies are doing research on the problem, which is a worldwide epidemic. The problem is greater in Europe due to a more virulent strain of the bacteria called "phage type 4," which has not been found in U.S. poultry production.

Eggs must be cooked thoroughly in order to kill any bacteria — such as salmonella — that may be present. If your eggnog recipe calls for raw eggs, it's not safe. Likewise, neither is Hollandaise sauce or mousse. Don't worry about cakes, cookies and candies though. Eggs used in baking get thoroughly cooked, and candy (such as divinity) containing eggs reaches temperatures far above that needed to kill bacteria. However, raw cookie dough isn't safe to eat!

But back to eggnog — way back. For centuries, our English ancestors made a similar milk and egg beverage that was cooked and served warm. Named for a small drinking vessel known as a "noggin," eggnog was often served in colonial times to colonists who were "under the weather."

Today it is a popular holiday drink made with raw eggs and served chilled, sometimes with spirits added. While adding alcohol may inhibit bacterial growth, it cannot be relied upon to kill bacteria which may be present in raw eggs.

To make safe eggnog, cook or microwave it to 160 degrees F, or until the egg mixture thickens enough to coat a spoon (see the following recipe). Refrigerate it at once. When refrigerating a large amount of eggnog, divide it into several shallow containers so that it will cool quickly.

Do not fold raw, beaten egg whites into the cooked mixture. It hasn't been proven that raw egg whites are free of salmonella bacteria. Commercial eggnog is prepared with pasteurized eggs and requires no cooking. Eggnog made with egg substitutes is also safe since these frozen commercial products have been pasteurized.

Hollandaise sauce and chocolate mousse are usually made with raw eggs. Update these recipes for safety's sake. A safe Hollandaise sauce can be made with egg substitutes and margarine. This version has the added bonus of containing no cholesterol. When making chocolate mousse, melt the chocolate with the liquid called for in the recipe, add the eggs and continue to heat gently until the mixture reaches the safe temperature of 160 degrees F.

Holidays are a fun but hectic time. By egg-proofing your recipes for safety, you'll have one less thing to worry about.

Holiday Eggnog

1 quart two percent milk
6 eggs
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup whipping cream, whipped
ground nutmeg

Heat milk in large saucepan until hot (do not boil or scald). While milk is heating, beat together eggs and salt in a large bowl, gradually adding the sugar. Gradually add the hot milk mixture to the egg mixture. Transfer the mixture back to the large saucepan and cook on medium-low heat. Stir constantly with a whisk until the mixture thickens and just coats a spoon. Thermometer should register 160 degrees F. Stir in vanilla. Cool quickly by setting pan in a bowl of ice or cold water and stirring for about 10 minutes. Cover and refrigerate until thoroughly chilled, several hours or overnight. Pour into a bowl or pitcher. Fold in whipped cream and dust with ground nutmeg. Calories 135 per ½ cup; cholesterol: 120 mg. per ½ cup. Yield: 2 quarts

Low-Cholesterol Eggnog

½ cup egg substitute
2 teaspoons sugar
1 can (13 oz.) evaporated skim milk
¾ cup skim milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon rum flavoring (optional)
ground nutmeg

Whip egg substitute and sugar together and combine with two types of milk and flavoring. Mix well. Chill overnight. Dust with nutmeg before serving. Calories: 96 per ½ cup; cholesterol: 4 mg. per ½ cup. Yield: 3 cups

Family Traditions

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)—Family traditions are those dozens, even hundreds, of little rituals unique to each family during the holidays as well as year-round. Special foods, games, activities, stories, decorations, parties, religious celebrations and get-togethers with family and friends come to mind when one thinks of celebrating family traditions.

Traditions help to build family bonds and give family members a feeling of belonging, support and caring. They contribute to the strength of each family member and help to make families unique. Traditions are especially important to young children who are just beginning to understand who they are. Cultural and ethnic traditions can preserve the special attributes of families and can help members to feel "in touch" with their heritage.

All families have traditions, even if they think they don't. Traditions can include anything from eating meals together, attending religious services and celebrating birthdays, to enjoying a special story time or even cleaning together.

Here are several ideas for family traditions to enjoy this holiday season:

•Hold an "I Remember When..." session during the holiday season with as many extended family members as possible. Recall with each other significant events that have been meaningful to family members.

•Make a family tablecloth each year to be used at dinnertime or at special family outings. Use a plain white cloth sheet and let family members draw or paint designs on it and sign their name. You may wish to design a "family emblem" or motto to draw on your tablecloth.

•Make it a family tradition each holiday season to bake cookies to give to mail and newspaper carriers, sanitation workers and other service providers. Youngsters will enjoy learning about the spirit of giving!

•Hang a family bulletin board in your kitchen, family room or hallway. Each family member can have his or her own section to share achievements, talents, messages or snapshots. Create a special seasonal display for important holidays.

Water Quality An IMPORTANT Ingredient In Livestock Management

It's a fact! Contaminated water can have a costly effect on your livestock and poultry performance. Our years of experience plus hundreds of farm related treatment systems has proven the validity and practicality of correcting contaminated water.

"If we were to buy a farm in rural Pennsylvania, do you think we'd meet with hostility from the local residents?" was the dilemma posed to this column a few weeks ago by a reader considering relocating at retirement.

Located on a farm rapidly being encompassed by urban sprawl, our reader yearned to live in a more isolated area. However, a relative who had moved to a very rural part of the state felt so unwelcome he finally moved away again. That experience left our correspondent concerned over acceptance of strangers by rural neighborhoods.

Several of you kindly took the time to write about your experiences as strangers in a new rural neighborhood. Responses have run two to one on the positive side. Thanks...thanks...thanks for sharing!

From a Mississippi-born grandmother of 20 who has moved eight times in her life, comes this advice! "People here are (and were) friendly and helpful. If you want or need help, generally somebody in the neighborhood will supply it. I think if you treat your neighbors with respect, they will, in turn, treat you with respect. Living in the country is the best place to be. We love it."

Mirroring that philosophy is the advice of a former Philadelphian: "My advice to a person relocating to a new rural area is to appreciate the beauty of your new surroundings. These wonders are all a Gift from our Heavenly Father. Respect and care for this new land and have a warm smile and a simple greeting. Stay out of the gossip."

From one who has lived in various parts of the country and returned to her native county after marriage comes a different viewpoint: "...it seems we 'outsiders' are to be constantly reminded of our lower status. Since she/he does not have the involvement of raising a family, a move to rural northern U.S. would not be wise. It would be extremely difficult to make strong connections with neighbors and would take a long time."

Still another reader who found rural folks initially distand comments: "...But the longer we live here the more understanding we have of their lifestyle. We find our neighbors to be lovely people—just very busy with their own lives and responsibilities. If you've moved rurally, don't try to change the way things are to the way you think they should be. Accept the differences. Remember the reasons you wanted the country life..."

A single, professional woman (who worked in Pennsylvania for a couple of years and did not feel personally accepted into the conservative rural community) writes from hundreds of miles away, across the country: "...some parts of agriculture do not smell like potpourri...some of it actually stinks! It is the natural environment they want until they live down the road from it. Then they are surprised how natural agriculture can be. I think we forget that when someone moves into our neighborhood there are two cultures involved and we need to get to know each other."

And finally, from a new friend I just met from Tioga County—a "flatlander" dairy producer whose family moved north and loves it—comes this counsel: "Anyone contemplating a relocation should stop and look at lifestyles and future needs. A person in this area must travel 25 or 30 miles to a doctor or hospital. Major shopping areas are also a distance. There is no regular public transportion. Rural utilities aren't always dependable, so anyone with special needs—heat or oxygen—should be aware. Folks here depend on each other. We couldn't have found better neighbors or a nicer community."

There, dear reader, is advice from those who have been there. Hope we've helped!

Gifts From The Kitchen

"Homemade gifts from the kitchen make the best impression," says Betty Rosbottom, cookbook author and entertaining expert. "Your guests know that you've taken the time and effort to prepare something special just for them."

Rosbottom advises that you use only the highest quality ingredients in your homemade gifts — like real butter. Butter enhances the flavor of other ingredients, making them more pronounced. Baked goods made with butter stay fresh longer, which is especially important for those of us who need to cook in advance.

Coffee blends and spice mixes are the latest fad in the kitchen. The nice thing about spice mixes are that they may be stored for up to three months. For longer storage, freeze up to one year. Spices have many uses. Some of the uses with the spice mixes found in this column are the following:

- Add Chinese spice to liquid before cooking rice.
- Sprinkle Mexican spice over strips of chicken, beef or pork before you saute the meat.
- Blend Italian mix with melted butter before tossing it with popcorn.
- Blend Indian spice mix with equal parts of sour cream and mayonnaise for a vegetable dip.

Presentation is important. Here are some ideas for packing food gifts in fun, festive, and practical ways:

- Stack cookies in a large glass or tumbler; wrap with clear plastic or cellophane and add a great big bow.
- Fill a small plastic bag with nuts, and place in a cup or mug; add a sprig of greenery and a bow.
- Fill a holiday tumbler with nuts and wrap with clear plastic or cellophane; tie gold cord around the tumbler for a dressy look.
- Package cookies or nuts in holiday tins, boxes or canisters, which may be enjoyed long after the holiday season.

COFFEE BLENDS

Contributor writes that coffee blends are easy to make and are a fun gift to accompany a coffee mug or a tin of cookies.

Combine all ingredients for each blend in an electric blender; process until smooth, stopping once to scrape down the sides. For each serving, spoon 2 tablespoons coffee blend of your choice into an 8-ounce cup of boiling water. Store in airtight containers at room temperature. Enjoy!

CURRIED PECANS WITH PLUM SAUCE

1½ pounds (about 6 cups) pecan halves
½ cup plus 2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons packed light brown sugar
3 tablespoons curry powder
1½ tablespoons ground ginger
¾ teaspoon salt
1 cup raisins
3 tablespoons prepared plum sauce

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Spread pecans evenly on two baking sheets lined with aluminum foil; bake on center rack for 10 minutes, stirring several times, just until toasted. Do not overcook. Remove from oven and set aside. In large skillet over medium heat, melt butter.

Add brown sugar, curry powder, ginger, and salt; to blend. Add nuts to sugar mixture, stirring to coat well. Add raisins and plum sauce; mix well. Remove from heat. Return nuts to baking sheets and bake 10 minutes, stirring several times. Remove from oven; cool completely. Store in airtight container up to 3 weeks or freeze up to 2 months. Yield: about 7 cups.

Allow guests to choose a gift from these festive packaged gifts made in the kitchen. Almonds and English Toffee Star Cookies are easy to prepare and can be made in advance.

PEPPERED ALMONDS

3 tablespoons butter
2 teaspoons hot red pepper sauce
2 teaspoons cider vinegar
3 cups whole almonds (blanched or unblanched)
2 teaspoons crushed red pepper flakes
2 teaspoons ground cumin
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon chili powder
½ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In large skillet over medium-high heat, melt butter. Stir in pepper sauce and vinegar. Remove from heat; add almonds, stirring to coat well. Spread almonds evenly in 15x10x1-inch pan lined with aluminum foil. Bake on center rack for 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Meanwhile, in large bowl, combine remaining ingredients, stirring well. Remove nuts from oven. Add nuts to seasoning mixture, stirring to coat well. Return nuts to baking pan, spreading evenly. Continue baking 5 minutes; remove from oven and stir. Cool completely. Store in airtight container up to 3 weeks or freeze up to 2 months. Yield: about 3 cups.

Huntingdon County Dairy Princess Crystal Couch is a senior at Huntingdon Area High School and a member of the National Honor Society. She is an active member of the Dairy Club and Dairy Bowl team and was named Outstanding 4-H Senior Girl and Outstanding 4-H Dairy Girl this year.

She is a member of Big Valley Grange, her church youth group and Sunday School and volunteers at a local hospital.

Seventeen-year-old Crystal is the daughter of Bill and Anne Couch and works on the family's 500-acre Lakeview Hollow Farm where they have 240 Holsteins.

Crystal is a Pennsylvania Junior Holstein member and former dairymaid, and county alternate.

Crystal has some ideas for making the holiday entertaining fun and tasty by serving make-ahead foods.

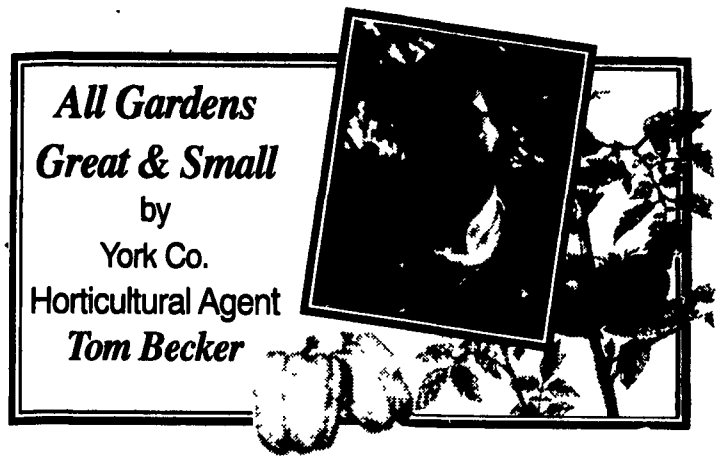
She suggests for a real knockout finale that belies its easy preparation, wow guests with a Christmas torte.

Here is the recipe.

CHRISTMAS TORTE

1 ready-prepared loaf pound cake (10 to 12 ounces)
1 cup ricotta cheese
¼ cup plus 2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar, divided
¼ cup chopped dried cranberries or cherries
¼ cup plus 2 tablespoons chopped pistachios, divided
1 tablespoon orange juice
1 cup whipping cream
1 tablespoon seedless raspberry preserves

Cut cake crosswise into 3 equal layers. Combine ricotta cheese, ¼ cup sugar, the cranberries, ¼ cup pistachios, and orange juice. Place one cake layer on plate. Spread with half of cheese mixture. Top with second layer and spread with remaining cheese mixture. Top with remaining cake layer. Beat whipping cream and remaining 2 tablespoons sugar until almost stiff. Set aside ½ cup; frost cake with remaining mixture. Place reserved whipped cream in pastry bag with star tip. Pipe diagonal lines onto top of cake. Pipe around top edge of cake. Spoon preserves and remaining 2 tablespoons pistachios in alternate lines on top of cake. Refrigerate about 1 hour or up to 4 hours. Cut into slices to serve.



Our Pennsylvania Christmas Tree Heritage

The Christmas tree tradition started about 400 years ago in Germany. But it wasn't until 1842 that a German named Charles Minnegrode introduced the custom in the United States, in Williamsburg, Virginia. Early trees were decorated with popcorn, gilded nuts, lighted candles, roses cut from paper, apples, wafers and sugar candies.

Early Christmas trees were "wildings" cut from the forest. Today Christmas trees are grown on tree farms. The first recorded Christmas tree lot was set up in 1851 by a Pennsylvanian named Mark Carr. He hauled two ox sleds loaded with trees from his land in the Catskills to the sidewalks of New York.

In Pennsylvania, over 1,000 Christmas tree farms grow favorites like Scotch pine, Austrian pine, Colorado blue spurce, white spruce, Norway spruce, Douglas-fir, Canaan fir, Fraser fir, concolor fir, and balsam fir. White pine is the only major species used in our annual celebration that is native to Pennsylvania.

Your Christmas tree was most likely started from seed collected from carefully selected wild trees or from orchard trees. Once collected, seeds are sown in a nursery bed. They're left to grow for 1 to 3 years before they're lifted and sorted. (Seedlings are lifted in the spring when the soils thaw.) Larger seedlings, especially pine species, are usually sold for field transplanting. Some species—especially spruce, fir, Douglas-fir and several pine species, are replanted into liner beds for as many as three more years. These seedlings will develop larger root systems before they're planted in a grower's field.

Depending on the site it takes five to 10 years to get a six- to seven-foot tree ready to harvest. Harvest season begins in early November and continues almost to Christmas day. The trees are cut, dragged by hand from the fields, baled to protect the branches, and loaded onto trucks. Some growers sell the trees to retailers. Other trees are sold "choose and cut" directly to the consumer. Ask for a listing of "choose and cut" growers available at your Extension Office. Thanks to the Pennsylvania Christmas Tree Growers Association for historical information.

"Ugly Mix"

Make your tree in your yard too "ugly" to steal. Paint your evergreens "hot" pink or orange. This recipe was invented by a Cornell University horticulturist. It's not permanent or patented or hard to make. It's just ugly.

This recipe makes enough for several trees. The color will disappear after several months.

1. Pour 2 gallons of warm tap water into a bucket.
2. Mix 20 ounces of hydrated lime together with 4 ounces of Wilt Pruf (an antidesiccant) in a separate bowl until a uniform paste forms. An industrial, very fine powdered white lime is preferred.
3. Slowly mix the paste into the bucket of water.
4. Add 2 bottles of pink or red or any obnoxious food coloring. Orange is especially ugly. Blend the mixture until its a uniform color.
5. Apply with a brush or sprayer during relatively warm, dry weather (above 40°F). Handle the lime with care.

To speed up mother nature, wash off with the garden hose after the holidays. Lastly, don't wait too long into December. It takes only a matter of seconds to cut down a tree with a saw. Trees farthest from your home or out of sight are the most likely targets.

"Fire Proof"

Fireproofing your Christmas tree may be easier than you think. Fire retardents recipes and tree preservatives aren't necessary. Instead purchase a fresh tree. Make a fresh cut in the trunk and place it immediately in a tree stand. Keep the water reservoir full. Avoid placing the tree in excessivley dry rooms with wood or coal stoves. I enjoy placing my Christmas tree outside a large window on a covered patio. Trees kept outside last for several weeks longer. Birds enjoy hiding in its branches.

HAPPENINGS

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address.

QUESTION — I.M. Filler, Brookfield, Mass., would like a recipe for souse. She writes that in New England, they cannot purchase souse and many other fine smoked and cured meats that they were raised with in Pennsylvania.

QUESTION — Joyce Utterback of Alderson, W.V. would like a recipe for old-fashioned buckwheat cakes in which the batter needs to set overnight.

QUESTION — Elizabeth Littleton, Glen Arm, Md., and Joyce Utterbock of Alderson, W.V., would like the starter for Amish cinnamon bread.

QUESTION — Helen Spencer, Hopewell, N.J., would like recipes for the Amish Friendship Starter. She has made so much of the bread and given it away that she would like to stop feeding it for awhile. She asks if it may be frozen because she doesn't want to lose the ability to make more of it as it is wonderful.

QUESTION — Kathryn Heberling, Falls Creek, is looking for teaberry flavoring to use in hard tack candy and in ice cream.

QUESTION — Mrs. Musser, Denver, wants to know how to make fried apples like those served in restaurants with the vegetables. It is not a dessert.

QUESTION — Renee Fitzpatrick, Annville, would like a recipe for Chicken Stoltzfus.

QUESTION — Linda Ludwig, Reading, would like recipes for banana crumb cake, blueberry and cinnamon raisin bagels, pumpkin pie that has about ¼ -inch layer of egg whites across the top when finished baking, and apple tart with syrup topping like those sold by Ruppert's Bakery at the Leesport Auction years ago.

QUESTION — Corinne Lyter, Port Royal, writes that she remembers seeing a request for cinnamon twists like those served by Pomeroy's coffee shop in Harrisburg years ago. She missed the recipe. Did anyone clip it or have it in their files?

QUESTION — Sarah Clark, Breezewood, would like recipes for a cheesecake made with a layer of caramel then baked with a layer of spicy apples on top; an ice ball rolled in coconut and flavored with rum; a banana drop cookie, a cake called beehive cake, and a white potato pie.

QUESTION — A reader would like a recipe for baked doughnuts that are light in texture.

QUESTION — Harold Mattoon, Avoca, N.Y., would like a recipe for bloomin' onions that are popular in several restaurants. Also, where can the onion cutter be purchased?

QUESTION — Eileen Dove, Upper Tract, W.V., would like a recipe for pink and white layered coconut cream candy.

QUESTION — Gladys Lillya, Salem, N.J., would like a recipe for Amish Old-Fashioned Puffy Sugar Cakes, which are sold at Good & Plenty Restaurant, Lancaster.

QUESTION — Joyce Shoemaker, Mt. Joy, would like a recipe for lemon dill bread.

QUESTION — Debra Shull, Landisburg, would like a recipe for making sharp cheese using goat's milk.

QUESTION — A McAlisterville reader would like a recipe for a friendship cake with streusel topping.

QUESTION — F. Eleanor Rebuck is on a fat- and salt-free diet. She would like to know the ingredients used in soft ice cream or frozen custard.

QUESTION — J.M. Koser, Narvon, would like a recipe for Brown Bobby Cookies, which were popular about 50 years ago. The cookies were triangular with a triangle hole in the center. They were made in a special griddle like a waffle iron and frosted. Flavors included chocolate, vanilla, and spice. She would like both the recipe and information on the griddle.

GRAHAM CRACKER TREATS

Use jelly-roll pan.

Break apart graham crackers into individual crackers — cover entire pan placing crackers side by side.

Melt:
2 sticks butter

Stir in and bring to a boil:
½ cup granulated sugar

Ladle butter mixture over crackers, covering to form a light glaze on each. Sprinkle crackers with coarsely crushed peanuts. Bake at 350 degrees for 10-12 minutes or until lightly browned. Remove from oven, cool for a few minutes then place on waxed paper until completely cool. Store in a cool area. Packs nicely in a tin for gift-giving.

Any leftover butter mixture may be used to make more crackers.

QUESTION — A reader would like a recipe for corn pie that tastes like that served at Cloister Restaurant in Ephrata.

QUESTION — Louise Graybeal, Renick, W.V., would like to know where she can purchase flaked hominy. She had requested this some months ago. Someone sent an answer but when Louise checked it out the Merchant's Grocery Co. Inc. wrote that they stopped selling it 25 years ago.

QUESTION — B.W. Pue, Rocky Ridge, Md., would like directions for making realistic gingerbread people that are used in crafts. Some are puffy and others are thick and flat. How is the dough made and colored and the features painted?

QUESTION — Dick Taylor, Allentown, N.J., would like a recipe for hot pepper sauce using lime juice and carrots as opposed to the traditional method of using vinegar and tomatoes. He writes that lime juice enhances the pepper flavor more than vinegar.

QUESTION — Dee Crowder, Gettysburg, is looking for a recipe similar to Rotel or Chi-Chi's Tomato and Green Chilies.

ANSWER — Mrs. Howard Glenn of Lawrence County wanted a recipe for dumplings that are made, wrapped in cheesecloth and boiled in water. Thanks to Inez Callins, Middletown, for sending a recipe.

Dumplings

2 cups flour
3-4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons shortening or butter
¾ cup milk
Apples or peaches, peeled
Brown or white sugar to fill
Cinnamon or nutmeg

Use your own pie crust or make a dough by combining the dry ingredients and cutting in the shortening. Add enough milk to make a rollable dough. Roll it out rather thick on a floured surface. Cut into six squares.

Core the apples, slice peaches in half and pit. Fill fruit centers with a spoonful of sugar and a sprinkle of spice (may add a pat of butter). Place each fruit on a dough square, pull the four corners together, dampen edges slightly and press to seal.

Tie each dumpling in a piece of white muslim or cheesecloth (twist ties work). Drop dumplings into a large kettle of boiling water. Boil 30 minutes.

When I was a child, my mother rolled out the dough and used cherries and wild blackberries sometimes for the filling, and sprinkling with sugar, butter, and nutmeg or cinnamon. She rolled it up like jelly rolls, wrapped in a cheesecloth and boiled. This she called Rolly-Polly. Served warm with milk, it was always a treat.

ANSWER — Iris Weaver, Mohnton, wanted recipes for sugarless desserts that are easy to make. Thanks to Mrs. Darin Helsel, Woodbury, for sending a recipe.

Chocolate Sour Cream Cookies

8 ounces sugar-free chocolate cake mix
3 tablespoons sour cream
1 teaspoon water

Use vegetable spray to lightly grease the cookie sheets. Combine cake mix, sour cream, and water in a small bowl. Beat thoroughly. Drop from a teaspoon onto greased cookie sheets. Bake at 350 degrees for 9 to 10 minutes. 1 cookie equals 33 calories, 5 carbohydrates.

(Turn to Page B20)

1¼ cups all-purpose flour
¼ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
½ cup unsalted butter, chilled and cut into small pieces
½ teaspoon vanilla
⅓ cup English toffee bits for baking

Chocolate Glaze:
2 ounces semisweet chocolate, broken into small chunks
¼ cup whipping cream

For cookies, place flour, sugar, and salt in food processor work bowl fitted with metal blade. Add butter and vanilla, process, pulsing machine on and off, for several seconds, until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add toffee bits and process a few seconds more; mixture will be very crumbly. (Do not overprocess.) Transfer mixture to work surface and knead 2 to 3 minutes. Gather dough into a ball, then flatten into a disk. Wrap in plastic wrap; refrigerate at least one hour to chill completely.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Place dough on lightly floured sheet of waxed paper; sprinkle lightly with flour. Cover dough with second sheet of waxed paper and roll to ¼ -inch thickness. Remove top sheet and cut dough into stars or other shapes with cookie cutters. Using a spatula, transfer cookies to unbuttered cookie sheets, spacing about 1-inch apart. Bake 12 to 14 minutes, until light brown. Remove from oven; cool cookies 1 minute on cookie sheets. Transfer cookies to wire racks; cool completely.

To prepare glaze, place chocolate and cream in a small saucepan. Cook over low heat until chocolate is melted and mixture is smooth, stirring frequently; cool slightly. Place mixture in heavy-duty plastic freezer bag. Seal bag, removing excess air; snip a small end off one corner. Squeezing bag gently; drizzle glaze over cookies. Let stand until glaze is set, 30 to 60 minutes. Store tightly covered at room temperature 2 days or freeze up to one month.

Yield: 20 cookies.

Taking Time

by Rebecca Escott

I've learned that Teacher Barbie is all the rage this year. Every holiday season there is some item that is "hot"—Cabbage Patch Dolls, Power Rangers, Atari. And the things kids long for aren't always expensive items. Can you remember youngsters begging for hula hoops, hot wheels, slap bracelets, California raisins, trolls, and more recently, pogs?

What are adults to do when a child's chorus begins to intensify, "I have to have it!" When your child says she has to have something, and you don't agree, there are several things that you can do.

It's healthy for children to learn that most people don't have enough money to buy everything they want. Families may also choose to not spend money for certain items. For instance, you may not want children to have video games that promote violence. It's also okay to decide not to buy something (even if you have the money) because you are saving the money for more important things like a college education or rainy day fund.

Kids are sharp. Be honest with them about the reason why they may not receive some things they drink they "have to have." Don't use the comment that "we can't afford it" if you are making a conscious decision not to purchase an item for another reason. If you can't afford the item, explain the reality of this in a straighforward manner. Children are often more understanding if they are included in the family decision making. Remember, in most families making a purchase on credit is an option. Think through your position on this and be prepared to respond to that suggestion, if your child mentions it.

As your child implores you to buy something, you may want to suggest that he save his allowance money. Some parents have success setting a dollar limit and allowing the child to make up the difference from savings. For instance, if your son needs new sneakers, you may say, "I will pay up to $45 for sneakers. If you want something that costs more than that, you are going to have to pay the difference. You can use your allowance to do that, or you can try to earn some money by doing chores for others. But remember, if you use your allowance for this, you won't have money to go to the movies this month. It's your choice. What's more important for you?"

Another strategy is to write the longed-for item on a slip of paper. Put it in a jar box for one to four weeks. If the child still wants that item at the end of the waiting period, consider buying it. Often with young children, that fad has passed, and now they want something else instead. Each time the wish changes, start the waiting period over again. This teaches several things—delayed gratification and prioritization of wants are two of the lessons a child learns using this method.

One difficult thing for a parent to do is to let a child make choices with his spending money freely. In order for children to learn to be wise consumers, it is important for them to have the freedom to choose the products they want and to live with the results, good or bad. Parents must resist stepping in and giving extra money when a poor decision is made. Rescuing in this way sets up a pattern that may continue into their adult years. This is unhealthy.

One final suggestion. I've found that spending time helping families who are truly needy, families who have few or no personal possessions, really helps children and adults to reevaluate what they "have to have" and what they can do without. This holiday season, when your children start clamoring for the latest toys and games, take an afteroon and reach out to another family in need. This may be the best lesson they could learn about what true needs and wants are.

Video Shows Kids Wonders Of The Stuff They Wear

COCKEYSVILLE, MD. — Take a delightful journey to see how cotton, wool, linen, and silk become your favorite clothes. "Tractors, Cotton-Pickers and The Stuff Kids Wear," is a 30-minute, faced-paced adventure video.

Produced by the team that received a prestigious Parents' Choice Award, the video entertains while showing the fascinating process of turning natural fibers into favorite blue jeans and sweaters.

In the video, five-year-old Blake and his 10-year-old sister Megan visit everything from farm fields to cotton gins to blue jean factories. Shot with artfully selected camera angles, which show the world from a child's point of view, the story is told by children's voices and includes rare, time-lapsed footage of a cotton flower turning into the delicate strands from which clothes are made. Also featured is the labrorious efforts of silkworms as they spin their delicate fibers. Footage of European flax harvesting and processing into linen lends an international flavor. And sheep-shearing professionals delicately shave their animals for one of the world's oldest sources of warmth.

Although Blake and Megan appear in the video, the voices heard on the video actually belong to a brother and sister who are 8- and 11-year-old's and take drama lessons.

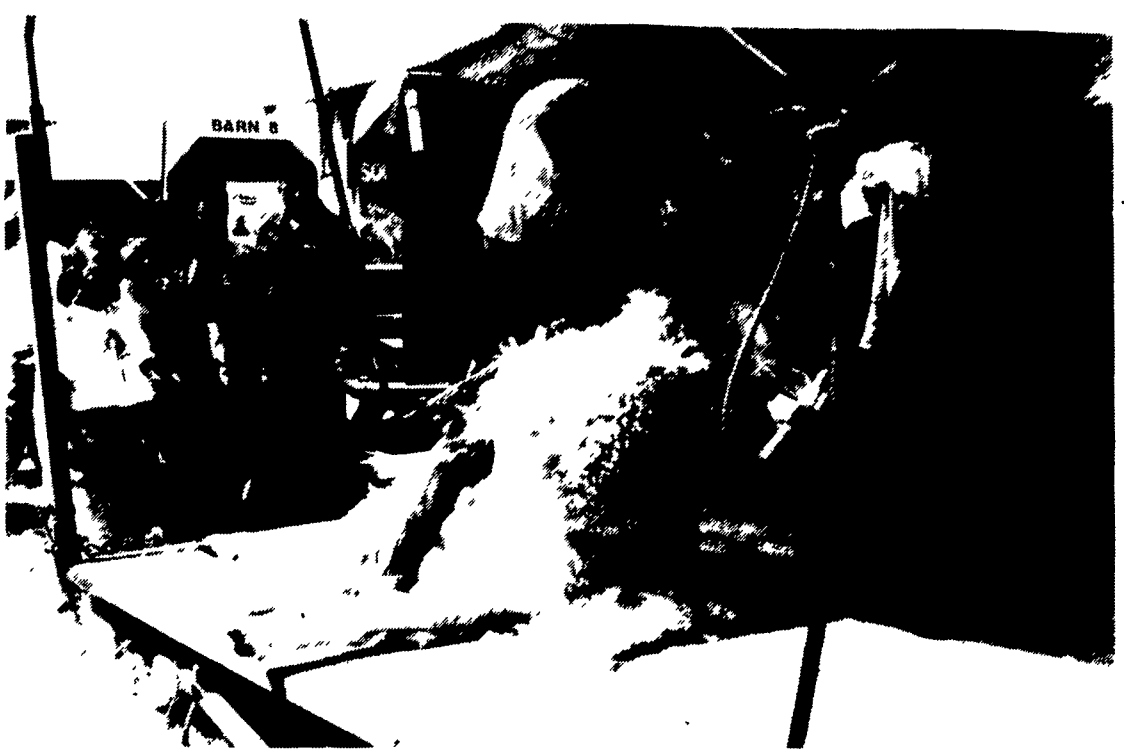
At the Howard County Fairgrounds, a craftsperson spins wool while Megan, Blake, and Patti watch.

Megan Rock holds freshly-picked cotton.

"We used what we learned from our award-winning video "Tractors, Combines and Things on the Grow," which showed children where food comes from, and we incorporated those lessons into this new production. Parents can feel assured that when their children watch this video, they will be entertained and educated," says producer Patti Schindler. "It all began when I noticed my son's fascination with the tractors and combines on a neighbor's farm," says Patti. "When I couldn't find a video that documented these incredible machines in action and also explained the big picture of why all this activity was going on, I decided to produce one myself."

The result was "Tractors, Combines and Things on the Grow, which the 3,700 parents, children, teachers, psychologists, pediatricians, and other experts on the selection committee for the prestigious Parents' Choice Award regarded as a national winner for children, ages 2-10.

In a cotton field in Nashville, N.C., farmer David Rose shows cotton blooms to Patti Schindler and son Blake, and neice Megan Rock.



Fairgoers at Howard County Fairgrounds watch sheep shearing. Scenes like these also appear on the video.

"I think the success of the video is the result of children talking to children and not adults talking down to them," Patti said. "It's fast paced and kids have fun watching real life action."

Before producing the first film, Patti had no experience. "I'm just a mother, but I'm fascinated with what turns on children."

Trained as a medical assistant, Patti quit her job when she became what she describes as "a late mom in my forties."

"I knew the right people to contact when I decided to produce the video," Patti said.

She hired a professional photographer and used the imput of such organizations as the Cotton Council, John Deere Co., Ag in the Classroom, and The American Farm Bureau. They reviewed her work and checked it for accuracy.

"Tractors, Cotton-Pickers and the Stuff Kids Wear is available by calling 1-800-808-FARM for the cost of $19.95 plus shipping and handling.

Four-Year-Old's Fascination Becomes Prize-Winner For Mom

COCKEYSVILLE, Md.—When four-year-old Blake Schindler became fascinated with the huge tractors and combines on a friend's farm, his mother, Patti, saw an opportunity to educate him and other children in a fun and exciting way.

The result is "just our size videos" of Cockeysville, Maryland, which has hit the market with its first production entitled "Tractors, Combines and Things on the Grow," the recent winner of a prestigious Parents' Choice Award. Patti and the video have already been featured on live television interviews and also in several newspaper and magazine articles. Since being named a Parents' Choice Award winner, interest in her philosophy of producing videos for children has increased dramatically.

"As a mother, I am very concerned with what my son watches on television," Patti says. "When I looked around and saw the quality and educational value of programs and videotapes on the market, I though someone could do better. That someone wound up to be me. "Tractors, Combines and Things on the Grow" is not just an action-packed video for children, but an education in itself." It is a philosophy that the 3,700 parents, children, teachers, psychologists, pediatricians and other experts on the selection committee for Parents' Choice regarded as a winner.

The entertainment in the 30-minute video is provided by the mammoth farm machinery which roars through the fields day and night. The tape has also received a National Parenting Publications Award and a highly favorable review in the prestigious "School Library Journal." It has the seal of approval for viewing by children from the Coalition For Quality Children's Video.

To insure accuracy and that the proper message about farming in this country is conveyed, Schindler turned to assistance from national organizations and corporations. The magazine selected "Tractors, Combines and Things on the Grow" as the only agriclture-related video for its honor.

The video also received the seal of approval from The American Farm Bureau, The National Corn Growers Association, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Ag In The Classroom.

"We developed the educational theme in cooperation with these organizations," Patti says. "In addition, our affiliation with them gave us inroads into Archer-Daniels-Midland, one of the world's largest agricultural organizations, as well as John Deere.

Patti wanted to be sure that what she portrays is not only entertainment for youngsters but also accurate. "A national farm safety organization was consulted to make sure that farm safety for children was properly depicted.

Patti is now completing a second video which will explain where clothes come from. Tractors, Cotton-Pickers and The Stuff Kids Wear will focus on cotton, wool, silk and linen production and will be available in October. The natural fibers tape will take children and their parents on an adventure focusing on the machines and people involved in making blue jeans and the other favorite "stuff" that kids wear.

Both videos are available for $19.95 each (plus shipping and handling) and may be ordered by calling 1-800-808-FARM.

One of the scenes from Overly's Country Christmas is the western town. Lights define a row of store fronts and country scenes from whip-cracking wagon drivers to cows, chickens, and animated horses. The lights will be on every night from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. through Jan. 14.

Lights By The Thousands Brighten Fairgrounds

DAVID HIEBERT
Westmoreland Co. Correspondent

ARMBRUST (Westmoreland Co.) — Imagine this:

The biggest Christmas light display you've ever seen: 750,000 lights, drawing enough power to fully supply about 57 homes.

Sound like too much to believe? Well, the bright and popular tradition of animated lights and holiday scenes, orginally on Harry Overly's farm near Armbrust, has been hosted by the Westmoreland County Fairgrounds since 1993. The growing exhibit benefits area children's organizations.

In this holiday season, many families adorn their homes and farms with lights and special decorations. One tradition that has outgrown its original location is Overly's County Christmas, a tradition in its 39th season.

New this year are additional light displays and an emphasis on smaller light exhibits which people can observe as they walk through the exhibition, according to Jane Sibenaller, who works with the exhibit.

Volunteers are crucial to the success of this program. They began working several weeks before the display opened.

Local volunteers do minor construction, set up animated displays, paint, and test lights. Last year, "Santa's elves" tested and plugged in more than 17,000 strands of lights. Though electrical or wood working skills are helpful, almost anyone can help get things put together.

After the setup is complete, 45-50 volunteers help each night, playing Santa, Mrs. Claus, or an elf. They work in the gift shop, admissions booth, take Santa pictures, or help visitors in other ways. Many of the adult volunteers are people who as children were delighted by the display at Overly's home.

In the past, local organizations, clubs, and school groups have worked on the light display together.

If you are interested in volunteering, contact Linda Brady at Overly's Country Christmas, (412) 423-1400.

With the donated labor, funds raised for children's charities keep growing each year. In 1994 about $47,000 was donated to area organizations whose work benefits children. This year about $57,000 went to 10 organizations. All donated funds are channeled through the Overly Charitable Foundation, which evaluates requests from organizations whose work benefits sick or abused children.

During the day, the numerous cords and wires turn the fairgrounds into a spaghetti bowl of plastic coated copper, but at night the lights appear magical and new delights are seen at every turn. Visitors may drive through the fairgrounds to see the many scenes and animated sets, such as the playground with slides, swings, and teetertotters. With many other public exhibits emphasizing a drive-by view, Overly's includes small elements that can help visitors remember the days when we lived on a more humble scale.

After a drive through view of the lights, visitors might visit the life-sized nativity scene with living animals, drink hot chocolate around the outdoor family bonfire, or shop in the Country Christmas Gift Shop. The country kitchen features car-grilled hot-dogs and hamburgers, hot and cold bever-

Harry Overly, founder of the Overly Charitable Foundation, started putting up lights to delight his four children in the 1950s. Today his light display, Overly's Country Christmas, is hosted by the Westmoreland County Fairgrounds and has gained national recognition. Harry poses appropriately with his grandchildren.

ADAMSTOWN (Berks Co.) — Seldom does a book successfully combine two cultures written in two languages. But "Water Boy Gedichde — The Life and Poetry of Edwin Gehman Weber," captures both American and Pennsylvania German culture and language in a 284-page hard-cover book.

This year, on February 14, Ed died at 90 years of age. He was well known in Pennsylvania German circles for his poetry and for his participation on WBYO radio's Pennsylvania German program.

His poems tell stories of a bygone era. Most are written in Pennsylvania German of which some expressions cannot be translated into English and mean the same thing.

At the urging of C. Richard Beam, German professor emeritus of Millersville University, Ed's daughter Ruth Ann Hollinger, published the poems and interspersed accounts of the Weber family's life with the poems, written in Pennsylvania German with the English translation alongside.

Ruth Ann said, "In the translation, some meaning is lost but those who speak Pennsylvania German fluently will enjoy the humor and those who are wunnerfitzich (curious) should find a good 'Deitscher' to explain what it really means."

The title "Water Boy Gedichde" is derived from Ed's poem that tells how, as a 9-year-old boy, he brought water to the laborers as they built Gehman's Mennonite Church in Adamstown. He wrote, "This building was then completed, but my work had just begun. God's plan for me is a Water Boy . . . serving in whatever capacity needed such as chorister, superintendent, trustee, Sunday school teacher, carrying water for my Friend."

Ed left a legacy of 80 poems that offer a glimpse of life into the early 1900s.

Like many newly married couples during that era, Ed and his wife married at age 19, but did not live together until the following year.

When Ed attempted to open his first bank account, the banker did not believe Ed's real name was

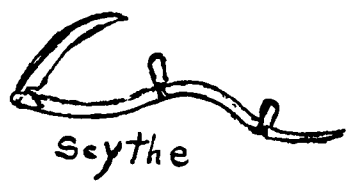
In recent years, Ed Weber was known in Pennsylvania German circles as 'der Alt Weisskopp von Wisse Doal' — the old whitehead from Meadow Valley.

Eddie and changed it to Edwin, the name he assumed from that time on, although his birth certificate states Eddie.

Tales of Ed's acquiring his first Model T Ford and the idiosyncrasies that accompanied it allows the reader to visualize the young couple touring the country dirt roads. Because it had only one door on the passenger side, whenever the Ford choked off, Ed's wife and baby had to get out so Ed could climb out and crank up the car again.

After the Weber's third child was born, Fannie was diagnosed with tuberculosis and needed complete bedrest. During this time the children were not allowed to even see their mother. She died the following year, leaving Ed with three small children.

Two years later Ed married Susie Good Youndt, a widow with seven children. Together, they had five more children, making a total of 15.



Raising so many children during the Depression Era was not without difficulties. In his poems, Ed sometimes refers to feeling depressed and discouraged and chastises himself for "flying off the handle and hurting those he loved in an unguarded moment."

The staunch fortitude of the era is reflected with tidbits telling of limited space that required three children to sleep in a bed, of a rag-man who bought old rubber boots and such, of taking carpet rags to the jail for prisoners to do carpet weaving for a few cents, and of high-tailing it across the road to the outhouse.

He writes of the days before having television, radio, phone or newspaper in the house. When people had time to talk, at church, the store and in the mill, one could learn all the news and "what you don't find out doesn't matter."

Devastation struck again when Ed's second wife Susie had a stroke at 50 years of age and died three days later. Three months later, the barn burned to the ground taking with it his Model A Ford.

"Never since I started farming, had I been so poor. It seemed everything was against me . . . ." Ed wrote.

Through the generosity of friends, neighbors, and relatives, the barn was rebuilt, and life began to look better again. About two years later, Ed found a new wife Elizabeth Nolt, who loved to work and bake for the large family. Four years later, another daughter was born.

Ruth Ann Weber Hollinger holds a copy of the book she edited, which includes her father's poetry and the Weber family's unique history that spans almost a century of life.

The poems reflect Ed's love for truck farming and how he began to build a small dairy herd.

The kitchen table served as the center of activities where the children did their homework, played games, and read stories aloud. Instructions for some of these old-time games are included in the book.

In 1986, the Webers sold their Adamstown home and moved to cottage at Landis Homes Retirement Community. Ed enjoyed participating in Pennsylvania Dutch programs and was a regular caller to the Pennsylvania Dutch program heard on WBYN (previously WBYO) radio station. He also had some of his poems published in a weekly newspaper.

On Feb. 14, 1995, Ed went home to be with the Lord he loved. At the time of his death, he had nine children, seven stepchildren, 73 grandchildren, 143 great grandchildren and 13 great-great-great grandchildren.

The book is available in local bookstores or may be ordered from Olde Springfield Shoppe, Route 1, Box 20, Morgantown, PA 19543. The book costs $14.95 plus $3 for postage and handling.

ages, and other treats.

A new walk-in exhibit for 1995 is the old-fashioned barber shop, which includes antique equipment. Santa and Mrs. Claus will pose for a picture with you in their antique sleigh.

Proceeds from the light display, including the $5 admission fee, gift shop, and barbecue stand sales will directly benefit children.

Overly's Country Christmas has become one of the top holiday fund raisers, helping children in the Western Pennsylvania region. Over the years, nearly a million dollars has been raised through contributions of local businesses and visitors to help children hwo have been battered, abused or neglected or who have special medical needs.

In 1994, Overly established the Overly Charitable Foundation to continue the development of the light display into a major Christmas Theme Park and to direct the disbursements of funds to programs benefiting children. In 1994, Westmoreland Regional Hospital was able to open a new pediatric clinic with help from the Foundation.

Women's Services of Westmoreland County used money from the Foundation to provide special support programs for children in abusive situations. And the Westmoreland Children's Bureau provided for special needs of abused and neglected children in foster care.

In 1995, 10 organizations received more than $57,000.

The Westmoreland County Fairgrounds hilltop location provides an ideal setting for this exhibit. Visitors can view the lights even as they approach on public roads. Also, the location and traffic pattern means minimal waiting, even during very busy times.

The Country Christmas opened Nov. 17 and will be open every night from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. through Jan. 14.

The fairgrounds are located near Norvelt between Mt. Pleasant and Greensburg. Visitors should take the Route 30 bypass to the Mt. Pleasant exit, then travel six miles south to the fairgrounds. Directional signs are posted along the route.

For more details about the light display and a map call Overly's Country Christmas at (412) 423-1400.

New York State cheeses received strong recognition among retail buyers at the Eastern Dairy Deli Bakery Show where the American Dairy Association captured the first place, "Best Booth Presentation" for dairy products. Using the theme, "Cheese from Around the World—Produced Locally in New York State," ADADC made retail buyers aware that New York State cheese manufacturers are producing many European-type cheeses domestically.

Best Dairy Booth Belongs To ADADC

SYRACUSE, N.Y.—The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC) was recently honored for the "Best Booth Presentation for Dairy" at the Eastern Dairy Deli Association Annual Taste Show in Raritan, N.J.

Selected from hundreds of exhibitors, ADADC's theme, "Cheese from Around the World—Produced Locally in New York State," was emphasized through special recipes highlighting Hispanic, Italian, American and other internationally-based cheeses.

According to Susan Cavallaro, ADADC public relations specialist, "We are especially proud to have received this award because of the limited dollars we have to work with in comparison to other vendors. It's another example of how ADADC works smarter, not harder."

Pounds and pounds of New York State cheese were created into ethnic specialties from three-cheese quesadillas to two-cheese quich to raspberry and cheese blintzes and cheesecake. Samples of the unique appetizers and desserts were developed and presented by a former executive chef from the local area. In addition to the recipes, samples of other cheeses were offered to almost 10,000 retail buyers who attended the two-day show.

"New York is the third largest milk producing state in the nation. The bulk of the milk goes into 336,075 tons of cheese, which is the state's hidden treasure," said Rick Naczi, chief executive officer for ADADC. "It's time to spread the word."

Tips For Reducing Holiday Stress

To reduce holiday stress, Rita Miller, clinical service representative from Reading Hospital, offers these tips.

1. Check your expectations of yourself and your family and friends. Are they perfectionistic? Are they realistic?
2. Organize your gam plan. Make lists.
3. Delegate some of the preparations to others and let them do it their way.
4. Ask for help with clear, direct communication such as, "I need you to . . . . ."
5. Get back to basics; decide what's truly important. Name your priorities and honor them.
6. Respect yourself. Listen to what your body tells you. Avoid getting over-tired when possible. "You deserve a break today."
7. Acknowledge your feelings.
8. Lighten up! See and savor the humor in situations. Share family stories.
9. Check your perspective. It is how you view a situation that determines if it is positive or negative stress.
10. Belong to something bigger than yourself, bigger than your family.
11. Stay in the present. Proceed through the day moment to moment. "All the treasurers of earth cannot bring back one lost moment." (French proverb)
12. Create your own unique traditions.
13. Do something outrageous — a random act of kindness.
14. Renew your spiritual side.
15. Sound your battle cry.

Book Captures Life And Times

The Cow Machine

If it were possible for Grandfather
To go to the Harrisburg Farm Show,
With all this new machinery...
He could not understand this at all.

His eyes would get like saucers...
He would have to scratch his bald head.
He would shake his head like everything...
And think this could not be!

The huge self-propelled combine
And corn huskers and shellers...
The grass mowers and choppers,
And manure spreaders and hay balers.
Many more things people have made...
There is no longer a need for a horse.
The machinery breathes and snores like Tom...
Still one doesn't see a mouth.

But let us take note of the cow...
No person invented a machine for her!
The cow has all of the standard equipment...
Still no gas is burned.

The cow goes on her own power...
Yes, she is self propelled!
She runs her own mower...
And one doesn't see a V-belt.
She has two headlights and a bumper...
Her fog horn goes "Moo!"
And who stands in her way,
Will be put to the side!

At the other end is a milker
And a bug or fly chaser.
Directly under this is a manure spreader...
All of this she must carry on four legs.

The cow does not come out of a shop or factory.
She has nothing to do with striking!
She does her own manufacturing.
Take your hat off to the cow!

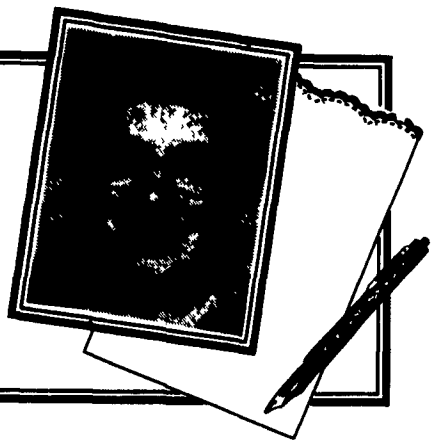
Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser



It's beginning to look a bit like Christmas around here. I've finally made swags for our two front doors from spruce boughs and holly. Our six bushes are covered with red berries this year. We'll put the tree up nearer Christmas.

Earlier, I retyped our address list as many changes of addresses were making it difficult to read. And, then there are always a few names to remove due to deaths. We send almost 90 cards and it is difficult to remove any names. It certainly takes time to write notes in the cards but it is a good way to keep in touch with friends.

We have gathered many decorations over the years and so they are stored at more than one place. I do hope that we find all of them before the holidays.

Over the years I've found that riding in a car with your child is a good time to talk. There are no interruptions from other people and you can share thoughts. The other week I had this opportunity to interact with a grandson as we traveled to our camper.

It was a long drive and even though I had taken books and a puzzle along, it was the little things that entertained him. We made a newspaper hat and "babies in a cradle" with a handkerchief. One fun item was a very big scarf that became our tent. He imagined wild animals that would come to visit us and we would quickly run away.

In the afternoon my husband, son and grandson climbed a mountain. I stayed behind and walked through the woods to a babbling brook with very green ferns growing along it's banks. Small hemlock trees grew nearby too. The best part of this day was when the four-year-old said, "Grandma, I love you."

Farm Women Societies

York Society 26

Fourteen members and two guests of Group 26 met November 16 and had luncheon at the Casablanca Restaurant at Newberry Commons and then went to Yocumtown Church of God for the business meeting.

The meeting was chaired by President Doris Beshore.

Three members celebrated birthdays in November.

Thirty-nine members and guests have signed up for the Christmas banquet at the Iron Kettle Restaurant in Camp Hill.

There was a moment of silence in memory of charter member Shirly Miller who died on October 18.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Martha Huston. There will be an exchange of Christmas gifts.

Lancaster Society 15

Lancaster Farm Women No. 15 met at the home of Kathleen Groff on November 16. Hostesses were Dorothy Houser and Charlotte Stoner. For devotions Kathleen read Psalms 100. For roll call each member attending was required to wear a hat and gloves and donate an item to the Food Bank.

The program was entitled "This is Your Life" in honor of Sadie Greenleaf and Dorothy Johnson. Both of these ladies were past county Farm Women presidents and Sadie was also past State Farm Women secretary.

Arlene Harnish showed slides and Bonnie Herr read a tribute in honor of Sadie and Dorothy. Both ladies received a corsage.

The group was pleased to accept Jean Farmer as a new member who was installed by Sadie Greenleaf. Nancy Shoemaker won a special prize for winning a game played by the group.

Cumberland Holds Farm Women Convention

BETH MILLER
Cumberland Co.
Correspondent

NEWVILLE (Cumberland Co.)—Mary Lehman has seen a lot of things in her long life, and those include a big change in farming.

The biggest change there, said the Newville woman, who was around to see the transition from mules and horses to tractors, is that farming itself has become more "fast paced."

Lehman herself has proven she is durable. She shared her insights with far younger women during the 56th annual convention of the Cumberland County Farm Women, which was held at the Doubling Gap Center near Newville.

Lehman was one of three 90-year-old members the county society honored during the convention. She is an active member of the society's Group 5.

The society's other two 90-year-olds, Frances Eshelman and Velma Shover, both belong to the organization's Group 11.

Other activities during the convention included recognition of three of the society's 30-year-old members; Elizabeth Cummings of Group 3, Mary Gochenauer of Group 6 and Ethel Bahn of Group 12.

New officers also were elected during the event. Those who were chosen for offices will serve two-year terms through November 1997.

Faye Stare from Group 17 was elected as the Society's president. Donna Duncan of Group 5 was elected first vice president.

Betty Wert of Group 13 was chosen to be second vice president. Group 17 member Dottie Dunkelberger was elected as the recording secretary.

Lois Weary from Group 1 was elected as corresponding secretary. Evelyn Ocker from Group 18 was chosen to be the treasurer.

Patricia Lehman, the outgoing president, reviewed the accomplishments of her just-finished two-year term in office.

Safety issues were at the top of her list of goals, she said. Accomplishments in that area included the passage by the state Legislature of a bill that makes it mandatory for young children to wear protective helmets when they are riding their bicycles, Lehman said.

She added that farm safety is getting a lot of publicity and that, hopefully, "will increase awareness of the dangers in today's farm life."

Lehman said she will continue to promote safety by representing the Pennsylvania Farm Women as a member of the American Trauma Society.

"It has been a wonderful experience and I will cherish the memories," she said of her term as the Cumberland Society's president.

Figures Show that 1995 was a year of a slight decline in membership for the Cumberland County society, which has a total of 333 members.

The county organization, which has 23 groups, gained nine new members during the year. Nine members dropped off the rolls and another seven died.

Contributions during the year totaled $5,813.

York Names Outstanding 4-H Dairy Members

SHREWSBURY (York Co.)—York County's three 4-H dairy clubs have wrapped up the year's activities with the announcement of their outstanding members.

Ten dairy youths were honored for their 4-H dairy participation and accomplishments during the annual York County 4-H dairy achievement program, held November 17 at the Shrewsbury Fire Hall.

Outstanding club members from the Central 4-H Dairy Club were intermediate age winner Amy Trimmer, junior Bobbi Leiphart, and a tie for the rookie award between Cory Thompson and Terry Johnson. The rookies also received recognition as 4-H Cloverbuds, or beginning members.

Rebecca Kilgore, intermediate winners, shared Milk and Money 4-H Dairy Club honors with junior winner Kim Pomraning and Heather McElwain, rookie winner. Trisha Marks and Suzanne Pomraning were honored as Cloverbuds.

Southwestern 4-H Dairy Club's senior winner was Dixie Doll, who also handled the program emcee for the annual recognition dinner. Intermediate winner was Michelle Walker and Jason Arnold won the junior honor. Cloverbud winner was Chad Thoman.

Dairy Roundup winners were also recognized during the awards program. Ayrshire exhibitors taking top roundup honors were Jesse Stambaugh, with the senior and grand champion and best bred and owned. Katie Shoemaker had the reserve senior and reserve grand champion, as well as junior champion. Junior champion winner was Stephanie Pomraning.

Monroe Holds 4-H Achievement

STROUDSBURG (Monroe Co.) — The annual Monroe County 4-H Achievement Night was held recently at the West End Fire Hall, Brodheadsville. 4-Hers received recognition for taking part in various 4-H events and activities held during the year. 4-H members learn new skills about such things as taking care of animals, growing plants, making and saving money, preparing food, public speaking, and being a better leader or follower.

Members of 4-H are encouraged to keep records of all their 4-H and non 4-H activities, and they can enter those records, entitled Green Forms, for county competition. Here are the winners for Green Forms:

Senior Division (ages 13 years and up)

1. Sara Smith, R & R Rabbit 4-H Club and Kommunity Kids 4-H Club; 2. Stacey Kresge, Sunnybrook Saddlers 4-H Horse Club; 3. Stephen Slutter Jr., Pocono Mountain Dairy 4-H Club.

Junior Division (ages 8-12)

1. Derek Arnold, Collection Connection 4-H Club; 2. Elizabeth Ruzycki, Mountain Flowers 4-H Club; 3. Robert Slutter, Pocono Mountain Dairy 4-H Club.

The Robert A. Jensen Citizenship Award, given annually to honor Robert A. Jensen, a Vietnam Veteran of Monroe County who died in 1968 while serving his country, was given to Sara Smith. Sara was nominated by her 4-H leader Adele Argot, and chosen by a committee of the 4-H Program Advisory Committee. Sara received a plaque and a $50 award.

There were special monetary awards, and ribbons for the top four 4-Hers. First place went to Jessica Kays, Neola Needles.

Twin Valley FFA Members Excel At Contests

Members of the Twin Valley FFA recently competed in southeastern Pennsylvania FFA contests and came home as big winners.

In the dairy foods contest, freshmen Brandt Barndt and Jamie Powell tied for first place with Julie Peterson placing second, Angie Lynam third, and Katie Coffey fourth.

The team finished in first place.

Dairy foods contestants had to take written tests on milk production and marketing, identify off-flavors in milk, and give each sample a numerical score, identify problems with milker parts and give each set a numerical score, perform California Mastitis Tests and differentiate between real and artificial dairy products.

In the agricultural sales contest, senior Amanda Test captured first place with Andy Teter second and Keely Demarco fourth. The team captured first place. Sales contestants take a written test on sales information, give a sales presentation on a product of their choice, and perform a practicum skill.

This year's skill was to develop a newspaper advertisement for Pennsylvania agricultural products. Sales presentations include developing a product display, developing a written sales packet, and doing a sales presentation to a panel of judges.

Wildlife competition also feature a first place Twin Valley team. Seniors Melissa Makris and Tara Plewa placed first and second, and sophomore Josh Lawrey placing 9th. Wildlife contestants take a written test on knowledge of wildlife species, identify birds and mammals from mounts and furs, identify bird calls, identify wildlife foods and various wildlife signs, and identify tracks. Finally they identify wildlife that would be found on a given habitat and then tell what could be done to manage this habitat to improve it for specific wildlife.

Other Twin Valley wildlife contestants were Aaron Teter, Matt Perini, Jessica Barwell, Scott Ferrell, Rebecca Gardner, Amanda Amoros, Jill DeGazelle, Kristin Leisey, David Lutz, Megan Binasiewicz, Alyssa Taylor, Ryan Smathers, Christy Moyer, Irene Thomas and John Shaffer.

In agricultural mechanics competition, Don Wolf placed 6th, Todd Terry 9th, and Lee Millisock 10th. Mechanics contestants also started with a written test and then performed various mechanics skills, including wiring and welding skills.

In pleasure horse judging, Lura Blosenski placed 3rd among Berks County contestants. Horse contestants identified items of tack, took a written test on knowledge of horses and horse management, and placed classes of horses. Other Twin Valley contestants were Desiree Reesey, Erica Ullman, Chuck Beam, Melissa Miller, and Megan Charron.

Finally students competed in dairy cattle judging. Contestants had to take a written test and place classes of cattle as well as classes of dairy pedigrees. Placing best among the Twin Valley contestants was Kate Collman. Other Twin Valley contestants were Kristy Baker, Teran Moore, Rachael Powers, and Sandy Mast.

Contests conducted by the FFA were to measure skills developed in agriculture classes as well as to enrich some areas of our curriculum. All Twin Valley contestants are agriculture students of either Mr. Harold Dietrich or Ronald Frederick.

Twin Valley FFA Receives National Awards

The Twin Valley FFA was among 350 FFA chapters from across the United States which were honored by the national FFA at their annual convention in Kansas City, Mo.

The Twin Valley chapter received a bronze award in national chapter ranking and a silver award in community service recognition. Each of the more than 8,000 FFA chapters across the United States is cligible for recognition in these award areas.

National chapter awards are based upon the overall activities conducted by the chapter as well as the involvement of chapter members in these activities. Community service awards are based on the chapter's involvement in community service activities.

Twin Valley has been a leader in presenting educational programs to 3rd grade students in each of the district's elementary schools. At the end of the school year, all 3rd grade students are brought to the high school for a tour of the agriculture facilities and lessons at eight different teaching stations.

Members also are very active in a pet therapy program with the Tel-Hai Retirement community. Working with the Pennsylvania Game Commission, chapter members cut more than two acres of brush for habitat improvement and planted tree seedlings on several thousand feet of streambank to prevent erosion.

Members also collect Christmas trees for recycling after the holidays. These trees were used for brush piles for wildlife habitat and to prevent erosion in a gully.

To encourage more member participation, upperclassmen conducted an "adopt a freshman" project last fall. Members participated in state FFA activities such as the Made for Excellence Conference and the State Legislative Leaderhship Conference. Members also attended the county FFA Leadership Conference and the Penn State Collegiate FFA Leadership Conference. They conducted a wildlife and plant survey with the Browning Ferris Conestoga Landfill.

Numerous FFA members participated in county and southeastern Pennsylvania FFA contests and activities. Members showed their expertise in such diverse areas as record keeping, interview skills, forestry, wildlife, pleasure horse judging, and nursery landscape.

Overall, 95 percent of the in-school students in agriculture classes became involved in FFA activities. FFA activities are used to supplement classroom instruction as well as to enrich the curriculum at Twin Valley. Members enjoy career development activities as well as those which enrich their personal lives.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Members of the Pennsylvania state FFA agricultural mechanics was one of 43 teams participating in the National FFA Agricultural Mechanics Career Development Event at the 68th National FFA Convention in Kansas City.

The National FFA Agricultural Mechanics Career Development Event is sponsored by Firestone Agricultural Tire Division in conjunction with the Bridgestone/Firestone Trust Fund, a charitable trust established by Bridgestone/Firestone Incorporated of Nashville, Tenn., as a special project of the National FFA Foundation. The event is held at Ford Osage Vocational-Technical School, Independence, Mo.

Maryland FFA Land Judging Contest

The Linganore FFA Chapter won the first place banner in the land judging contest held recently in Frederick County, Maryland.

The contest is sponsored by the Maryland Association of Soil Conservation Districts as a special project of the Maryland FFA Foundation, Inc.

The high scoring individual for the land judging contest was David O'Hara, member of the Linganore FFA. The Walkersville High School FFA Chapter took the second place banner in the contest.

According to Contest Superintendent, Carl E. Robinette, soil scientist with the United States Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service, 10 teams were registered with 44 members participating.

Contestants were asked to evaluate soils at three sites for the capability and their limiting factors. The members were then to recommend the best management practices for agricultural and nonagricultural land uses at each site.

Jim Brewer and Phil King of the Natural Resource Conservation Service supervised the contest.

The winning teams in the land judging contest from first through third were Linganore High School, Walkersville High School, and Frederick High School.

The top scoring individuals receiving gold medals were: 1. David O'Hara, Linganore FFA; 2. Kevin Saylor, Walkersville FFA. Receiving a silver medal was: 3. William Higgins, Linganore FFA.

For information, contact Ike Williams, State FFA executive secretary, (410) 767-0189.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Members of the Grassland FFA Chapter attended the 68th National FFA Convention here recently where they received special recognition for their achievements in the National FFA Building Our American Communities (BOAC) Award Program.

The award program is sponsored by RJR Nabisco Foundation, Inc. of Washington, D.C. is a special project of the National FFA Foundation.

The BOAC award program recognizes FFA chapters on the local, state and national levels for a wide variety of community development activities including preserving community history, organizing local farmers markets, building feed testing facilities, and many other improvement projects. BOAC projects provide citizenship and leadership development opportunities to students by giving them a chance to work with community leaders and organizations.

The BOAC program has been endorsed by the National Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association, the Farmers Home Administration, USDA, and the U.S. Department of Education.

Cook's • Question • Corner

ANSWER — Mrs. Charles Creasy of Wrightsville wanted a detailed recipe for making beef tripe. Thanks to Josephine Matenus, Dallas, and Kathleen Brandt, Millersville, for sending several different recipes. Tripe is the lining of a beef stomach. Honeycomb tripe is considered best. It is sold fresh or pickled. One pound will serve four. Wash the stomach lining well. Cover with cold water and bring to a boil. Drain, cover with boiling water, cover and simmer until tender 1 to 2 hours.

If fresh tripe is used add ½ teaspoon salt per pound when about half cooked. Use in recipes as indicated.

Broiled Tripe

Dry boiled honey comb tripe well. Brush with fat. Roll in fine bread crumbs. Place on greased broiler rack. Broil under moderate heat until crumbs are browned (2-3 minutes each side).

Fried Tripe

Dip boiled tripe in egg diluted with 2 tablespoons cold water. Roll in fine bread crumbs. Repeat, and fry in hot fat until browned.

Tripe

Clean and take off all tallow. Cut in strips and roll in about 3-inch rolls. Cook in salt water until tripe jags easily with sharp fork. Change the water when halfway through with cooking (it does not smell good while cooking). When soft let cool and lay rolls in vinegar. When cold, slice about ¼ -inch thick and put in fresh vinegar. Kathleen said that her family likes tripe sour. Some people like tripe sweet and sour, which is made by adding sugar to the vinegar.

Tripe Soup

2 pounds tripe
2 pounds pork back ribs
1 large onion
1 cup celery and leaves (diced)
1 cup lima beans
½ cup barley
1½ cups potatoes (diced)
1 cup carrots
2 tablespoons butter
Salt and pepper to taste

Parboil tripe then run through cold water and cut up into small pieces. Place in large soup pot: ribs, tripe, onion, celery and leaves, lima beans, barley, salt, pepper, carrots, and butter. Add water to cover completely and boil 2½ hours or until ribs, tripe and beans are soft. Add boiling water as needed. Add diced potatoes. Cook about 35 minutes longer.

Tripe In Batter

1 pound boiled trip
1 egg, beaten
½ cup cold water
1 teaspoon vinegar
1 teaspoon salad oil
1 cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt

Cut boiled tripe into small pieces. Combine eggs, water, vinegar, and oil. Mix and sift in flour and salt. Beat until smooth. Dip tripe in batter. Fry in hot fat until browned on all sides. Serves 4 to 5.

ANSWER — Becky Hedden, Lewisberry, wanted a recipe for salt-rising bread made with salt-rising yeast. Thanks to Rita Eisensmith, York Haven, for sending a recipe that she hopes is what Becky wants.

Salt-Rising Bread

⅔ cup milk
½ cup corn meal, white, freshly ground
2 cups water, lukewarm
¼ teaspoon baking soda
11-12 cups all-purpose flour, sifted
2 cups boiling water
¼ cup shortening
1 tablespoon salt
3 tablespoons sugar

Scald milk; add corn meal; beat thoroughly. Cover and let stand in a warm place overnight. In the morning the mixture should be light, spongy, and bubbly. If the mixture has not been kept sufficiently warm and has not fermented enough, place container in hot water, let stand until mixture is full of bubbles—about 1 hour.

To the 2 cups lukewarm water, add soda and about 3 cups flour or enough to make a thick batter; add cornmeal sponge and beat well. Place in a pan of warm (almost hot) water and keep in a warm place about 1 hour or until very light and full of bubbles; stir down.

To the boiling water, add shortening, salt, and sugar; let stand until lukewarm. Add to sponge and mix thoroughly. Add enough of the remaining flour to make a stiff dough.

Turn out on lightly floured board and knead about 10 minutes or until smooth and satiny. Divide into three equal portions, form into balls and let stand, covered, about 10 minutes.

Shape into loaves and place in well-greased loaf pans (about 9½ x5½ -inches); brush lightly with melted shortening; let stand in a warm place about 1½ hours to 2 hours or until doubled in bulk.

Bake in 400 degree oven about 40 to 50 minutes. Brush tops of baked loaves with melted butter. Makes three 1½ -pound loaves.

ANSWER — A reader wanted a recipe for pumpkin pancakes. Here is a recipe from Mrs. Ray Keeney, New Freedom.

Apple-Pumpkin Fritters (pancakes)

4 eggs, beaten
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
2 cups applesauce
1 cup pumpkin or squash
2 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teapoon vanilla
2 tablespoons melted shortening

Mix thoroughly. Spoon into greased skillet. Brown on both sides.

ANSWER — Mrs. Larry Groff, Denver, wanted to know how to roast chestnuts. Thanks to Karen Zajac, Wapwallopen, for writing that chestnuts are always best roasted over an open campfire shared with friends and family. But a woodstove fire will do in a pinch! The chestnut shell must first be slit (an X works well). Once you have a hot fire, it is important to keep shaking and moving the chestnuts around in the pan. It takes about 25-30 minutes for the average chestnut and longer for the larger ones. Karen writes, "It is worth the wait. Enjoy!"

It's her grandmother's favorite poem and she could recite every word until a stroke took her voice. She is 89 and in a nursing home, but Glenda reads this poem to her every Christmas. Glenda said that there may be parts missing or wrong since she wrote it from memory.

The yule log blazed in the ancient hold.
The begger shrank from the biting cold.
The baron's only daughter, the little Lady Grace was better dressed than any guest and fairer in the face.
Yet never a thought of pride had she as she gaily danced round the Christmas tree.

When, lo! an ill-clad stranger stood in the firelight's glow.
His head was bare, his golden hair all wet with melting snow.
"Whence comest thou?" the children cried.
And only a dim sweet smile replied.

"It is the little Christ Child," then spoke the Lady Grace,
"I dreamed last night that a halo bright shone round that very face."
And it said, "Be sure you have eyes to see for I shall stand by your Christmas tree."

The Baron staggers backwards and smites his breast.
Before him stands with clasped hands one more unbidden guest.
"Hast thou come back from the dead,
Grace, my sister, Grace?" he said.

They told you falsely brother, seven years ago today with a father's blame and a blighted name, I left this castle gray.
But at Christmas time of every year
I've stood outside, I've seen you here.

My son comes always with me or else I could not come.
He will always be like a babe to me, for he is deaf and dumb.
But I'll take him now and go away and come no more on Christmas Day.

"Nay," then replied the Baron, "Thou shalt not go again,
These seven years of toil and tears amid the scorn of men
Are long enough in sooth, for a lifetime long
We have all done wrong, we have all done wrong!"

Then followed a hearty greeting and the people wept and smiled.
And the Lady Grace with a warm embrace, welcomed the silent child.
But she wept that night on her mother's breast
That the little Christ Child had not been her guest.

ATTENTION FARMERS!

You are invited to attend one of Strite's Soil Seminars. One will be held on 12/12/95 from 9:30 AM to 4:00 PM at the Harvest Drive Restaurant at 3370 Harvest Drive in Intercourse, PA.

The other Seminar will be held on 12/14/95 from 9:30 AM to 4:00 PM at the Black Steer Restaurant in State Line, MD near Exit 1 off I-81 on Mason-Dixon Road.

This is an opportunity to hear Dale L. Schurter. He has been a national and international agricultural consultant for 30 years---consulting, lecturing and giving seminars throughout the U.S. and in 36 foreign countries, specializing in soil fertility management and integrated husbandry systems.

Many questions will be answered and farmers will see for themselves the benefits and money-saving advantages of soil revitalization using natural products. Valuable tips will be given on proper soil testing techniques. Many other important subjects will be covered from which you will benefit.

Make plans to attend now. Please call us if you plan to attend. This will enable us to reserve a seat and lunch for you. Strite's Warehouse (800) 659-3325 or (717) 597-3325.

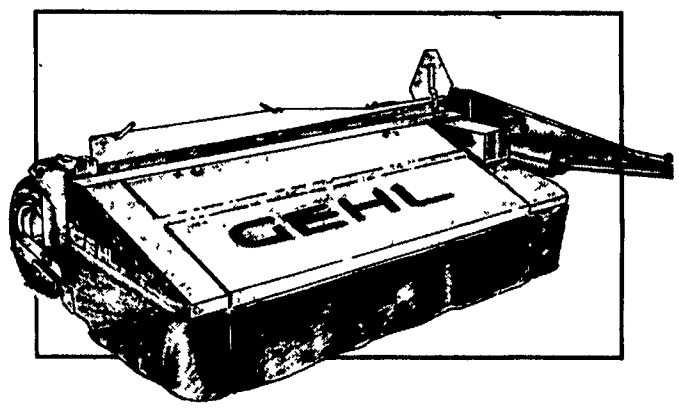
GEHL®

CUT HAY THE DISC WAY!



Gehl has two all-new disc mower conditioners to cut your crop down to size, fast and easy. The DC2340 has 7 discs and a 9 foot cutting width; the DC2360 has 8 discs and a 10-1/2 foot cutting width.

- High speed discs – Each disc has two knives to slice through the toughest crops and conditions; the disc gear drive operates in an oil bath for long life
- Sturdy frame – Cradles the cutterbar for extra protection and durability
- 540 or 1,000 rpm driveline with equal-angle hitch for smooth power transfer.
- Standard hydraulic tongue – Makes it easy to position the unit without leaving the tractor seat

The #1 Name In Feedmaking

Gehl Mix-All® portable grinder-mixers have been leading the industry for ove 30 years Now available with Gehl's famous hammermill or a commercial-grade roller mill to produce the best possible feed for your livestock

- Total hydraulic control - Self-contained hydraulic system allows infinite speeds to power the discharge conveyor, unloading auger and in-feed attachments
- Remote controls - Operate the unloading conveyor from the tractor seat or from the rear of the machine
- Electronic scales - For precise ration weighing
- Customize your machine - With a wide variety of options and attachments

To obtain desired unload time raise/lower expeller gate*
Optimum gate height will vary according to manure consistency

SideKick™ makes manure nutrient management easier.

- Twin conveyor augers and vertical expellers create an even spread pattern for uniform manure application over the entire spread width.
- You control application rate by hydraulically controlling the gate to apply manure at the rate your crop and soil requires.
- Planetary drive system powers conveyor augers through even the toughest manure...long oat straw to gritty poultry litter to dry feedlot to slurry with ice chunks.
- Steep, low sidewalls prevent manure from bridging.
- 3-year warranty* against defects in material and workmanship covers all parts (except normal wear items) and labor. Tank is warranted a full 10 years against rust-through.

United States only. 90-day warranty for commercial applicators. One year in Canada for all applications. See dealer for details*

PEQUEA

Feed your cows with Pequea's portable bunk feeders and round bale movers

Models 510S, 515E, 520, 520H, 525 & 530T Bunk Feeders

Here's a better way to feed your herd! With the Pequea portable bunk feeder, you'll save time – save money. Load it up with silage, haylage, round or square bales or any mixture of grain and forage. Tow it into the field, and feed up to 52 head of cattle at once.

With Pequea's efficient slant-bar system cows can't push each other away from feeding spaces, so you have less feed loss from spills. Convenient low tank height accomodates any size cow.

You can save wear and tear on your pasture and they eliminate heavily trampled spots. Just move it to a new location each day.

The New 520H cattle head gate bunk feeder (below) is the modern answer for holding cattle during breeding, veterinarian, or testing purposes.

Model 520 Specifications

Horse drawn spreaders available in Models 85 & 110

High-capacity features in a practical size!

Manufactured for the smaller-scale farmer or horse barmer, the Pequea Model 85 & 110 manure spreaders are built to make a dirty job easier. Constructed of 10 gauge Cor-Ten steel to resist corrosion, the Model 85 & 110 feature Quik-Tach T-bar web chains for ease of maintenance. High-strength steel frame is designed for big loads and fast field travel. Tough, alloy-steel beater and paddles rip through manure for fine, even spread patterns. Ground-drive action minimizes HP requirements. A hydraulic end-gate is available as optional equipment. Both Model 85 bushel & 110 bushel capacity deliver big spreader features in an economical, maintenance-free size.

WE'RE SERIOUS ABOUT SILAGE

3-YEAR NUTRITIONAL SUMMARY OF CORN SILAGE

Pioneer® Brand Hybrids vs. All Competitors

Livestock producers are in the business of producing milk or meat. Pioneer® brand hybrids are rated for yield and protein content of both silage and grain, as well as silage digestibility, to help you match our hybrids with your feeding needs.

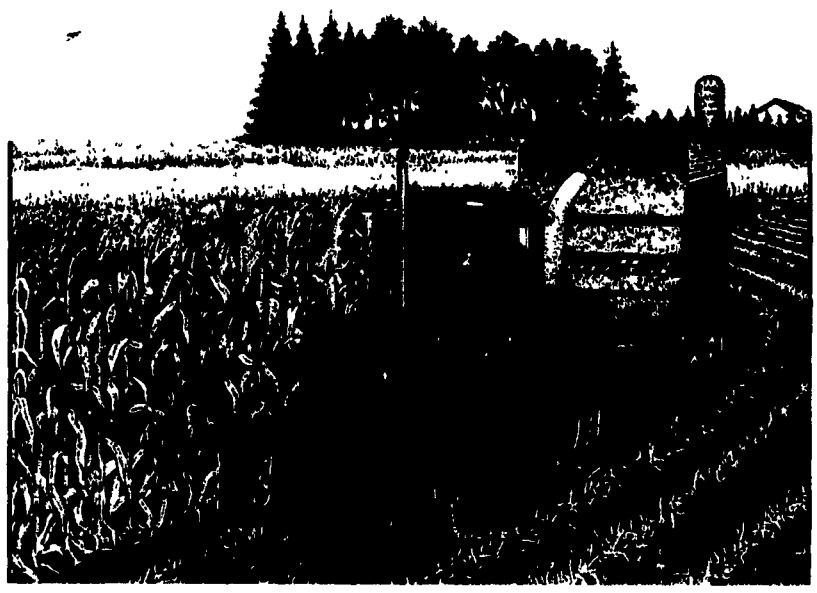
*Data from Pennsylvania, New York and New England

Milk Yield/Acre = NE-L x Dry MatterLbs. of Silage/Acre x 0.50 = Lbs of Milk/Acre
0 34 NE-L/Pounds of Milk

0.34 = NE-L required to produce 1 pound of 4% butterfat milk on a dry matter basis
0 50 = Half of the energy is available for milk production
Potential Milk Yield/Acre is a conservative estimate only.



Silage Yield is important to all silage growers, but silage quality should also be figured into the buying decision. Silage yield may be the most important trait for beef producers or for dairy producers feeding growing heifers and dry cows

Grain Yield will have a significant impact on the energy value of the silage Grain is nearly 90% digestible and makes up approximately 50% of the silage's weight Thus grain yield affects both the quality and quantity of silage produced

Silage Crude Protein may be quite important to some producers, but generally corn silage is fed for its energy value. There is relatively little variation among hybrids in silage protein Silage protein would be more important if corn silage is the only forage fed to dairy cows

Silage Digestibility is extremely important for high-producing dairy herds Higher digestibility generally translates into higher feed intakes and increased milk production. Pioneer measures corn silage digestibility with an in situ method where the silage is suspended in the cow's rumen for 24 hours This allows us to calculate the percent of the forage digested which is reported in the column above as in situ

Pioneer® brand hybrids are "cutting edge" for corn silage! Check out a plot near you.

Midwestern Governors Call For Voluntary Plans

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Five Midwestern governors called on Congress to include voluntary agricultural resource management plans (VARMPs) in the 1995 Farm Bill.

"Regulatory reform and voluntary compliance are inherent in voluntary agricultural resource management plans," Governors Jim Edgar (R-IL), Terry E. Branstadt (R-IA), Arne H. Carlson (R-MN), George V. Voinovich (R-OH), and Tommy G. Thompson (R-WI) said in a letter to members of Congress. "[W]e encourage you to explore this integrated, site-specific approach to enhanced environmental stewardship."

The purpose of VARMPs is to provide the educational component which leads to the technical and financial investment to encourage the enhancement of environmental stewardship. These plans are to be farmer- and rancher-owned, controlled, developed and implemented. Federal and state agencies should not be placed in a position to direct or mandate the contents of these plans — to do so assures this positive approach to environmental enhancement will fail. Farmers and ranchers should voluntarily make the decisions on how to protect their natural resources, not federal or state governments.

As proposed by the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture (NASDA), the VARMP concept would replace all current environmental and conservation cost-share programs at USDA with one voluntary, incentive-based program. "This will reduce confusion, pool government resources, and provide for efficient management of environmental enhancement. Its purpose is to provide technical, educational, and financial investment to encourage the enhancement of environmental stewardship," said John F. Tarburton, president-elect of NASDA and secretary of the Delaware Department of Agriculture before a USDA forum on the 1995 Farm Bill.

VARMPs are an integrated approach, that are site-specific in their application. The concept would afford increased outreach to farmers by providing knowledge and direct goverment investment to farmers for implementation of the resource management plan.

Farmers and ranchers clearly support congressional efforts to offer them incentives rather than mandates to allow them to voluntarily manage their land and balance their economic needs with their land's environmental needs. Data recently released by NASDA showed that 74 percent of 1,200 farmers and ranchers surveyed in Indiana, Iowa, Kansas and Mississippi believed it was important to include the VARMP concept in the 1995 Farm Bill.

American Cyanamid, BASF Enter Supply Agreement

WAYNE, N.J.—American Cyanamid Company and BASF announced that they have entered into an agreement in which BASF will supply Cyanamid with private brand acifluorfen and sethoxydim herbicide products.

The chemistry of acifluorfen and sethoxydim is compatible with Cyanamid's imidazolinone (imi) technology. Cyanamid's imi herbicides are effective at remarkably low application rates, and stop weed growth by inhibiting an enzyme which is not present in mammals, but is essential to plant growth.

Acifluorfen and sethoxydim will complement Cyanamid's imi product portfolio and offer growers with additional weed management options.

Cyanamid plans to launch the new products in 1966. The products will be sold in 12 states, including Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Missouri, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, Kansas, South Dakota, and Nebraska.

"We're pleased to add these products to our portfolio and provide growers with additional, effective weed management options. This alliance will benefit both Cyanamid and BASF and enable each to strengthen its position in the marketplace," said Howard L. Minigh, president, Cyanamid Agricultural Products Division.

BIRD HEALTH VS. GOOD PAWS!

Dr. Michael Hulet
Associate Professor Department Of Poultry Science

Winter is well under way and efforts to optimize ventilation and minimize heat losses are meeting head-on.

At this time of year, ventilation rates are minimized to a level of around 0.4 CFMs (cubic feet per minute) per pound of bird. The ventilation rate is contrasted with the desire to maintain a temperature consistent with the age of the bird.

The equalizer in the system is the heating source. While after a certain age the grower usually relies on bird-generated heat, the younger birds must be supplemented with propane gas-generated heat. Therefore as the outside temperature decreases, the tendency for the grower is to tighten up and reduce air flow in order to decrease the cost of supplying extra propane heat.

If adequate heat is not supplied, two possible results can happen: 1) the older birds are given lower than optimum temperatures and extra feed is consumed by them to meet the body's increased need for heat; or 2) the younger birds who still can't maintain body heat with added feed consumption are cold stressed.

Stressing the bird lowers immunity and results in susceptibility to disease organisms present in the environment. However, if adequate heat is not supplied and desired temperature is maintained by reducing ventilation rates, the following can occur: increased humidity, dust, and ammonia can also stress birds and make them very susceptible to respiratory disease and the possibility of secondary infections. Further, secondary disease organisms such as e. coli can attack respiratory or digestive systems and cause increased mortality (airsacculitis, coli septicemia, enteritis, etc.).

Ammonia is a particularly noxious gas that is associated with the bacterial breakdown of poultry litter. Heat, water, and poultry litter is combined with bacterial action to produce ammonia.

Ammonia has been shown to reduce both bird performance and increase susceptibility to disease. The effects of ammonia are particularly critical for producers who grow birds on built-up litter. For chicks brooded on built-up litter, all the circumstances of heat, moisture, and manure are combined to increase ammonia concentrations. Without increased ventilation or use of litter additives to reduce bacterial release of ammonia, birds can be stunted, blinded and left susceptible to disease organisms. Levels of ammonia in the house can easily approach 90 to 100 ppm on built-up litter unless action is taken to eliminate the volatilization of ammonia.

An ammonia concentration of 5 ppm is the least detectable level by smell for a human. Twenty-five ppm is a compromise level; between one which may damage bird performance in some instances, but economically a level that can be practically tolerated. At concentrations above 50 ppm, ammonia can cause reductions in animal performance (weight and feed conversion) and health.

The first 3 to 4 weeks of growth for commercial poultry are thought to be most critical in maintaining levels of ammonia below 25 ppm. Peoples' ability to detect ammonia can be affected by colds, allergies, or smoking.

Relatively inexpensive equipment is available to detect concentrations of ammonia in the poultry house and can be used by growers to help "calibrate" their noses. After 4 weeks of age, the optimal temperature required for commercial poultry is around 68 to 70 degrees Fahrenheit and increased ventilation rates can be more easily used at this time to reduce ammonia concentrations in the house.

Ventilation during wintertime is also used to reduce moisture levels in the litter. Low litter moisture to reduce ammonia generation is always stressed by ventilation experts. The ability to reduce litter moisture is based on maintaining a differential between the outside and the inside house temperature — that is, a 20-degree increase in air temperature doubles its water holding capacity.

Emphasis on proper ventilation never seemed to be stressed to my satisfaction, however, until the market for chicken paws became an economic reality. So whether your desire is to increase performance (a less apparent economic reason) or to increase production of high quality, non-ammonia burned chicken feet (paws), adequate ventilation rates, desirable temperature, and decreased ammonia concentrations should be maintained during the winter production of commercial poultry.

Keystone Farm Credit Forms Alliance

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)—Keystone Farm Credit and American Express Financial Advisors (AXP Advisors) announced that effective December 1, 1995, they have formed an alliance.

AXP Advisors will provide financial planning services and products to Keystone Farm Credit customers through Keystone's Lancaster and Quarryville branches in Lancaster County and their Avondale branch in Chester County.

Phil Kimmel, Keystone Farm Credit president, said that they expect to expand the program to the rest of Keystone's 15-county territory in the near future.

American Express Financial Advisors, Inc., headquartered in Minneapolis, Minn., provides an array of financial products and services to nearly two million individuals and businesses throughout the nation. For the past two years, AXP Advisors has established relationships with commercial banks and credit unions in a number of states to deliver financing planning services to their customers.

"We are convinced that farmers and other rural residents have a need and a desire for high-quality financial planning through their financial institution. We are able to offer that, as well as a wide-range of quality investment products, through this program," said Jim Choat, senior vice president for AXP Advisors.

Leidy's Expansion Prepares For Future

SOUDERTON (Montgomery Co.)—Leidy's Inc. has recently begun construction on a 42,000 square foot expansion.

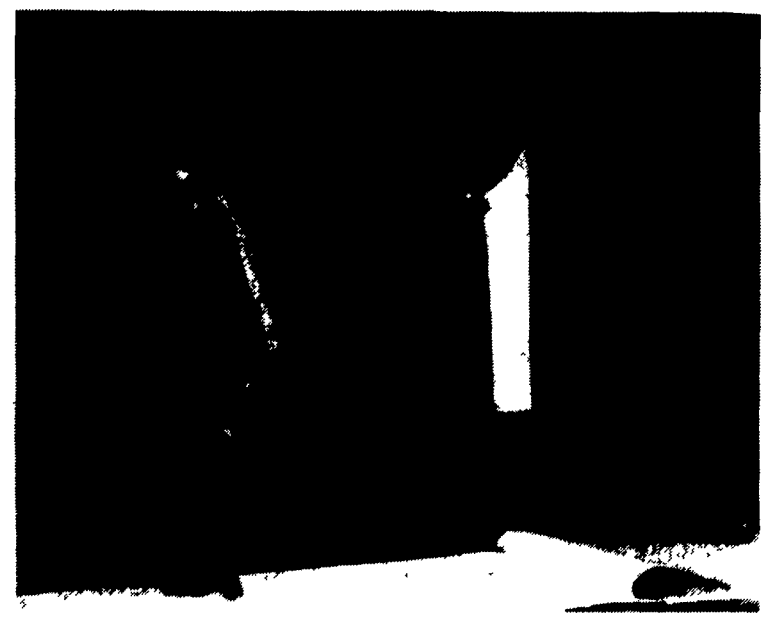
Leidy's has operated a pork processing plant since the early 1900s. This new production facility will double their capacity for production of pork specialty products and consumer cut fresh pork.

"We have a wonderful relationship with many eastern Pennsylvania growers. And with the expansion of our facility we look forward to doing more business in the not-too-distant future," said Thomas Leidy, president. "Our new facility will offer an animal holding area that will allow for greater convenience in delivery times and schedules."

"Our grandfather developed the Leidy passion for excellence; our father perpetuated it; and we are institutionalizing it," said Leidy. "Safety has always been a primary concern in our plant operations."

Leidy's, Inc. has received an AMI award for safe workplace practice.

"We voluntarily set up a total quality control program for our plant. It's a more expensive way to do things but we believe it's what gives us a better product and is essential in ensuring the safety of the worker and the sanitation standards we require for the meat we deliver to the store."



Looking over the blueprints for Leidy's expansion are President Thomas Leidy, left, and Vice President and Chief Operations Officer Terry Leidy.

Beginning the early 1900s, Leidy's has grown to its present size, processing more than 600,000 pounds of pork per week. Leidy is one of a few full-line medium-sized pork processing plants in the country.

Pioneer Plans Insect-Protected Hybrids

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Pioneer Hi-Bred International Inc. plans to use Monsanto Company's technology for YieldGard insect protected corn in Pioneer brand seed corn.

Monsanto licensed the technology for YieldGard to Pioneer for use in Pioneer's proprietary breeding lines.

"We're pleased the leading seed company has chosen the leading agricultural biotechnology company as a partner in developing insect protected corn seed," said Tom Klevorn, Monsanto's business director for corn.

"We're excited about the resistance to corn borer offered by this new technology," said Jack Cavanah, vice president and director of corn research for Pioneer. "Pioneer customers will derive additional value from this protection against European corn borer."

The protection in YieldGard is provided by a protein derived from Bacillus thuringienses (Bt), a common, naturally ocurring soil microorganism.

Foliar preparations based on Bt has been used for insect control for more than 30 years by home gardeners, organic growers, and other farmers. The protein is effective in controlling certain target insect pests, but harmless to humans, animals and birds. It also allows other, beneficial insects to thrive.

Corn with YieldGard protects against European corn borer and other boring insects of the order Lepidoptera.

Pour-On Offers Lice-Free Guarantee

WHITEHOUSE STATION, N.J.—In yet another industry first, Merck AgVet is offering producers with beef and non-breeding age dairy cattle the opportunity to rid their herds of lice—guaranteed.

The company announces its Lice-Free Guarantee Program featuring Ivomec® (ivermectin) Pour-On as part of a comprehensive parasite control regime.

This initiative is expected to enable cattlemen to recoup some of the more than $100 million they fail to realize annually due to depressed livestock performance attributed to lice.

"Cattle producers don't want to see their herd losing hair and rubbing against fences due to lice," said Brad Holen, cattle feedlot product manager with Merck AgVet. "If they do, it's likely that their cattle are not performing to their potential, which can mean higher production costs and reduced profits."

Increased production costs in lice-infested cattle can stem from decreased weight gain, reduced vitality, anemia and a weakened immune system. These problems often appear in calves, yearlings and unthrifty animals. Costs can also rise from damage caused by excessive rubbing by cattle against facilities.

Both biting lice and sucking lice are responsible for producing problems in cattle.

"Producers who want to have a lice-free herd this winter and next spring will find it relatively easy to accomplish if they follow the recommended guidelines," said Duane Maye, DVM, cow-calf product manager at Merck AgVet. "However, producers must spend some time thinking about management strategies that take into account housing and pasture situations."

Here are the keys to making Merck AgVet's Lice-Free Guarantee Program work:

•Treat all animals entering the same confined pen or pasture with Ivomec Pour-On within a four-day period.

•Keep all untreated animals out of pens or pastures housing treated animals. Eliminate contact between treated and untreated animals in adjacent pens or pastures.

•Treat every animal according to dosage and application recommendations stated on the label.

Weinstein Joins White Oak Mills

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.)—White Oak Mills is pleased to announce the addition of Larry Weinstein of Lancaster as vice president of finance.

His daily responsibilities include overseeing the accounting and management information system departments.

Having earned a bachelor of science degree in accounting and a master's of business administration from York College of Pennsylvania, he previously worked as a CPA for Miller, Miller & Co., CPAs, as vice president of finance for Round Hill Foods, and most recently as controller for Brown's of Carolina. He joined White Oak Mills on July 24.

Case Receives Awards For Innovation

RACINE, Wis.—Case Corporation continues to receive numerous awards for product excellence. Adding to this list, four Case IH agricultural products were recently named among the Agricultural Engineering 50.

The AE 50 selects products based on outstanding innovations in product or systems technology. The four Case IH products receiving recognition are the 2100 Series Axial-Flow® combines, 2155 Cotton Express® picker, 8850 High Performance Self-propelled Windrower, and the 6800 Combo-mulch Ripper.

"At Case we're dedicated to providing superior products and services for our customers," said Jon Carlson, vice president, North American sales and marketing. "Receiving the AE 50 awards reinforces our commitment to quality and customer satisfaction."

Companies—component/material suppliers, equipment manufacturers, and system developers—from many different industries submitted nominations to be honored among the AE 50. Top developments were selected by a panel of national engineering experts to receive the highly prized recognition for addressing market needs.

The 2100 Series Axial-Flow combine is one of four Case IH products awarded this year's Agricultural Engineering 50.

Pleasure, Work Driving Horses Make Comeback

BRIDGEVILLE, Del.—The Carriage Place, a commercial horse and carriage business owned and operated by Ed and Deana Banning, Clydesdale breeders, is offering one of the most comprehensive three-day beginner's driving clinics in the east, on the following dates: Dec. 28-30, Jan. 25-27, Feb. 22-24, and March 21-23.

The clinics will take place on The Banning's Clydesdale Horse Farm on County Rd. 531 (just before Four Paws) outside of Seaford, Del.

Each seminar will begin at 6 a.m. and end after sundown all three days. The morning clinics will cover grooming, nutrition, horse and stable care, harness care, breaking and training of horses, safety, dental, veterinary and hoof care, while afternoons will be open for harnessing, driving and working single and double horses in the field, pulling a disc, plow, work sled, drag, fore cart, wagon and manure spreader. Each person will receive plenty of one-on-one, hands-on driving experience daily.

A tentative schedule of trainers and staff are Wendy Fearins, Harrington, Del., George Parris, Delmar, Del., Jim Parkinson, Dagsboro, Del. and Clint Glenn, Ed Evans, and Billy Bean, Laurel, Del. A veterinarian from Cokesbury Equine Clinic and Larry Simpson, an equine dentist, will conduct a portion of the training.

Mopac Announces Beef Division Promotions

SOUDERTON (Montgomery Co.)—Moyer Packing Company (MOPAC) has announced the promotion of three employees.

Don Countryman of Hatboro has been named vice president of quality assurance for the company's beef division. Countryman has been an intricate part of the company's growth since joining MOPAC in 1984, and most recently served as director of beef quality assurance.

With this appointment, he has assumed the responsibility of dealing with all government regulatory affairs as it concerns beef and beef products.

Robert Line of Harleysville has been appointed vice president of sales and marketing for the company's beef division. Since joining MOPAC in 1986, Line has been instrumental in the development of MOPAC's boxed beef program, and he initiated the company's export program. Line has assumed the added responsibility of the Elizabethville facility, and now serves as a member of the Beef Strategic Planning Group.

Robert Russell of Harleysville has taken on the position of vice president of operations, also with the company's beef division. His area of responsibility includes all of the production and manufacturing for this division. Russell will serve as a member of the Beef Strategic Planning Group and will be responsible for fabrication, grinding, and slaughter operations. Russell, a MOPAC employee of more than 12 years, is recognized by MOPAC as a "keystone" member in developing, designing, and building the new fabricating unit.

Deere Video Teaches Children To Play Safely

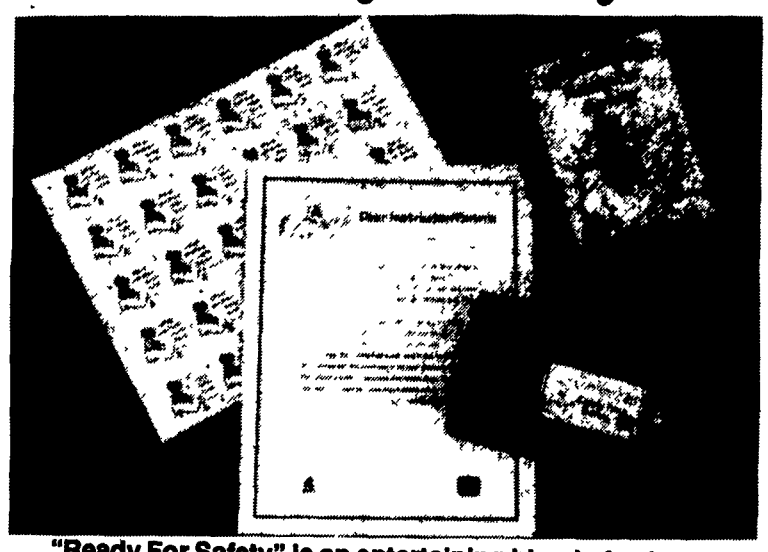
MOLINE, Ill.—He's b-a-a-a-c-k!

Following highly successful appearances on lollipops, pencils, and crayon boxes, as well as in his own coloring book, John Deere's Ready Rooster™ returns to the spotlight—this time starring in a new video for children called "Ready for Safety."

Though some may think Ready has gone Hollywood, this rooster continues to take his responsibility as Deere's safety "spokescharacter" seriously.

In the video, Ready teaches children how to play safely on a farm through an entertaining blend of animation and live farm footage. Like any good teacher, Ready checks his students' learning with a review and brief quiz at the end of the lesson.

For real-life teachers who want to use the video in their classrooms, a discussion guide complete with a Safety Scout quiz and stickers is available. This learning resource helps not only teachers, but also group leaders and parents evaluate what children have learned, while reinforcing key points stressed in the tape.



"Ready For Safety" is an entertaining blend of animation and live farm footage that features John Deere's safety "spokescharacter" Ready Rooster™ teaching children how to play safely on a farm. A discussion guide and Safety Scout stickers are also available to reinforce the key learning points of the video.

The video is intended for children age 3 to 10 who live on a farm or who visit a farm. The tape runs six minutes and 30 seconds.

The tape and discussion guide are available through John Deere dealers or by mailing a check or money order to the Ready Rooster Department, John Deere Distribution Center, 1400 13th Street, East Moline, IL 61244.

The suggested list price is $9 for the tape (DKV940261) and $1 for the discussion guide and 60 stickers (DKE6186). All Distribution Center orders (any quantity) should include $3 for shipping and handling.

Does Color Indicate Cattle Quality?

BOZEMAN, Mont. — Perception or reality: Coat color of cattle reflects carcass quality and profitability?

Many people have their own perception about the issue. Some say that any black-hided animal will be of superior quality (quality grade, yield, taste, tenderness, etc.).

Others may say that a red-hided animal will out-perform a black-hided animal. Still other people will say that coat color doesn't make a difference, and that good management and strict performance programs will give the industry what they need, not the color of an animal's skin.

In Kansas, the Commercial Cattle Improvement Program (CCIP) is addressing the issue and studying the effect of coat color on profitability and quality; therefore, bringing reality to most people's perceptions. For four years the CCIP has tracked coat color, performance, and profitability on 859 head of steers to determine if coat color can in fact affect quality and profitability.

"Color discrimination is a fad without the facts to support it," said Dean Haddock, manager of the CCIP. "We have witnessed in recent years black bulls of all breeds bringing $1,000 or more than a red or flower bull with superior performance and EPDs. In out test we have seen an equal distribution of color when comparing it to profitability."

The CCIP program proves that performance pays. In 1995, a rat-tail steer recorded the highest profits and a red and white spotted steer won in 1992 and 1994. In each of those years, the least profitable animal was black-hided.

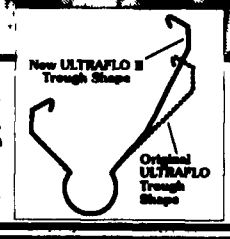
New Shape
The difference is the shape of the feeder's trough (at right). ULTRAFLO II's higher trough lip reduces feed waste by keeping it in the trough and not on the floor or in the pit.



The Right Choice in cage feeders

Chore-Time's popular ULTRAFLO® Cage Feeding System is now even more outstanding! We've developed and tested the second generation of ULTRAFLO feeders and named it the ULTRAFLO® II.

ULTRAFLO II offers you even greater reliability, durability, and outstanding feed-saving performance—up to 1 gram of feed per bird per day—over the original ULTRAFLO. And even the original ULTRAFLO was beating our competitors in feed savings!

So, join the cage feeding leader. Contact us today. Find out how Chore-Time and ULTRAFLO II can help you be a leader, too!

Maryland DHIA Report For October

The October 1995 Dairy Herd Improvement information for dairy herds from the DHI processing center in Provo, Utah. The list includes herds from Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia. The information is listed by herd name, county association, number of cows in the herd and the average production per cow in the herd. To be included, the herd must have 10 cows averaging 65 pounds or more of 3.5 percent fat corrected milk per cow, per day. All herds reported are on official DHI or DHIR test.

Also listed are the top eight herds in Maryland for the Brown Swiss, Guernseys, and Jerseys, and the top six herds for Ayrshires.

Dairy Economists Explore Possible Effects Of Industry Deregulation

MARK STEPHENSON
Cornell University
Sr. Extension Associate

ITHACA, N.Y.—Navigating a deregulated dairy industry is an uncharted course, but thanks to more than 50 of the nation's dairy economists and policy analysts the industry now has a partial map.

The group met in Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 24-25, to discuss "The 1995 Farm Bill: Implications and Impacts," the topic of the second Invitational Workshop for Dairy Economists and Policy Analysts, sponsored by the Extension Education Committee of the Cornell Program on Dairy Markets and Policy.

What the industry would look like if federal price supports and marketing orders were eliminated, as proposed by the U.S. House of Representatives, was the major topic of discussion.

And whether cooperatives would be able to effectively represent their members is a critical question for dairy producers living in a deregulated world. Dairy cooperatives could be nearly unrecognizable.

"Co-ops must compete, not cooperate," concluded one of five discussion groups. Co-ops must play by the "Eat or be eaten" rule, the group added. Others predicted that cooperation between co-ops would increase.

Becoming larger or more specialized was viewed as the key to survival by several groups, while others thought that offering special services, such as cost-based balancing to Class I processors or milk price hedging to producers, would allow co-ops to continue to fill a need while adjusting to a new market order.

Deregulation also could increase the number of strategic alliances, between co-ops, between co-ops and proprietary dairy firms, between U.S. exporters and foreign marketers, and between dairy processors and U.S. firms currently not in the dairy business.

Nearly all of the participants said deregulation would bring an end to the pure bargaining co-op.

Without "brick and mortar," a co-op will have little bargaining power. Some even suggested that co-ops enter the fluid business, while others warned co-ops not to compete with their customers.

"Co-ops cannot be in the fluid business and then sell to bottlers," said one economist. Regardless of what strategies co-ops adopt to survive, brick and mortar losses are inevitable.

One group predicted that only half of today's co-ops would survive deregulation due to both an increased number of mergers and financial failures. Another said fluid manufacturers processing less than 20 million pounds of milk per month—a medium-sized plant—will also be at risk.

All of the economists expect a short-term drop in milk prices from deregulation, with an unequal impact across and within regions.

Low-cost farms have always had an advantage, but under deregulation being a low-cost producer will become even more important. Large, well-located farms with good-quality milk will have the most staying power.

Most farm failures will occur in the Southeast, mid-South, and Northeast. The Midwest is also vulnerable, some said, while the Pacific states and Southwest will continue to gain market share.

Class I milk prices will be the first to fall.

"There's no reason to pay more for milk going into the bottle than for milk going into cheese," said one participant. "Class I prices will fall to cheese levels."

Individual bottlers will strive to be the low-cost buyer of milk, and with market information privatized, the perception that others are securing milk for less, could send prices even lower, said one group.

Class I handlers will look for consistent supplies of milk, which will lead to "cherry picking" of large-herd producers whose operations are located in close proximity to plants, transportation routes, and population centers.

Those producers will be able to command a Class I premium from the market, but it won't be large, they said. Instead of monthly, Class I milk could be priced on a seasonal basis, or perhaps annually, but it will be bought and sold on contract, with quantity and quality specified.

What to do with excess supply will be a problem, especially before export markets are developed and domestic prices match world market levels.

"Who will step up to the plate and say, 'I want to tighten up the domestic market, so I'll take $2 per hundredweight less for my milk?'" asked one economist.

Looking further out, however, predictions became more optimistic. In the short-term, 1-5 years post deregulation, exports could account for 2-4 percent of the U.S. milk supply; in the next decade, 3-10 percent; and in the next 10-15 years, 10-20 percent of domestic supply.

Chester County Recognizes 4-H Dairy, Goat Members

GUTHRIESVILLE (West Chester)—The Chester County 4-H Dairy and Dairy Goat Awards banquet was held recently at the East Brandywine Fire Hall.

The Chester County Kids Dairy Goat Club was in charge of the affair and the various 4-H members of the clubs conducted the meeting with Jason Wagner, Spring City, serving as the emcee. Karen Inhof, Chester County dairy princess, talked to the group about her role in promoting dairy products and dairy farming.

Russ Albright, Keystone Farm Credit, gave the group an update on the Romano 4-H Center of Chester County. Site work has progressed and an area has been prepared for the first building, a 200 foot by 80 foot pole building with numerous 10 foot sliding doors that can be opened for summer and closed and locked at other times. The building will be 14-15 feet high at the walls and there will be ventilating fans in the ridge. It is expected that the project will go out on bids very soon. Also in 1996, a horse ring will be built adjacent to the pole building. 4-H events including the dairy roundup are being planned for the Center next year. He urged all 4-H members and their families to continue to seek sources of funds.

The awards section of the program began with the 4-H dairy goat awards. Trophies were presented to the high individual project book scores in each club based on the quality and completeness of their book and their performance at the county roundup in July. Veronica Bates, Gradyville captured the High Achievement Award for the Chester County Kids Club. In the New London Club, Jessica Bohmier, New London, had the top project award with Rachell DuVall, Lincoln University, receiving the First Year Club Award. Awards were also presented to the fitting and showing champions and the breed champions from the Chester County 4-H Dairy Goat Roundup this past summer.

The top Achievement Award for Dairy based on the total project score was won by Tri-Community member Melissa Wertz, Phoenixville, with her Jersey calf project, Damview Juno Keasha. Other Achievement Award winners were Kevin Sollenberger of the Tri-Community Dairy Club with the First Year trophy. In the Manor Dairy Club, Kathryn Bates, Gradyville, was the winner with Jennifer Batchelder, Glen Mills, taking First Year honors. Tarik Gaffney, Downingtown captured the award in the Chester Valley Club while Becky Baily, West Chester, was the First Year winner.

Production Awards, based on M.E., 305 day records, 2X were given to the top entries in four breeds. The Ayrshire winner for milk and protein was S&M Ayr Mozart Pearly with 17,025 pounds of milk and 521 pounds of protein entered by Kevin A. Nolan, Pottstown. Vicky Hewitt, Spring City, had the high Holstein for milk and protein, Hewitts Melwood Melba, with 25,581 pounds of milk and 728 pounds of protein. Patrick Joyce, owned by Erica Lloyd, Pottstown, was the high Jersey cow for milk with 22,122 pounds. Tarik Gaffney, Downingtown, was tops in the Jersey breed for protein with Top-O-Hill Juno Tootsie Roll who had 797 pounds. Kevin Sollenberger, Spring City, had the high Guernsey for milk and protein, Warwick Manor Sarge Robin, with 21,027 pounds of milk and 698 pounds of protein. Trophies were also given out to the 1995 4-H Dairy Roundup Show winners and fitting and showmanship champions.

Farm Credit awards to dairy members for excellence in a wide variety of 4-H activities went to Melissa Wertz, Phoenixville for the Senior Award, a $50 savings bond, and a $25 cash award went to Erica Lloyd, Pottstown, as the junior winner. In the 4-H dairy goat division, Jason Wagner, Spring City received the $50 savings bond with Jessica Bohmier, New London receiving the $25 cash award. They were presented by Russ Albright from Keystone Farm Credit, ACA, Avondale.

Idaho Milking Shorthorn Sets Production Record

BELOIT, Wis. — An Idaho Milking Shorthorn cow recently set a new 305-day production record for the registered breed.

Idalee Garnet Topsy-EXP, owned by Martin and Susan Lee, of Jerome, Idaho, made 31,460 pounds of milk, 969 pounds of fat, and 912 pounds of protein.

Topsy's lactation began when she was six-years, one-month old. She was still milking recently and was expected to produce more than a ton of milk solids (2,000 pounds of fat and protein) before completing 365 days in lactation.

Classified a Very Good 85, she carries a Cow Performance Index (CPI) of +198 and a Predicted Transmitting Ability (PTA) for type of +.2, while her PTA for production includes a +1,905 pounds milk, +43 pounds milk, and +42 pounds protein. She has a dollar value of +191 milk fat and protein dollars.

The Lee's Idalee prefix herd consists of 113 milking cows with a rolling herd average of more than 20,000 pounds milk. Idalee has a herdmate production deviation of +4,358 pounds milk, +96 pounds fat, and +97 pounds protein. Her sire is Idalee Quiet Revolution.

In making the production record, Topsy beat the previous 305-day record of 28,070 pounds milk, 850 pounds fat, and 829 pounds of protein made by another Idalee cow, Janine Jubilee-EXP. The previous record stood from April 1994 to October this year.

Prior to Janine's record, an Oklahoma-bred cow, Washita Ann's Bonnie-EXP held the honors from 1986 until April 1994.

As a dairy producer, Topsy has been a consistent gainer for the Lees. As a 2-year-old, she made 21,070 pounds of milk, 682 pounds of fat, and 631 pounds protein in 334 days.

As a 3-year-old, she made 22,040 pounds of milk in 284 days; as a 4-year-old she made 23,210 pounds milk in 291 days; and as a 5-year-old, she made 25,440 pounds of milk in 330 days.

A Topsy daughter that sold in last year's national Milking Shorthorn sale recently finished her first 305-day lactation with a record of 18,380 pounds of milk, 556 pounds fat, and 586 pounds of protein.

Berks Holstein Club Honors Members

New directors elected to the board are Gary Kurtz, Kevin Sattazahn, and Duane Stump.

Laszlo Mozes, president of Pennsylvania Holstein Association, was the guest speaker for the evening. He described agricultural conditions in his native land of Hungary which is approximately the size of Indiana. Crop farming is done by 60 percent of the farms in Hungary, with main crops being corn, potatoes, and sugar beets.

Mozes also offered congratulations to members of the Berks County Dairy Judging team who placed first in national competition. Team members are Jennifer Neiman, Michael Neiman, Erica Davis, and Melissa Werley.

Junior Dairy Club awards were presented as follows:

•2-year-old: Lynette Heffner—high milk, high fat; and Gregory Davis—high protein.

•3-year-old: Gregory Davis—high milk, high protein; and Eric Troutman—high fat.

•4-year-old: Lynette Heffner—high milk, high fat, high protein.

•5-year-old and over: Erica Davis—high milk, high fat, high protein.

Progressive Breeder Award status was achieved by Erica Davis, Gregory Davis, and Jason Troutman. Jesse Bitler was named distinguished junior member.

Executive director of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, Bill Nichols, reported on export activities of the Association.

Also during the program, Reu-Hel Farm of Mohrsville was recognized as high BAA 107.8.

Maryland Holstein Scholarships

DICKERSON, Md. — Seven scholarships are to be available to qualifying Maryland residents through the sponsorship of the Maryland Holstein Association.

According to a recent news release, the Maryland Holstien Association Scholarship Committee has announced that six $500 scholarships and one $2,000 scholarship are to be awarded to resident agricultural college students.

The deadline for applying is Jan. 5. To obtain an application, call or write Arthur and Peggy Johnson, chairpeople of the Scholarship Committee at 22520 Mt. Ephraim Rd., Dickerson, Md. 20842, phone (301) 972-8247.

Of the $500 scholarships:

• Two are to be available to students of the University of Maryland College of Agriculture;

• Two are to be available to students enrolled in the two-year program of the University of Maryland Institute of Applied Agriculture, or a similar program at another college;

• Two are to be available to resident students enrolled in agriculture at the college of their choice.

Out of the winners of the six scholarships, one person is to be selected to receive a $2,000 Frank D. Brown Jr. Memorial Scholarship, made to the most outstanding scholarship applicant.

Applicants must be Maryland residents who have had registered Holsteins as 4-H or FFA projects and must be currentlyenrolled in an agriculture program.

All applications will be considered and the winners notified.

THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

The major costs on dairy and livestock farms are related to FEED: production...harvesting...storage...purchases...delivery to animals. Significant savings in time and money are possible when you store and deliver your feed from a poured concrete silo.

"As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency: This can have as great an influence on Profit as milk price changes."

Protect your valuable feeds from rain, sleet, snow, mud, ice, wind and the sun's heat. Reduce the stress. INCREASE THE EFFICIENCY OF YOUR FEEDS, LABOR, AND LIVESTOCK!

At Sollenberger Silos Corp. we know a lot about feed storage and handling; we've been in the business since 1908. If your plans call for new feed storage, give us a call...We'd like to contribute to your success!!

NO USED SILOS!
NO REBUILT SILOS!
NO PRE-OWNED SILOS!
ALL NEW FOR YOU.

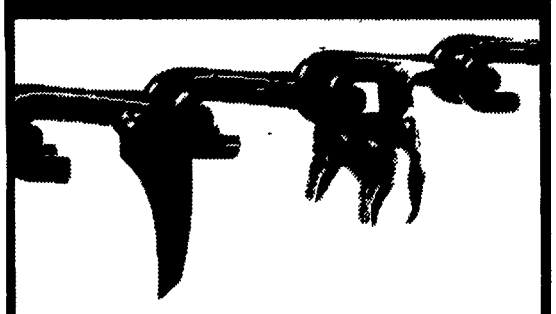
Frozen silage? No problem!



For frozen silage and hard-packed haylage, the Patz cutter-and-claw gathering chain outperforms augers. This time-proven chain with its chain-saw cutting action cuts out frozen silage aggressively. Shouldn't your next unloader have a gathering chain?

Consider these Model RD-820 Unloader features:

RING-DRIVE: With the roller-chain ring drive, only one motor powers the machine.
AUTOMATIC LOWERING OPTION: A winch lowers the RD-820 automatically after each complete revolution.
POWER CUTTER: Spring tension keeps high-speed, self-sharpening blades tight to the silo wall to shave it clean.
TORQUE LIMITER: Ratchet-pin design protects the ring and drive system while working through conditions.
Affordable financing directly from Patz.

SAFETY! It's no accident

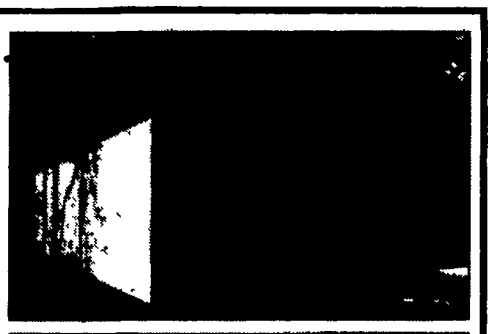
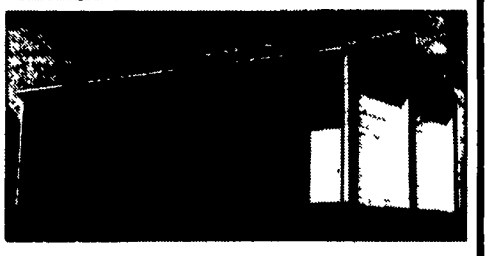
Side with Alumax ALU-TUFF Steel





When you put up a building, you expect it to be attractive and to last. A building constructed with ALU-TUFF will meet those expectations. That's because ALU-TUFF is made using top-quality materials, super-tough protective coatings, and a unique rib design that's both functional and attractive.

Years from now when other buildings are starting to show their age, your building will still look good.

- A STRONG PROFILE
  High 3/4-inch ribs on nine-inch centers give ALU-TUFF exceptionally high spanning properties for its weight and thickness, while stiffening ribs in flat areas prevent rippling.
- MADE TO LAST
  To keep Alu-Tuff working hard and looking good for years to come, we protect it with an oven-cured system of four different coatings.
- A GREAT LOOKING PANEL
  You don't have to sacrifice good looks to get a tough steel panel.
- MORE QUALITY FEATURES
  Each ALU-TUFF sheet is 38 inches wide to provide 36-inch coverage. That's wide enough to minimize the number of side laps, yet narrow enough to be easy to handle.

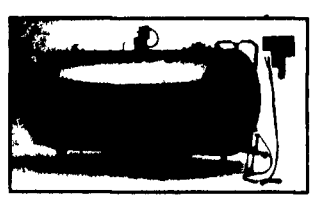
MUELLER DAIRY FARM EQUIPMENT

Scroll-Compressor Technology

New in 1994



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

Equipment costs are not the only cost of cooling milk.

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31,000	$28,000
Cost of electricity @ .08 kW for 12,000 lbs milk day for 10 years	$17,550	$22,850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48,550	$50,850
Savings	$ 2,300

Contact your Mueller distributor for further comparisons.

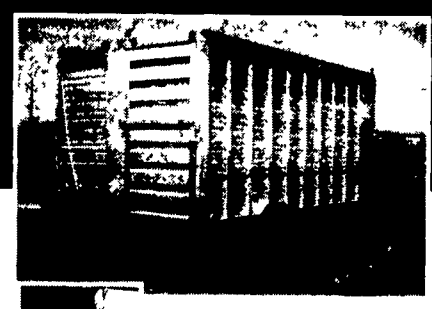
Agriculture Moves on EBY Bodies



M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- LIVESTOCK BODIES • Lengths to 32', choice of heights and widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24'; landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.

Let EBY custom build one for you.

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer custom options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business- building bodies to haul it is ours.

Hitch controls now incorporate a drop-response control, while the hydraulics are designed to cycle quickly for efficient loader work.
Cab versions feature plenty of glass area and a console designed for quick and frequent use of controls for the transmission, hydraulics, PTO and hitch.
A standard, smooth-working 8F/4R transmission provides synchronized on-the-go shifting of four speeds within each of two ranges Optional packages increase gear selection to 16F/8R, also optional is an 8F/8R shuttle transmission
New nylon release disc and throw-out bearing with high-temp grease allow the heavy-duty clutch to stand up to the rigors of feedlot work and daylong tillage
Large front and side grilles work with a new flair-tip fan to enhance engine airflow and cooling performance.

The Case International 3200 and 4200 Series tractors. Five tractors designed to the industry-leading performance criteria established by MAGNUM™ and MAXXUM®. These 42 to 85 PTO hp tractors set the standard for mid-range productivity.

SHOW RING ETHICS

I recently reviewed a copy of the "Show Animal Care & Handling Guide" compiled by the Animal Industry Foundation, Arlington, Va.

The preface to this compilation, the first two articles listed in the table of contents under "National Guides & Programs" and the "1996 Pennsylvania Farm Show Code of Show Ring Ethics" warrant consideration as we prepare for our upcoming Pennsylvania Farm Show.

The preface to the "Show Animal Care and Handling Guide" reads as follows:

"Youth livestock programs have long been considered model programs for the public to gain a better understanding of American agriculture.

"Well-attended by families far removed from the farm, state fairs and livestock expositions offer the public an excellent opportunity to see our food production systems in action.

"Youth involved in agricultural programs have been perceived as the industry's future leaders, as well."

This is no more readily apparent than at the annual Pennsylvania Farm Show, where the vast majority of spectators are far removed from the farm and look to us for information and assistance.

The "Show Animal Care and Handling Guide" lists two specific national guides: "The National Show Ring Code of Ethics" as presented by the American Livestock Show and Rodeo Managers Association, Fort Worth, Texas, and the "National Code of Show Ring Ethics" as stated by the International Association of Fairs and Expositions, Springfield, Mo.

These two codes provide the foundation for careful analysis of the "1996 Pennsylvania Farm Show Code of Show Ring Ethics" found on page 14 of the Pennsylvania State Farm Show Premium List.

The "1996 Pennsylvania Farm Show Code of Show Ring Ethics" has as its preface the following: "The State Farm Products Show Commission has developed a Code of Show Ring Ethics to curtail unethical, deceptive and fraudulent show ring practices."

Some definitions follow.

UNETHICAL: Not conforming to accepted and especially professional standards of conduct.

DECEPTIVE: The act of deceiving, or causing to believe an untruth.

FRAUDULENT: Characterized by, based on, or done by trickery or cheating.

The Code has been reprinted for your review. It is certainly worth our time for all of us to review the rules and policies before arriving at Farm Show.

Grant Program Seeks Interested Farmers

CHARLOTTE HALL, Md. — The Tri-County Council for Southern Maryland is looking for interested farmers to participate in a demonstration program established to help southern Maryland farmers learn more about alternative agriculture enterprises.

The program's goal is to assist farmers by providing "seed money" for on-farm demonstrations and applied research projects, and to determine the feasibility and profit-making potential of new agricultural enterprises. Any farmer within the southern Maryland region is eligible to submit a proposal for consideration.

Grant requests should be between $500 and $1,000. Requests for more than $1,000 will be considered based on the merits of the proposal and the availability of funds.

Alternative agriculture project areas include aquaculture, field crops, floriculture, forestry, horticulture, livestock, turf production, seminars, networking groups, and marketing or feasibility studies.

The deadline for applying is Dec. 29.

To receive a copy of the grant application or for additional information about this program, contact Candy Walter, agricultural specialist for the Tri-County Council, at (301) 884-2144 or 870-2520.

1996 PENNSYLVANIA FARM SHOW CODE OF SHOW RING ETHICS

THE STATE FARM PRODUCTS SHOW COMMISSION has developed a Code of Show Ring Ethics to curtail unethical, deceptive and fraudulent show ring practices.

The Code is as follows:

Exhibitors of animals at the Farm Show shall at all times deport themselves with honesty and good sportsmanship. Their conduct in this competitive environment shall always reflect the highest standards of honor and dignity to promote the advancement of agricultural education. This code applies to junior as well as open class exhibitors who complete in structured classes competition. This code applies to all livestock offered in the livestock show.

All youth leaders working with junior exhibitors are under an affirmative responsibility to do more than avoid improper conduct of questionable acts. Their moral values must be so certain and positive that those younger and more pliable will be influenced by their fine example. Owners, exhibitors, fitters, trainers and absolutely responsible persons who violate the code of ethics will forfeit premiums, awards and auction proceeds and may be prohibited from future exhibition in accordance with the rules adopted by the FARM SHOW Exhibitors who violate this code of ethics demean the integrity of all livestock exhibitors and should be prohibited from competition at all livestock shows in the United States and Canada. The following is a list of GUIDELINES for all exhibitors and all livestock in competitive events:

1. All exhibitors must present, upon request of show officials, proof of ownership length of ownership and age of all animals entered. Misrepresentation of ownership of any fact relating thereto is prohibited.

2. Owners, exhibitors, fitters, trainers, or absolutely responsible persons shall provide animals health certificates from licensed veterinarians upon request by show officials.

3. Junior exhibitors are expected to care for and groom their animals while at the shows.

4. Animals shall be presented to show events where they will enter the food chain free of drugs. The act of entering an animal in a livestock show is the giving of consent by the owner, exhibitor, fitter, trainer and/or absolutely responsible person for show management to obtain any specimens of urine, saliva, blood, or other substances from the animal to be used in testing. Animals not entered in an event which culminates with the animal entering the food chain shall not be administered drugs other than in accordance with applicable federal and state statutes, regulations and rules affect the animal s performance of appearance of the event. If the laboratory report on the chemical analysis of saliva, urine, blood, or other sample taken from livestock indicates the presence of forbidden drugs or medication, this shall be prima facie evidence such substance has been administered to the animal either internally or externally. It is presumed that the sample of urine, saliva, blood, or other substance tested by the approval laboratory to which it is sent is the one taken from the animal in question, its integrity is preserved and all procedures of said collection and preservation, transfer to the laboratory and analysis of the sample taken from the animal in question and correctly reflects the condition of the animal at the time the sample was taken, with the burden on the owner, exhibitor, fitter, trainer, or absolutely responsible person to provide otherwise at any hearing in regard to the matter conducted by the show. At any time after an animal arrives on the Farm Show premises, all treatments involving the use of drugs and/or medications shall be administered by a licensed veterinarian.

5. Any surgical procedure or injection of any foreign substance or drug or the external application of any substance (irritant, counterirritant, or similar substance) which could affect the animal s performance or alter its natural contour, confirmation, or appearance, except for surgical procedures performed by a duly licensed veterinarian for the sole purpose of protecting the health of the animal, is prohibited.

6. The use of showing and/or handling practices or devices such as striking animals to cause swelling, using electrical contrivance, or other similar practices are not acceptable and are prohibited.

7. Direct interference with the judge show management, other exhibitors, breed rep-

More On DNA and Dairy

GEORGE F.W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del.—Recently I wrote about DNA as the latest and most powerful tool for progress in modern animal science and animal production.

I reported on the reliable new method for finding out whether a calf is a red-color barrier. Now, there is a second DNA-based procedure in the very important area of sex determination.

For years I have wondered about the question of sex determination. In our University of Delaware herd and in others I have observed a preponderance of male calves when older semen ampules from famous bulls were used.

Often I received bull semen donations from Holstein or Guernsey breeders at their dispersal sale.

The semen typically has been stored for a time and is often from older bulls that have reached fame as superior performers by the majority of daughters they've produced, and a performance reputation takes time to establish.

Although I had discussed this older semen issue with bull stud managers, I never succeeded in a research project to collect appropriate data for reliable analysis. I am still convinced there is something to this conjecture.

We know that there are two kinds of spermatozoa: those that determine female sex and those that determine male sex in offspring.

And the physical difference between the two is that the male sex-determining spermatozoa have only the small Y chromosome, while the female-determining spermatozoa have the big X chromosome.

If there is a difference in size, that must also mean a difference in weight or gravity or migration during storage.

When semen is stored, some spermatozoa could settle out because of greater weight. If more of the big-chromosome spermatozoa settle out than the small-chromosome ones, this could explain why more of the small male chromosome spermatozoa are left in "solution," which, when used on insemination, would produce mostly male calves.

This is a plausible answer to my puzzle of too many bull calves from older semen—at least more than a 50 percent chance.

A reinforcement of this theory came from botany.

I knew that when pollen grains are added to a blooming flower's stamen, they migrate down inside toward the egg cells of the flower for fertilization.

But while they move downward, some pollen grains travel faster than others. It's the male pollen with the smaller Y chromosomes that migrates faster.

This has been proven by cutting the channel in half at a certain time interval and physically preventing the slower female pollen from reaching the eggs, thus producing a different sex ratio in the seed.

Does that not also sound like the case of semen from older bulls that has been in storage for some time?

Well, over the years, many scientists have tried to find methods to separate Y from X spermatozoa.

Electric currents and vinegar douches have often been successful, but the semen died in the process, much like the proverbial surgery that was successful except that the patient died.

Now along comes DNA, the new magic.

Of course, for some time, we have been able to see under the microscope whether a fertilized egg is male or female. The challenge has been to predetermine, in a practical way, which egg is going to be male or female by sorting out the respective semen.

Remember, it is only the spermatozoa that make the difference; eggs are always only female, because females (cows) are homozygous for the X chromosome, while males (bulls) are always heterozygous for X and Y chromosomes, producing them half and half.

Mating with the homozygous female X chromosomes follows the third law of the discoverer of genetics, Gregor Mendel, which states that the offspring numbers between a homozygous and a heterozygous parent are always in a 50:50 ratio; i.e., half of one parent's type, homozygous, and half of the other parent's type, heterozygous.

Unlike the situation with black or red color in Holsteins (where black is dominant over red and red is not visible in the animal's appearance unless it is homozygous for red), in sex there is no dominance.

A heterozygous animal for sex is visibly male and there is no homozygous YY animal, only heterozygous XY and homozygous XX.

The story of the new DNA test for finding and separating the male determining Y spermatozoa comes from research at the USDA Experiment Station in Beltsville, Md., by Dr. Larry Johnson (Dairy Profit Report, University of Wisconsin-Madison, vol. 7(2):1-2).

Johnson determined that X chromosomes have about 4 percent more DNA than the smaller Y chromosome; he used this fact to separate spermatozoa.

Spermatozoa are treated with a bluish fluorescent dye, and because X spermatozoa contain more DNA than Y sperm, the X sperm absorb more dye.

This then is measured by an optical detector in a so-called flow cytometer, which can analyze and sort microscopic cells.

Also, there, the more luminous X sperm are earmarked with a positive charge, the less luminous Y sperm with a negative charge.

Invisible to the naked eye, the dye-charged sperm flow single file past deflecting plates, separating the positive and negative sperm into two containers.

When cow ova are fertilized in vitro by the separated sperm, the success rate of obtaining male or female calves has been 90 percent.

With a new procedure of harvesting ova from cows' ovaries directly and repeatedly, called ultrasound-guided follicular aspiration, the use of the separated sperm is ready for practical wide use, because much less sperm are needed.

The cytometer separation of sperm is actually not fast, requiring about 40 hours to separate 20 million sperm needed for one artificial insemination.

For the in vitro insemination, only a few thousand sperm are needed, thus 200 to more ova can be fertilized from separated sperm sorted in one hour. In a study with a British company in 1992, predetermined 40 bull calves were produced from 50 births.

So AI (artificial insemination), the great dairy success story, and ET (embryo transfer), the more recent extension of that success story, now have the culmination of progress potential for breeding only one sex from the top cows in the herd with the top bulls in the world.

What a difference from grandfather's cow farm! And what a difference in profit potential!

What next? In terms of world ecology and environment, maybe

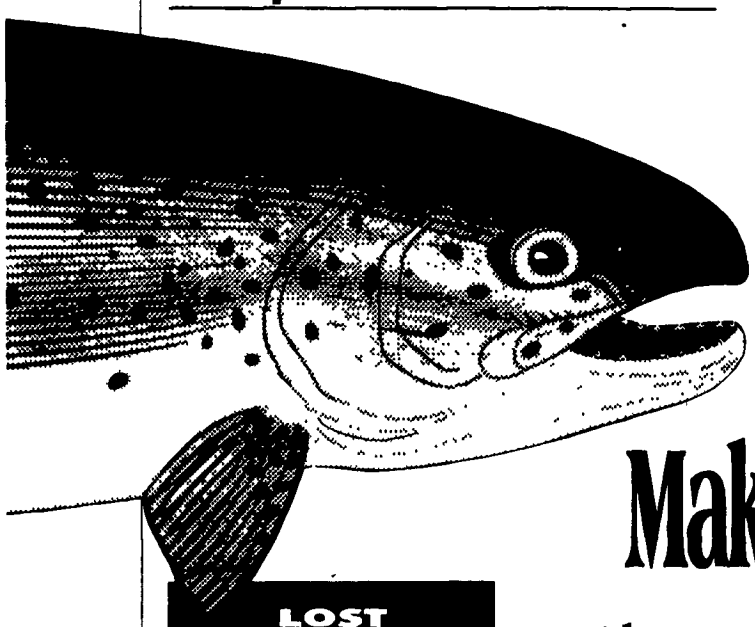
Pennsylvania Streams and Lakes



Stream Maps Make Great Gifts

Why every fisherman needs this map

It is estimated that 10% of all the fishermen catch 90% of the fish. Regardless of which group you fall into... there's a sure way to up your odds... simply try new fishing waters. Fish where few fishermen ever fish.

Pennsylvania is loaded with great fishing waters...many of them overlooked. From the Lake Erie tributaries to the Delaware River....thousands of miles of streams, lakes and rivers are now easy-to-locate on one map.

Professor Higbee's Stream Map of Pennsylvania is the first and only highly detailed map of its kind. This 3 foot by 5 foot color map shows virtually all of the 45,000 miles of Pennsylvania streams & lakes.

LOST STREAM MAP FOUND AND RESTORED

THE STREAM MAP OF PENNSYLVANIA was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

The map is also known as the LOST STREAM MAP to some anglers.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand, the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 x 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well -- until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates, declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to the landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

The experts had always told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Holding an updated map, Howard said, "I never though I'd live to see this day."

RAVE REVIEWS

"It an anglers dream, a masterpiece, a map that contains streams you won't find on other maps. The possibilities for exploring new waters are endless."

Md. 4-H Dairy Judging Team Succeeds At NAILE

COLLEGE PARK, Md.—The Maryland 4-H dairy cattle judging team placed fifth overall in youth competition at the North American International Livestock Exposition in Louisville, Ky., on Nov. 5.

Drawing upon knowledge of cattle evaluation and speaking ability, the Maryland team captured second in oral reasons.

Team members include Emily Birch, 16, from White Hall (Harford County); Erin Feuillet, 16, from Damascus (Montgomery County); Amy Iager, 15, from Fulton (Howard County); and Kristin Myers, 14, from New Windsor (Carroll County).

In a field of 20 teams, the Maryland competitors captured the following team awards: fifth in Brown Swiss, Guernsey and Jersey judging, and sixth in Ayrshire and Holstein judging.

Individually, Erin Feuillet placed second in oral reasons, seventh overall, fifth in Holstein judging, tenth in Ayrshire judging and eleventh in Guernsey judging. Kristin Myers received seventh in oral reasons, eleventh overall, eighth in Brown Swiss judging, fourteenth in Guernsey judging and seventeenth in Ayrshire judging.

Amy Iager was twenty-first overall and tenth in oral reasons in a field of 77 contestants. Emily Birch placed sixth in Guernsey judging and thirteenth in Jersey judging.

Dr. J. Lee Majeskie, extension dairy science specialist at the University of Maryland at College Park, coached the team. Donna Myers of New Windsor attended as an assistant coach and chaperon. The team received support from the Maryland Agricultural Fair Board and the Dairy Endowment Fund administered by the Maryland 4-H Foundation. Team members also received additional support from various individuals and agricultural organizations.

The Maryland 4-H dairy cattle judging team placed fifth overall in youth competition at the North American International Livestock Exposition in Louisville, Ky., on Nov. 5. The team is pictured at the Maryland State Fair in September. Standing from left to right: Dr. J. Grain, Egg Licenses Accepted

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley has announced that the Maryland Department of Agriculture is accepting applications for 1996 grain dealers licenses as well as applications for shell egg distributor licenses.

"Anyone buying, receiving, or storing grain from a grain producer is required to obtain a grain dealers license each year. Farmers who buy, receive or store grain for use in their farming business are exempt from the licensing requirement," Riley said.

All applicants are required to submit documentation of financial worth and insurance coverage before being issued a license. License fees range from $50 to $300, depending on the volume of grain handled by the licensee.

"As far as the shell egg distributer license is concerned, all producer/packers and wholesalers of shell eggs are required to register annually," said Riley.

The annual registration fee for a shell egg distributor license is $30. Persons with 3,000 or less chickens are exempt from all fees.

For more information and to request either the grain dealers or shell egg distributor applications, contact Deanna Baldwin at the Maryland Department of Agriculture, (410) 841-5769.

a sigh of relief, because more food will be produced from fewer, but better, animals.

For people in developing countries, it is a mixed blessing, because animal numbers mean wealth to an owner, thus reducing more less-productive animals to fewer more-productive animals won't necessarily fit into their cultural tradition.

But our grandfathers' dairy farms have changed, and in time, most certainly, so will others'.

At Last...

...a Boom Sprayer for multi-crop produce farmer that is affordable and will do the job from sweet corn to melon crops.

With features like...

- 24 ft. one-side boom that allows for 50ft. coverage between drive rows.
- Easy boom height adjustment from 2ft. to 7 1/2 ft. for sweet corn.
- Hydraulic leveling on the go allows uniform boom height from the crop.
- 280 PSI, 15 GPM diaphragm pump with power shaft for quick hookup.
- Adjustable wheel spacing and tongue height.
- Rubber mounted boom to absorb shock

With the high cost of chemicals, the right Sprayer is needed
Order Early, Supply Limited

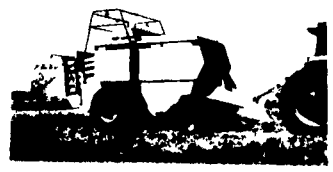
JUMBO BALES



A Case International 8580 large rectangular baler makes JUMBO bales up to 2 000 pounds
It compresses hay equivalent to about 40 conventional bales into a single high density package The high end capacity and performance of the 8580 means you can push these big bales through the machine all day — every day That's a lot of hay!
And it's quality hay too The center line design handles the crop gently to preserve nutritious leaves The bales are uniformly shaped for efficient handling and shipping
The 8580 also has a full list of standard features Low profile pickup pre packer chamber massive gearbox heavy duty components throughout electronic monitoring double tie knotters and low maintenance And it's simple to operate
The Case International 8580 is a JUMBO value too

Notice! This Baler Is In Stock Purchased Before Price Increase. Purchase Or Take A Tax Deductable Lease With Purchase Option Before Year End For Big $ Savings.

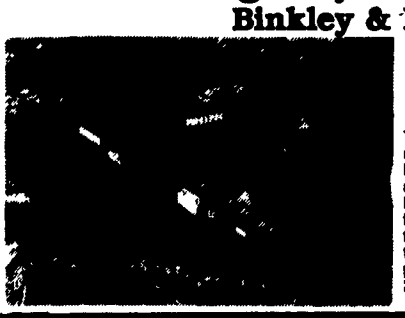
Purchase Quality Rhino Machinery From Binkley & Hurst Bros.



If It's Snow Removal Or Heavy Duty Excavating, You Need A Rhino Blade From Binkley & Hurst Bros. Now!

The LR Blade has been setting the standard in medium-duty blades for over 20 years. The LR is ideal for road maintenance, soil leveling, ditching and terracing work, or loadlot cleanup on tractors. Durability and ruggedness are built into every LR with features including a 2" solid steel kingpin and a 5/16" thick moldboard. Versatility is provided by the LR's three basic mechanical adjustments: moldboard tilt, pivot, and mainframe swing which add up to a total of 22 non-wrench adjustments.

The high quality of corn forage produced by the JAGUAR is derived from the CLAAS corn cracker. Two saw toothed rollers run at different speeds with 20% difference open up virtually every kernel and this means good quality silage which is easily digested. This makes for highest energy transfer for higher milk and meat yields.
The rollers are subject to wear and tear, so the CLAAS corn cracker features removeable outer sleeves. The shafts, drive pulley and bearings are all reused, thus reducing maintenance costs. Foreign bodies pass through thanks to a spring loaded mechanism. The 7.7" diameter of the corn cracker rollers is exceptionally large. The speed differential intensifies the grinding effect for effective opening of the kernels.
The degree of corn cracker intensity is adjustable to take account of differing dry matter content. This is done mechanically. An optional electrical adjustment is available.
Since the corn cracker stays on the machine, the changeover from corn to grass can always with a minimum of preparation. This is a help when grass and corn are being harvested at the same time. The area around the corn cracker ahead of the cooling system is very large, enabling ease of access to parts you wouldn't otherwise be able to reach. For instance the accelerator or ejection chute.

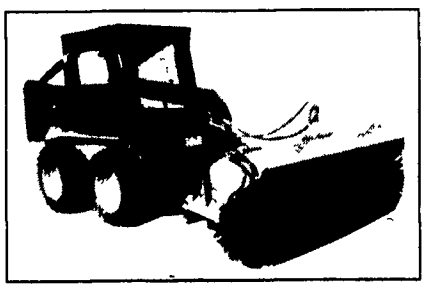
SWEEPSTER



HYDRAULIC DRIVE SWEEPERS FOR SKID STEERS

FOUR SEASONS - FOUR REASONS

Power sweepers are multi-purpose four season, clean-up machines. Clean snow all Winter from streets, driveways and building entrances. In the Spring, keep your sweeper busy removing debris from intersections and roadsides. Remove thatch and get turf areas in shape for the Summer growing season. Sweep gravel, sand and trash from bridges, parking lots and sidewalks. In the Fall, sweep up leaves and pine needles before the snow flies.
